(3) If the rules of a society or branch certified before the twenty-third day of July, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-five, and in force at the time of the enrolment or service, provide that a member shall be deprived of any benefit by reason of that enrolment or service, the society or branch may require of the member a contribution exceeding the rate of contribution otherwise payable by him to an amount not exceeding one tenth of that rate during the time the member is serving out of the United Kingdom, or may suspend all claim of the member to any benefits assured by the society or branch, and all claim of the society or branch to any contributions payable by the member, during the time only he is serving out of the United Kingdom, but so that if he returns to the United Kingdom he shall forthwith be replaced on the same footing as before he went abroad on service.

[Sections 44 to 50 relate to property, funds, and investments, and the vesting and devolution thereof. The powers of investment contained in s. 44 are widened by s. 4 of the Act of 1908.]

See, as to unauthorised loan under sect. 46, Lougher and ors. v. Molyneux, (1916) 85 L. J. K. B. 911.

Description in legal proceedings.

51. In all legal proceedings whatsoever concerning any property vested in the trustees of a registered society or branch, the property may be stated to be the property of the trustees in their proper names as trustees for the society or branch without further description.

[Sections 52 and 53 relate to investments and discharge of mortgages.]

OFFICERS IN RECEIPT OR CHARGE OF MONEY.

Security by officers.

54. Every officer of a registered society or branch having receipt or charge of money shall, if the rules of the society or branch so require, before taking upon himself the execution of his office, become bound with one sufficient surety at the least in a bond or give the security of a guarantee society, in such sum as the society or branch directs, conditioned for his rendering a just and true account of all sums of money received and paid by him on account of the society or branch at such times as its rules appoint, or as the society or branch or the trustees or committee thereof require him to do, and for the payment by him of all sums due from him to the society or branch.

Section 54.

55.—(1) Every officer of a registered society or branch having receipt or charge of money shall, at such times as by the rules of the society or branch he should render account, or upon demand made, or notice in writing given or left at his last or usual place of residence, give in his account as may be required by the society or branch, or by the trustees or committee thereof, to be examined and allowed or disallowed by them, and shall, on the like demand or notice, pay over all sums of money and deliver all property in his hands or custody to such person as the society or branch, or the committee or the trustees, appoint.

Accounts of officers.

(2) In case of any neglect or refusal to deliver the account, or to pay over the sums of money or to deliver the property in manner aforesaid, the trustees or authorised officers of the society or branch may sue upon the bond or security before mentioned, or may apply to the county court or to a court of summary jurisdiction, and the order of either such court shall be final and conclusive.

PAYMENTS ON DEATH GENERALLY.

56.—(1) A member of a registered society (other than a benevolent society or working-men's club) or branch thereof, not being under the age of sixteen years, may, by writing under his hand delivered at or sent to the registered office of the society or branch, or made in a book kept at that office, nominate a person to whom any sum of money payable by the society or branch, on the death of that member, not exceeding one hundred pounds, shall be paid at his decease.

Power of member to dispose of sums payable on death by nomination.

Life policy is assignable by deed as well as by nomination (In re Griffin, (1902) 1 Ch. 135; 71 L. J. Ch. 112; overruling Caddick v. Highton, (1901) 2 Ch. 476, n.; 68 L. J. Q. B. 281; Re Redman, (1901) 2 Ch. 471; 70 L. J. Ch. 669).

(2) The sum of money payable by the society or branch on the death of a member, shall include sums of money contributed to or deposited in the separate loan account and the sums of money accumulated for the use of the member under the provisions of this Act with interest thereon.

(3) The person so nominated must not be an officer or servant of the society or branch, unless that officer or servant is the husband, wife, father, mother, child, brother, sister, nephew, or niece of the nominator.

(4) A nomination so made may be revoked and varied by any similar document under the hand of the nominator, delivered, sent, or made as aforesaid.

Cannot be revoked otherwise than as prescribed by the sub-section Bennett v. Slater, (1899) 1 Q. B. 45; 68 L. J. Q. B. 45).

(5) The marriage of a member of a society or branch shall operate as a revocation of any nomination theretofore made by that member under this section.

Section 56.

(6) A nomination or a variation or revocation of a nomination by writing under the hand of a member of a registered branch and delivered at or sent to the registered office of that branch, or made in a book kept at that office, shall be effectual notwithstanding that the money to which the nomination relates or some part thereof is not payable by that branch, but is payable by the society or some other branch.

Sub-s. 6 added by sect. 5 of the Act of 1908.

Proceedings on death of a nominator.

57.—(1) On receiving satisfactory proof of the death of a nominator, the society or branch shall pay to the nominee the amount due to the deceased member, not exceeding the said sum of one hundred pounds.

(2) The receipt of a nominee over sixteen years of age for any amount so paid shall be valid.

(3) If the total sum in respect to which a nomination may be made under this Act by a member, after deducting any sums of money payable under the rules of the society or branch, or otherwise, for the purpose of defraying funeral expenses, exceeds at the time of the death of that member eighty pounds, the society or branch shall before making any payment require the production of a duly stamped receipt for the succession or legacy duty payable thereon, or a letter or certificate from the Commissioners of Inland Revenue stating that no such duty is payable.

(4) The Commissioners shall give such receipt, letter, or certificate on the payment of the duty or satisfactory proof of no duty being payable, as the case may be.

Intestacy.

58.—(1) If any member of a registered society or branch entitled from the funds thereof to a sum not exceeding one hundred pounds, dies intestate and without having made any nomination thereof then subsisting, the society or branch may, without letters of administration, distribute the sum among such persons as appear to a majority of the trustees, upon such evidence as they may deem satisfactory, to be entitled by law to receive that sum, subject if that sum, after making such deductions as aforesaid, exceeds eighty pounds, to the obtaining from the Commissioners of Inland Revenue a receipt for the succession or legacy duty payable thereon, or a letter or certificate stating that no such duty is payable.

(2) If any such member is illegitimate, the trustees may pay the sum of money which that member might have nominated to or among the persons who, in the opinion of a majority of them, would have been entitled thereto if that member had been legitimate, or if there are no such persons, the society or branch shall deal with the money as the Treasury may direct.

Estate duty to be paid when the whole estate

59. When the principal value of the estate in respect of which estate duty is payable of any person entitled to make a nomination under this Act exceeds one hundred pounds, any sum paid under this Act without probate or letters of administration shall, notwithstanding such nomination or payment, be liable to estate duty as part of the amount on which that duty is charged, and the trustees of the society or branch may before making any such payment require a statutory declaration by the claimant, or by one of the claimants, that the principal value of that estate, including the sum in question, does not after deduction of debts and funeral expenses exceed the value of one hundred pounds.

60.—(1) A payment made by a registered society or branch, under the foregoing provisions of this Act with respect to payments on death generally to the person who at the time appears to a majority of the trustees to be entitled thereunder, shall be valid and effectual against any demand made upon the trustees or the society or branch by any other person, but the next-of-kin or lawful representative of the deceased member shall have remedy for recovery of the money, so paid as aforesaid, against the person who has received that money. Section 60.
Validity of payments.

(2) Where the society or branch has paid money to a nominee in ignorance of a marriage subsequent to the nomination, the receipt of the nominee shall be a valid discharge to the society or branch.

61.—(1) A registered society or branch shall not pay any sum of money upon the death of a member or other person whose death is or ought to be entered in any register of deaths, except upon the production of a certificate of that death under the hand of the registrar of deaths or other person having care of the register of deaths in which that death is or ought to be entered. Certificates of death.

(2) This section shall not apply to deaths at sea, nor to a death by colliery explosion or other accident where the body cannot be found, nor to any death certified by a coroner or procurator fiscal to be the subject of a pending inquest or inquiry.

PAYMENTS ON DEATH OF CHILDREN.

62. A society or branch, whether registered or unregistered shall not insure or pay on the death of a child under five years of age any sum of money which, added to any amount payable on the death of that child by any other society or branch, exceeds six pounds, or on the death of a child under ten years of age any sum of money which, added to any amount payable on the death of that child by any other society or branch, exceeds ten pounds. Limitation of amount payable.

See now Friendly Societies Act, 1924, s. 2.

63. A society or branch, whether registered or unregistered, shall not pay any sum on the death of a child under ten years of age except to the parent of the child, or to the personal representative of the parent, and upon production by the parent or his personal representative of a certificate of death issued by the registrar of deaths, or other person having the care of the register of deaths, containing the particulars mentioned in this Act. Person to whom payment may be made.

64.—(1) Where application is made for a certificate of the death of a child for the purpose of obtaining a sum of money from a society or branch, the name of the society or branch, and the sum sought to be obtained therefrom shall be stated to the registrar of deaths. Particulars of certificates.

(2) The registrar of deaths shall write on or at the foot of the certificate the words "to be produced to the society or branch (naming the same) said to be liable for payment of the sum of £. (stating the same)."

(3) All certificates of the same death shall be numbered in consecutive order.

Section 65.

Cases in which certificates may be given.

65.—(1) A registrar of deaths shall not give any one or more certificates of death for the payment in the whole of any sum of money exceeding six pounds on the death of a child under five years, or for the payment in the whole of a sum exceeding ten pounds on the death of a child under ten years.

(2) A registrar of deaths shall not grant any such certificate unless the cause of death has been previously entered in the register of deaths on the certificate of a coroner, or of a registered medical practitioner who attended the deceased child during its last illness, or except upon the production of a certificate of the probable cause of death under the hand of a registered medical practitioner, or of other satisfactory evidence thereof.

See now Friendly Societies Act, 1924, s. 2.

Inquiries by societies.

66. A society or branch, whether registered or unregistered, to which is produced a certificate of the death of a child which does not purport to be the first shall, before paying any money thereon, inquire whether any and what sums of money have been paid on the same death by any other society or branch.

Saving as to insurable interests, etc.

67. Nothing in this Act respecting payments on the death of children shall apply to insurances on the lives of children of any age, where the person insuring has an interest in the life of the person insured.

DISPUTES.

Decision of disputes.

68.—(1) Every dispute between—

- (a) a member or person claiming through a member or under the rules of a registered society or branch, and the society or branch or an officer thereof; or
- (b) any person aggrieved who has (a) ceased to be a member of a registered society or branch, or any person claiming through such person aggrieved, and the society or branch, or an officer thereof; or

NOTE.—(a) The words “for not more than six months” were repealed by sect. 6 of the Act of 1908.

- (c) any registered branch of any society or branch, and the society or branch of which it is a branch; or
- (d) an officer of any such registered branch and the society or branch of which that registered branch is a branch (a); or

NOTE.—(a) But notwithstanding this sub-section, an action can be maintained by the trustees of the society, against the trustees, secretary and treasurer of an unregistered branch for breach of trust in applying the trust funds in an unauthorised way (Winter v. Wilkinson, (1915) 1 Ch. 317; 84 L. J. Ch. 237).

(e) any two or more registered branches of any society or branch, or any officers thereof respectively, shall be decided in manner directed by the rules of the society or branch, and the decision so given shall be binding and conclusive on all parties without appeal, and shall not be removable into any court of law or restrainable by injunction; and application for the enforcement thereof may be made to the county court.

(2) The parties to a dispute in a registered society or branch may, by consent (unless the rules of the society or branch expressly forbid it), refer the dispute to the chief registrar, or in Scotland or Ireland to the assistant registrar.

(3) The chief or other registrar to whom a dispute is referred shall, with the consent of the Treasury, either by himself or by any other registrar, hear and determine the dispute, and shall have power to order the expenses of determining the dispute to be paid either out of the funds of the society or branch, or by such parties to the dispute as he may think fit, and his determination and order shall have the same effect, and be enforceable in like manner as a decision made in the manner directed by the rules of the society or branch.

(4) The chief or other registrar to whom a dispute is referred may administer oaths, and may require the attendance of all parties concerned, and of witnesses, and the production of all books and documents relating to the matter in question.

(5) Where the rules of a registered society or branch direct that disputes shall be referred to justices, the dispute shall be determined by a court of summary jurisdiction, or, if the parties thereto consent, by the county court.

(6) Where the rules contain no direction as to disputes, or where no decision is made on a dispute within forty days after application to the society or branch for a reference under its rules, the member or person aggrieved may apply either to the county court, or to a court of summary jurisdiction, and the court to which application is so made, may hear and determine the matter in dispute; but in the case of a society with branches, the said forty days shall not begin to run until application has been made in succession to all the bodies entitled to determine the dispute under the rules of the society or branch, so, however, that no rules shall require a greater delay than three months between each successive determination.

When the right to make such an application to the county court to recover a benefit under the rules has once become vested, the society cannot, by an amendment of its rules, take away that vested right (Ritson v. Dobson, (1911) 104 L. T. 808).

In the case of a society with branches, the forty days do not begin to run until application has been made in succession to all the bodies entitled to determine the dispute under the rules of the society or branch, so, however, that no rules shall require a greater delay than three months between each successive determination (for form of order, see Form 167) (Jessop v. The Huddersfield Industrial Society, (1899) 80 L. T. 598).

See, as to jurisdiction of county court where the rules of the society were uncertain, and the decision contrary to natural justice (Wayman v. Perseverance Lodge of Cambridgeshire Order of United Brethren Friendly Society, (1917) 1 K. B. 677; 86 L. J. K. B. 243).

(7) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Arbitration 52 & 53 Vict. Act, 1889, or in any other Act, the court and the chief or other c. 49.
registrar or any arbitrator or umpire to whom a dispute is referred under the rules of a registered society or branch, shall not be compelled to state a special case on any question of law arising in the case, but the court, or chief or other registrar, may, at the request of either party, state a case for the opinion in England or Ireland of the Supreme Court, and in Scotland of either division of the Inner House of the Court of Session, on any question of law, and may also grant to either party such discovery as to documents and otherwise, or such inspection of documents, and in Scotland, may grant warrant for the recovery of documents and examination of havers, as might be granted by any court

Section 68. of law or equity, and the discovery shall be made on behalf of the society or branch by such officer thereof as the court or registrar may determine.

(8) In this section the expression "dispute" includes any dispute arising on the question whether a member or person aggrieved is entitled to be or to continue to be a member or to be reinstated as a member, but, save as aforesaid, in the case of a person who has ceased to be a member, does not include any dispute other than a dispute on a question between him and the society or branch or an officer thereof which arose whilst he was a member, or arises out of his previous relation as a member to that society or branch.

Sub-s. 8 was added by sect. 6 of the Act of 1908.

The decision of an arbitration committee is not binding if given without jurisdiction, as where a member was summoned before a committee for a breach of rules and was in his absence expelled upon a different charge (one of fraud and disgraceful conduct); in such a case the jurisdiction of the courts is not ousted (Andrews v. Mitchell, (1905) A. C. 78; 74 L. J. K. B. 333).

Under sect. 22 of the 1875 Act, and sect. 10, sub-s. 1 of the 1895 Act, repealed but practically re-enacted in sect. 68, sub-s. 1, of the 1896 Act, it was held that the provisions of those sections did not extend to disputes as to the title of a person to be a member of the society, and that as to such disputes the jurisdiction of the courts was not ousted (Palliser v. Dale (C. A.), (1897) 1 Q. B. 257; 66 L. J. Q. B. 236); this case since the passing of the 1908 Act is no longer law. Questions about sick pay and expenses are disputes (Catt v. Wood, (1910) A. C. 404; 79 L. J. K. B. 782).

CHANGE OF NAME, AMALGAMATION, AND CONVERSION OF SOCIETIES.

Power to change name. 69.—(1) A registered society may, by special resolution, with the approval in writing of the chief registrar, or in the case of societies registered and doing business exclusively in Scotland or Ireland, the assistant registrar for Scotland or Ireland respectively, change its name, and shall not change its name in any other manner.

(2) Any such change of name shall not affect any right or obligation of the society, or of any member thereof, and any pending legal proceedings may be continued by or against the trustees of the society, or any other officer who may sue or be sued on behalf of the society, notwithstanding its new name.

Amalgamation and transfer of engagements. 70.—(1) Any two or more registered societies may, by special resolution of both or all such societies, become amalgamated together as one society, with or without any dissolution or division of the funds of those societies or either of them.

(2) A registered society may, by special resolution, transfer its engagements to any other registered society which may undertake to fulfil the engagements of that society.

(3) A special resolution by a registered friendly society for an amalgamation or transfer of engagements under this Act shall not be valid without—

(a) the assent thereto of five-sixths in value of the members, given either at the meetings at which the resolution is, according to the provisions of this Act, passed and confirmed, or at one of them, or, if the members were not present thereat, in writing; and

Section 70

- (b) the written consent of every person receiving or entitled to any relief, annuity, or other benefit from the funds of the society, unless the claim of that person is first duly satisfied, or adequate provision is made for satisfying that claim.

(4) Provided that on application of the trustees or committee of a registered friendly society desiring to amalgamate or transfer its engagements, and upon notice of that application being published in the Gazette, the chief registrar, after hearing the trustees or committee and any other persons whom he considers entitled to be heard upon the application, may, with the consent of the Treasury, order that any of the assents, consents, and conditions required by this Act, or by any regulations made under this Act, be dispensed with, and may confirm the amalgamation or transfer.

(5) A registered society, consisting wholly of members under twenty-one years of age, and a registered society or branch or branches of a society having members above twenty-one years of age, may, by resolution registered in the manner required for the registration of an amendment of rules, become amalgamated together as one society or branch, or provide for distributing among several branches the members of a society consisting wholly of members under twenty-one years of age, and the other provisions of this section shall not apply to that amalgamation.

(6) The value of members shall be ascertained by giving one vote to every member, and an additional vote for every five years that he has been a member, but to no one member more than five votes in the whole.

(7) If any member of a friendly society which has amalgamated or transferred its engagements, or if any person claiming any relief, annuity, or other benefit, from the funds thereof, is dissatisfied with the provision made for satisfying his claim, that member or person may apply to the county court of the district within which the chief or any other place of business of the society is situate for relief or other order, and that court shall have the same powers in the matter as in regard to the settlement of disputes under this Act.

71.—(1) A registered society may, by special resolution, determine to convert itself into a company under the Companies Acts, 1862 to 1890, or to amalgamate with or transfer its engagements to any such company. Conversion of society into company.

(2) If a special resolution for converting a society into a company contains the particulars required by the Companies Acts, 1862 to 1890, to be contained in the memorandum of association of a company, and a copy thereof has been registered at the central office, a copy of that resolution under the seal or stamp of the central office shall have the same effect as a memorandum of association duly signed and attested under the said Acts.

(3) If a society is registered as, or amalgamates with, or transfers all its engagements to, a company, the registry of the society under this Act shall thereupon become void, and shall be cancelled by the chief registrar or by the assistant registrar for Scotland or

Section 71. Ireland under his direction ; but the registration of a society as a company shall not affect any right or claim subsisting against that society, or any penalty incurred by that society : and for the purpose of enforcing any such right, claim, or penalty, the society may be sued and proceeded against in the same manner as if it had not become registered as a company ; and every such right or claim, or the liability to any such penalty, shall have priority, as against the property of the company, over all other rights or claims against or liabilities of the company.

On conversion of a friendly society under this section into a limited company the members of the society are not simultaneously converted into members of the company (Blackburn Philanthropic Assurance Co., Ltd., In re, (1915) 2 Ch. 430 ; 84 L. J. Ch. 145).

Saving for
creditors.

72. An amalgamation or transfer of engagements in pursuance of this Act shall not prejudice any right of a creditor of either or any society party thereto.

Conversion
into branch.

73.—(1) A registered society may, by a resolution passed by a majority of the members or delegates present and entitled to vote at any general meeting, of which notice specifying the intention to propose any such resolution has been duly given according to the rules, determine to become a branch of any other registered society, and also, if thought fit, of any registered branch thereof.

(3) A copy of the rules of the society marked to show the amendments, if any, made at the meeting, and two copies of the resolution and of such amendment of rules, if any, as aforesaid, each signed by the chairman of the meeting, and by the secretary of the society, so determining to become a branch of another society, and countersigned by the secretary of that other society, shall be sent to the registrar.

(4) If the registrar finds that the rules, with or without such amendment as aforesaid, comply with the provisions of this Act and of the Treasury regulations, he shall cancel the registry of the first-mentioned society, and register it as a branch of that other society, and also, if so specified in the resolution before mentioned, of any branch of that other society, without further request or notice, and shall register such amendment of rules without further application or evidence, and until such registry as aforesaid the resolution shall not take effect.

(5) An advertisement of any cancelling of registry under this section shall not be requisite.

(6) The rules of a society which becomes a branch under this section shall, so far as they are not contrary to any express provision of this Act or of the Treasury regulations, and subject to any such amendment thereof as aforesaid, continue in force as the rules of the branch until amended.

(7) This section shall apply only to societies registered before the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-six.

74. For the purposes of this Act, a special resolution shall mean Section 74.
a resolution which is—

- (a) passed by a majority of not less than three-fourths of such Meaning of members of a registered society, entitled under the rules special to vote as may be present in person or by proxy (where resolution.
the rules allow proxies) at any general meeting of which notice specifying the intention to propose that resolution has been duly given according to the rules; and
- (b) confirmed by a majority of such members entitled under the rules to vote as may be present in person or by proxy (where the rules allow proxies), at a subsequent general meeting of which notice has been duly given, held not less than fourteen days nor more than one month from the day of the meeting at which such resolution was first passed.

At any meeting mentioned in this section a declaration by the chairman that the resolution has been carried shall be conclusive evidence of the fact.

75. A copy of every special resolution for any of the purposes Registration mentioned in this Act, signed by the chairman of the meeting of special and countersigned by the secretary, shall be sent to the central resolutions.
office and registered there, and until that copy is so registered the special resolution shall not take effect.

[Sections 76 and 77 relate to inspection: cancelling (a) and suspension of registry.]

NOTE.—(a) See Middle Age Pension Friendly Society, In re, (1915)
1 K. B. 432; 84 L. J. K. B. 378.

78.—(1) Subject to the provision of this Act as to the dissolution Dissolution of societies with branches, a registered society or branch may of societies.
terminate or be dissolved in any of the following ways:—

- (a) upon the happening of any event declared by the rules to be the termination of the society or branch; or
- (b) as respects societies or branches other than friendly societies or branches, by the consent of three-fourths of the members, testified by their signatures to the instrument of dissolution; or
- (c) as respects friendly societies or branches, by the consent of five-sixths in value of the members (including honorary members, if any), testified by their signatures to the instrument of dissolution, and also by the written consent of every person receiving or entitled to receive any relief, annuity, or other benefit from the funds of the society or branch, unless the claim of that person is first duly satisfied, or adequate provision made for satisfying that claim, and, in the case of a branch, with the consent of the central body of the society or in accordance with the general rules of the society; or
- (d) by the award of the chief registrar or assistant registrars in the cases specified in this Act.

(2) The provisions of this Act as to the method of calculating the value of members and the remedy of members and persons dissatisfied with the provisions made for satisfying their claims in the case of the amalgamation or transfer of engagements of Section 78. a registered friendly society shall apply to the dissolution of a registered friendly society or branch.

Instrument of dissolution.

79. When a registered society or branch is terminated by an instrument of dissolution :—

- (1) The instrument shall set forth—
 - (a) the liabilities and assets of the society or branch in detail ; and
 - (b) the number of members and the nature of their interests in the society or branch ; and
 - (c) the claims of creditors (if any), and the provision to be made for their payment ; and
 - (d) the intended appropriation or division of the funds and property of the society or branch, unless the appropriation or division is stated in the instrument of dissolution to be left to the award of the chief registrar.
- (2) Alterations in the instrument of dissolution may be made with the like consents as are in this Act required for the dissolution of a society or branch, testified in the same manner.
- (3) A statutory declaration shall be made by one of the trustees, or by three members and the secretary of the society or branch, that the provisions of this Act have been complied with, and shall be sent to the registrar with the instrument of dissolution.
- (4) The instrument shall not in the case of a registered friendly society or branch direct or contain any provision for a division or appropriation of the funds of the society or branch, or any part thereof, otherwise than for the purpose of carrying into effect the objects of the society or branch as declared in the rules thereof, unless the claim of every member or person claiming any relief, annuity, or other benefit from the funds thereof is first duly satisfied, or adequate provisions are made for satisfying those claims.
- (5) The instrument of dissolution and all alterations therein shall be registered in manner in this Act provided for the registry of amendments of rules, and shall be binding upon all the members of the society or branch.
- (6) The registrar shall cause a notice of the dissolution to be advertised at the expense of the society or branch, and, unless within three months from the date of the Gazette in which the advertisement appears, a member or other person interested in or having any claim on the funds of the society or branch commences proceedings to set aside the dissolution of the society or branch, and the dissolution is set aside accordingly, the society or branch shall be legally dissolved from the date of that advertisement, and the requisite consents to the instrument of dissolution shall be considered to have been duly obtained without proof of the signatures thereto.

Dissolution
by award.

80. — (1) Upon the application made in writing under their hands—

- (a) of one-fifth of the whole number of members of a registered society or branch ; or

Section 80.

(b) in the case of a registered society or branch of one thousand members and not exceeding ten thousand, of one hundred members ; or

(c) in the case of a registered society or branch of more than ten thousand members, of five hundred members, the chief registrar may by himself or by any assistant registrar, or by any actuary or public auditor whom the chief registrar may appoint in writing under his hand, investigate the affairs of the society or branch, but shall give, not less than one month previous notice in writing to the society or branch whose affairs are to be investigated.

One month substituted for two months by sect. 8 of the Act of 1908.

(2) The application shall—

(a) state that the funds of the society or branch are insufficient to meet the existing claims thereon, or that the rates of contribution fixed in the rules of the society or branch are insufficient to cover the benefits assured ; and

(b) set forth the grounds on which the insufficiency is alleged ; and

(c) request an investigation into the affairs of the society or branch with a view to the dissolution thereof.

(3) If upon the investigation it appears that the funds of the society or branch are insufficient to meet the existing claims thereon, or that the rates of contribution fixed in the rules of the society or branch are insufficient to cover the benefits assured to be given by the society or branch, the chief registrar may, if he considers it expedient so to do, award that the society or branch be dissolved, and its affairs wound up, and shall direct in what manner the assets of the society or branch shall be divided or appropriated : Provided always, that the chief registrar may suspend his award for such period as he may deem necessary to enable the society or branch to make such alterations and adjustments of contributions and benefits as will in his judgment prevent the necessity of the award of dissolution being made.

(2) Where the court has made any such order, the court shall, in addition to any other powers for enforcing compliance with the order, have power, in any case where there is any pension or income payable to the person against whom the order is made and capable of being attached, after giving the person by whom the pension or income is payable an opportunity of being heard, to order that such part as the court may think fit of any such pension or income, be attached and paid to the person named by the court, and such further order shall be an authority to the person by whom such pension or income is payable to make the payment so ordered, and the receipt of the person to whom the payment is ordered to be made shall be a good discharge to the person by whom the pension or income is payable.

if there is any other person whose consent is also required; and if the consent of no other person is required, the Registrar-General may dispense with the necessity of obtaining any consent, or the court may, on application being made, consent to the marriage, and the consent of the court so given shall have the same effect as if it had been given by the person whose consent cannot be so obtained;

- (b) if any person whose consent is required refuses his consent, the court may, on application being made, consent to the marriage, and the consent of the court so given shall have the same effect as if it had been given by the person whose consent is so refused.

(2) The foregoing subsection shall apply to marriages intended to be solemnised on the issue of a licence by an ecclesiastical authority having power to issue such a licence, with the substitution of references to that authority for references to the superintendent registrar, and with the substitution of a reference to the Master of the Faculties for the reference to the Registrar-General.

- (a) if made to the High Court to be heard in chambers;
 (b) if made to the county court to be heard and determined by the registrar subject to appeal to the judge;
 (c) if made to a court of summary jurisdiction to be heard and determined otherwise than in open court; and shall provide that, where an application is made in consequence of a refusal to give consent, notice of the application shall be served on the person who has so refused consent.

(5) Sections sixteen and seventeen of the Marriage Act, 1823, are hereby repealed.

(6) Nothing in this section shall dispense with the necessity of obtaining the consent of the High Court to the marriage of a ward of court.

(7) This section shall not extend to Scotland.

10. In Scotland a father or mother acting as tutor of a pupil child by virtue of the common law or of the Guardianship of Infants Act, 1886, or of this Act, shall be deemed to be and always to have been a trustee within the meaning of the Trusts (Scotland) Act, 1921. Tutors. 11 & 12 Geo. 5, c. 58.

11.—(1) This Act may be cited as the Guardianship of Infants Act, 1925. Short title, construction, commencement and extent.

(2) This Act shall (except so far as it amends the law relating to the marriage of infants) be construed as one with the Guardianship of Infants Act, 1886, and that Act and this Act may be cited together as the Guardianship of Infants Acts, 1886 and 1925.

(3) This Act shall come into operation on the expiration of two months after the passing thereof.

(4) This Act shall not extend to Northern Ireland.

HIGHWAYS AND LOCOMOTIVES AMENDMENT ACT, 1878.

LOCOMOTIVES ACT, 1898.

[41 & 42 VICT. C. 77; 61 & 62 VICT. C. 29.]

Jurisdiction.—By the Highways and Locomotives Amendment Act, 1878, s. 23, the authority liable for the repair of any highway might recover in a summary manner extraordinary expenses, shown by the certificate of their surveyor to have been incurred in repairing any highway by reason of damage caused by excessive weight passing along the same, or extraordinary traffic thereon from the person by whose orders the same had been conducted. Under that Act the county court had no jurisdiction, but by sect. 12, sub-s. 1 (a), of the Locomotives Act, 1898, expenses were made to be no longer recoverable in a summary manner, but when not exceeding 250*l.* might be sued for in the county court; if exceeding that amount, in the High Court. by sect. 12, sub-s. 1 (c), of the last mentioned Act, the words "by or in consequence of whose order" were substituted for "by whose order," an amendment no doubt made with the object of imposing liability on the originator of any work requiring the carriage of heavy materials, and avoiding the effect given to the words "by whose orders" in Kent County Council v. Gerard (Lord), (1897) A. C. 633; 66 L. J. Q. B. 677. "In consequence of whose order" has been held to mean "as a necessary consequence of whose order" (Egham Rural District Council v. Gordon, (1902) 2 K. B. 120; 71 L. J. K. B. 523).

The expenses of extraordinary traffic not exceeding 250*l.* caused by light locomotives within sect. 1 of the Locomotives on Highways Act, 1896, as extended by the Heavy Motor Car Order, 1904 (see 1898 Act, sect. 17, sub-s. 2), can be recovered in the county court (Rex v. Judge James, (1908) 1 K. B. 958; 77 L. J. K. B. 402).

Practice.—Proceedings must be commenced within twelve months of the damage done, or, when the damage is in consequence of any particular building contract or work extending over a long period, must be commenced not later than six months after the completion of the contract or work; as to what is "work extending over a long period," and when the six months' limit begins to run, see Bromley Rural District Council v. Croydon Corporation (C. A.), (1908) 1 K. B. 353; 77 L. J. K. B. 335, and Lancaster Rural District Council v. Fisher, (1907) 2 K. B. 516; 76 L. J. K. B. 1070. The proceeding will be by plaint and summons in the ordinary way.

Appeal as in an ordinary case under sect. 120 of the County Courts Act, 1888 (see Part I.).

41 & 42 VICT. C. 77.

EXTRAORDINARY TRAFFIC.

23. Where by a certificate of their surveyor it appears to the authority which is liable or has undertaken to repair any highway, whether a main road or not, that, having regard to the average expense of repairing highways in the neighbourhood, extraordinary expenses have been incurred by such authority in repairing such highway by reason of the damage caused by excessive weight passing along the same, or extraordinary traffic thereon, such authority may recover in a summary manner from any person by whose order such weight or traffic has been conducted the amount of such expenses as may be proved to the satisfaction of the court having cognizance of the case to have been incurred by such authority by reason of the damage arising from such weight or traffic as aforesaid.

Provided that any person against whom expenses are or may be recoverable under this section may enter into an agreement with such authority as is mentioned in this section for the payment to them of a composition in respect of such weight or traffic, and thereupon the persons so paying the same shall not be subject to any proceedings under this section.

Extraordinary traffic. What is? If the road was adapted to the traffic and the traffic was such as might be expected on the road in the ordinary course, such traffic was in its character not extraordinary (Hill v. Thomas, (1893) 2 Q. B. 333; 62 L. J. M. C. 161; Ledbury Rural District Council v. Somerset, (1914) W. N. 16th May, 1914, p. 222), and traffic caused by a recognized local industry could not be called extraordinary (Wallington v. Hoskins, 1880) 6 Q. B. D. 206; 50 L. J. M. C. 19); though the same traffic might be extraordinary if the road was not adapted to or generally used for such traffic (Geirionydd Rural District Council v. Green, (1909) 2 K. B. 845; 78 L. J. K. B. 1039; Worsborough Urban District Council v. Barnsley British Co-operative Society, (1916) 1 A. C. 291; 85 L. J. K. B. 103).

On the other hand the fact that a class of traffic has grown up to meet the demands of a district, such as motor omnibuses, will not prevent such traffic being "extraordinary traffic" if in view of other circumstances the traffic is in fact extraordinary (Abingdon Rural District Council v. City of Oxford Electric Tramways, Ltd., (1917) 86 L. J. K. B. 286; C. A. (1917) 2 K. B. 318).

Whether traffic is "extraordinary traffic" or not is a question of fact. Traffic due to a normal increase of traffic in consequence of the development of the district is not "extraordinary traffic." Continued user of a road for traffic, which at the time of its first user is extraordinary traffic, may in time convert such traffic into ordinary traffic. No rule can be laid down as to what such length of time must be. Ordinary traffic on a particular road if diverted, though by the action of the local authority, to another road may be "extraordinary traffic" upon such other road (Barnsley British Co-operative Society v. Worsborough Urban Council, (1916) 85 L. J. K. B. (H. L.) 103; Butt & Co. v. Weston-super-Mare Urban Council, (1922) 1 A. C. 340; 91 L. J. (H. L.) 305).

The local authority must prove that the expenses of repair were extraordinary and to do so regard must be had to the average expense of repairing similar highways in that neighbourhood (Billerica Rural District Council v. Poplar Guardians (C. A.), (1911) 2 K. B. 801; 80 L. J. K. B. 124; Colchester Corporation v. Gepp (C. A.), (1912) 1 K. B. 477; 81 L. J. K. B. 356).

61 & 62 VICT. C. 29.

Amendments
as to proceedings for extraordinary
damage.

12. Section twenty-three of the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878 (which relates to the recovery of expenses of extraordinary traffic), shall be amended as follows:—

- (a) Expenses under that section shall cease to be recoverable in a summary manner, but may be recovered if not exceeding two hundred and fifty pounds in the county court, and if exceeding that sum in the High Court.
- (b) Proceedings for the recovery of any expenses incurred after the passing of this Act shall be commenced within twelve months of the time at which the damage has been done, or where the damage is the consequence of any particular building contract, or work extending over a long period, shall be commenced not later than six months after the completion of the contract or work.
- (c) There shall be substituted for the words "by whose order" the words "by or in consequence of whose order."

Ripon Rural District Board v. Armitage, (1919) 88 L. J. K. B. 728.

Interpretation and saving.

17.—(1) In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires,—
The expression "locomotive" means a locomotive propelled by steam or other than animal power;
The expression "waggon" includes any truck, cart, carriage, or other vehicle;

c. 36.

(2) Nothing in this Act shall affect light locomotives within the meaning of the Locomotives on Highways Act, 1896.

Proceedings under the above section are in the nature of an action for personal tort, so cannot be taken against an executor (Story v. Sheard, (1892) 2 Q. B. 515; 65 L. J. M. C. 178); as to when the six months' limit begins to run, see Bromley Rural District Council v. Croydon Corporation (C. A.), (1908) 1 K. B. 353; 77 L. J. K. B. 335, and Lancaster Rural District Council v. Fisher, (1907) 2 K. B. 516; 76 L. J. K. B. 1070. "Completion of the work" means completion so far as the constructional work is concerned, and if that consists of several parts so closely connected that each would be useless without the others, the six months' period runs from the completion of the whole work (Carlisle Rural District Council v. Carlisle Corporation, (1909) 1 K. B. 471; 78 L. J. K. B. 307; see also Reigate Rural District Council v. Sutton District Water Co., 78 L. J. K. B. 315).

Sect. 17, sub-s. 2, does not relieve a light locomotive which causes extraordinary expenses from liability (Rex v. Judge James, (1908) 1 K. B. 958; 77 L. J. K. B. 402).

THE HOSIERY MANUFACTURE (WAGES) ACT, 1874.

[37 & 38 VICT. C. 48.]

Jurisdiction and Practice.—The county court of the district within which the offence is committed has jurisdiction (sects. 3, 4). The fines are to be recovered by plaint and summons according to the ordinary practice of the court (see C.C. Rules, Order L. rr. 35, 36).

Appeal will be under sect. 120 of the County Courts Act, 1888 (see Part I.).

WHEREAS a custom has prevailed among the employers of artificers in the hosiery manufacture of letting out frames and machinery to the artificers employed by them, and it is desirable to prohibit such letting of frames and machinery, and the stoppage of wages for frame rents and charges in the hosiery manufacture :

Be it enacted . . . as follows :

Penalty for bargaining to deduct and for deducting from wages.

A deduction of a fine from a workman's wages, in accordance with the rules of a factory, for absenting himself from work, is not within this section (Willis v. Thorp, (1875) L. R. 10 Q. B. 383; 44 L. J. Q. B. 137).

Section 4.

Penalty for using frame otherwise than for the purpose for which same lent.

If any frame or machine which shall have been entrusted to any artificer or other person by his employer for the purpose of being used in the hosiery manufacture for such employer, or in any process incident to such manufacture, shall, whilst the same shall be so entrusted, be worked, used, or employed without the consent in writing of such employer or other person so entrusting such frame or machine, in the manufacture of any goods or articles whatever for any other person than the person by whom such frame or machine shall have been so entrusted, then and in every such case the artificer or other person to whom the same shall have been so entrusted shall forfeit and pay the sum of ten shillings for every day on any part of which any such frame or machine shall have been so worked, used, or employed, to be recoverable by and for the benefit of the person who shall have so entrusted the same, in the county court for the district where the offence shall have been committed, with full costs of suit.

5. No action, suit, or set-off between employer and artificer shall be allowed for any deduction or stoppage of wages, nor for any contract hereby declared illegal.

(15 GEO. V. c. 14.)

NOTE.—The Housing of the Working Classes Acts, 1890 and 1903, and the Housing and Town Planning Act, 1909, are repealed by the above Act in so far as they were dealt with here. The provisions giving jurisdiction to the county court formerly in these statutes now appear in the Housing Act, 1925, and are set out, post, pp. 2054—2058.

Sect. 1 of the above Act makes it an implied condition that in the letting of houses of certain rentals, the house is in all respects fit for human habitation and will be so kept by the landlord during the tenancy. This section, and sect. 2 (which applies the provisions of sect. 1 to houses occupied by workmen engaged in agriculture) give no special jurisdiction to the county court, but as the sections are quoted in many cases coming into county courts it has been thought expedient to set them out below :—

1.—(1) In any contract for letting for habitation a dwelling-house at a rent not exceeding—

(a) in the case of a house situate in the administrative county of London, forty pounds ;

(b) in the case of a house situate elsewhere, twenty-six pounds ; there shall, notwithstanding any stipulation to the contrary, be implied a condition that the house is at the commencement of the tenancy, and an undertaking that the house will be kept by the landlord during the tenancy, in all respects reasonably fit for human habitation :

Provided that the condition and undertaking aforesaid shall not be implied when a house is let for a term of not less than three years upon the terms that it be put by the lessee into a condition reasonably fit for habitation, and the lease is not determinable at the option of either party before the expiration of three years.

(2) The landlord, or any person authorised by him in writing, may at reasonable times of the day, on giving twenty-four hours' notice in writing to the tenant or occupier, enter any premises to which this section applies for the purpose of viewing the state and condition thereof.

(3) In this section the expression " landlord " means any person who lets for habitation to a tenant any house under any contract referred to in this section, and includes his successors in title, and the expression " dwelling-house " includes part of a dwelling-house.

(4) This section applies to a contract made either before or after the commencement of this Act :

Provided that, in the case of a house situate elsewhere than in the administrative county of London, or a borough or an urban district with a population according to the last census for the time being of fifty thousand or upwards, the rent whereof exceeds sixteen pounds, this section shall not apply if the contract was made before the thirty-first day of July, nineteen hundred and twenty-three.

2.—(1) Notwithstanding any agreement to the contrary, where under any contract of employment of a workman employed in agriculture the provision of a house or part of a house for the occupation of the workman forms part of the remuneration of the workman, and the provisions of the foregoing section are inapplicable by reason only of the house or part of the house not being Conditions to be implied on letting houses for habitation.

Application to houses occupied by workmen engaged in agriculture.

let to the workman, there shall be implied as part of the contract of employment, the like condition and undertaking as would be implied under those provisions if the house or part of the house were so let, and those provisions shall apply accordingly as if incorporated in this section, with the substitution of "employer" for "landlord," and such other modifications as may be necessary :

Provided that this section shall not affect the obligation of any person other than the employer to repair a house to which this section applies, or any remedy for enforcing any such obligation.

(2) This section shall apply whether the contract of employment was entered into before or after the commencement of this Act, but shall not apply in respect of any period during which the house was occupied under any such contract before the first day of January, nineteen hundred and twenty-one.

A tenant cannot usually recover from his landlord under this section unless he has given notice of the defect to the landlord (Murphy v. Hurley, (1922) A. C. 369; Morgan v. Liverpool Corporation, (1927) 96 L. J. K. B. 234). A possible exception may arise if the defect is a latent one. See Fisher v. Walters, (1926) 2 K. B. 315; 95 L. J. K. B. 846.

In Stanton v. Southwick, (1920) 89 L. J. K. B. 1066, a divisional court held that where the dwelling-house was infested by rats coming from a sewer this was not a breach of the above sections.

In Ryall v. Kidwell & Son, C. A. [1914] 3 K. B. 135; 83 L. J. K. B. 1140, the court held that a stranger to the contract of tenancy has no remedy for a breach of the undertaking mentioned in the above sect. 1 (see Cavalier v. Pope, (1906) A. C. 428; 75 L. J. K. B. 690), hence the infant daughter of tenant cannot recover damages for injuries caused by landlord's default (Dobson v. Horsely, (1915) 1 K. B. 634; 84 L. J. K. B. 399, distinguishing Miller v. Hancock, (1893) 2 Q. B. 177. See also Groves v. Western Mansions, Ltd., (1916) 33 T. L. R. 76, and Fairman v. Perpetual Investment Building Society, (1922) A. C. 74).

On taking furnished lodgings no warranty is implied that the proposed tenant is a fit and proper person to occupy them (Humphrey v. Miller and Others, (1917) 2 K. B. 122).

PROVISIONS OF HOUSING ACT, 1925, GIVING JURISDICTION TO COUNTY COURTS.

The county court is given jurisdiction under this Act in five cases.

(1) Under sect. 7 (4), where bye-laws have been made by a local authority imposing obligations in respect of houses intended or used for occupation by the working classes under sect. 6 (1) of the Act, and the person who has to obey them, alleges that he holds the premises under a lease or agreement and that compliance with such bye-laws is contrary to the provisions of the lease or agreement, or that a part of the expenses ought to be borne by the lessor or superior landlord. In such a case the local authority may apply to the county court, which after hearing the parties may order (a) that the provisions of the lease or agreement be relaxed so far as they interfere with the carrying out of the bye-laws; (b) grant to the person who carries out the bye-laws, when properly carried out, a charging order charging on the premises an annuity to repay the expenses, or such part of the expenses as the court considers ought to be so charged. The annuity is to be of such amount and extend over such number of years as the court may determine. For form of application and order, see Forms 454 and 457.

(2) Under sect. 13, where default is made in obeying a closing order under the Act, possession may be obtained in the county court by the owner or the local authority under sects. 138 to 145 of the County Courts Act, 1888, whatever may be the value or rent of the house.

(3) Under sect. 30 where the court is satisfied, on the application of any person entitled to an interest in any land used wholly or partly as a site for houses for the working classes, that the premises on the land are, or are likely to become, dangerous, or injurious to health or unfit for habitation, and that the applicant's interests are thereby prejudiced, the court may make an order empowering the applicant to enter on the land, and within a fixed time carry out the necessary work, and order also that any lease, or agreement for lease, held from the applicant, and any derivative underlease shall be determined subject to such conditions and payment of such compensation as the court thinks just.

The order of the court must include provisions to secure that the work is carried out, and may authorise the local authority where the land is situate, to exercise such supervision or take such action as may be necessary for the purpose. For form of application, see Form 456.

(4) Under sect. 53, similar powers are given to the court to authorise the superior landlord to enter and execute works for carrying out a scheme of improvement or reconstruction approved by the local authority. For form of application, see Form 456.

(5) Under sect. 102, upon the application of the local authority or any person interested in a house, the court may vary the terms of a lease, or restrictive covenant affecting such house, so as to enable it to be converted from a single tenement into two or more tenements, on such conditions and terms as the court may think just. The application must be founded on the allegation that the character of the neighbourhood has changed, and an opportunity of being heard must be given to all parties interested. For form of application, see Form 455.

Rules have been made (which are to stand as Order L., r. 59) to enable the county courts to carry out the duties imposed upon them by the statute.

See these rules, post, p. 2058, and Forms 454, 455, 456 and 457, C.C. Forms.

6.—(1) The power of making and enforcing bye-laws under the Public Health Act, 1875, and the Public Health (London) Act, 1891, shall include the making and enforcing by local authorities of bye-laws in the case of houses intended or used for occupation by the working classes :—

Bye-laws respecting houses divided into separate tenements.

(a) For fixing and from time to time varying the number of persons who may occupy a house which is let in lodgings or occupied by members of more than one family, and for separation of the sexes therein :—

15 Geo 5, c. 14.

(b) For the registration and inspection of such houses ;

(c) For enforcing drainage and promoting cleanliness and ventilation of such houses ;

(d) For requiring provision adequate for the use of and readily accessible to each family of—

(i.) Closet accommodation ;

(ii.) Water supply and washing accommodation ;

(iii.) Accommodation for the storage, preparation, and cooking of food ; and, where necessary, for securing separate accommodation as aforesaid for every part of such house which is occupied as a separate dwelling ;

(e) For the keeping in repair and adequate lighting of any common staircase in such houses ;

(f) For securing stability, and the prevention of and safety from fire ;

(g) For the cleansing and redecoration of the premises at stated times, and for the paving of the courts and courtyards ;

- (h) For the provision of handrails, where necessary, for all staircases of such houses ;
- (i) For securing the adequate lighting of every room in such houses ;
- (j) As respects houses situate in the administrative county of London, for the taking of precautions in the case of infectious disease ; and any such bye-laws, in addition to any other penalty, may prohibit the letting for occupation by members of more than one family of any such house unless the same are complied with, subject in the case of houses so let or occupied at the time when such bye-laws come into force to the allowance of a reasonable time for the execution of any works necessary to comply therewith.

7.—(4) Where the person on whom obligations are imposed by any bye-laws made for the purposes specified in sub-section (1) of the preceding section with respect to houses intended or used for occupation as therein mentioned holds the premises under a lease or agreement and satisfies the local authority that compliance with the bye-laws is contrary to the provisions of the lease or agreement, or that the whole or any part of the expenses of carrying out the obligations ought to be borne by his lessor or other superior landlord, the local authority may make application to the county court, and the county court may, after giving the lessor or any such superior landlord an opportunity of being heard,—

- (a) In the first case, order that the provisions of the lease or agreement be relaxed so far as they are inconsistent with the requirements of the bye-laws ;
- (b) In the second case, grant to the person who carries out the works necessary for compliance with the bye-laws, on proof to the satisfaction of the local authority that the works have been properly carried out, a charging order charging on the premises an annuity to repay the expenses properly incurred in carrying out the works or such part of those expenses as the county court consider ought to be so charged.

(5) The annuity shall be of such amount and extend over such number of years as the county court may determine.

Recovery of possession of houses in respect of which closing orders made.

13.—(1) Where default is made as respects any dwelling-house in obeying a closing order, possession of the house may be obtained whatever may be the value or rent of the house, by or on behalf of the owner or local authority, either under sections one hundred and thirty-eight to one hundred and forty-five of the County Courts Act, 1888, or under the Small Tenements Recovery Act, 1838, as in the cases therein provided for, and in either case may be obtained as if the owner or local authority were the landlord.

(2) Any expenses incurred by a local authority under this section may be recovered from the owner of the house summarily as a civil debt.

As to the manner in which the Local Government Board are entitled to conduct an appeal to them from an order to close premises, see Local Government Board v. Arlidge, (1915) A. C. 120; 84 L. J. K. B. (H. L.) 72. As to power of Local Government Board to quash or alter the order of the local authority, although the local authority had no option but to make the demolition order, see Lancaster v. Burnley Corporation, (1915) 1 K. B. 259; 84 L. J. K. B. 181. As to date at which value has to be ascertained, see London County Council v. Wilson's Executors, (1916) 1 K. B. 837.

Practice.—The owner or local authority may recover possession as if they were landlord of the premises. Sect. 13 seems to make the closing order equivalent to a notice to quit and a determination of any tenancy, it will therefore be expedient to be in a position to prove the making of and the default in obeying the closing order. Notice of a closing order, if owner cannot be found, is sufficiently served by leaving a sealed copy of the order addressed to the owner at the premises in manner directed by sect. 121 of the Act (Arlidge v. Hampstead Borough Council, (1916) 85 L. J. Ch. 91). The Increase of Rent Act, 1920, does not affect closing orders under the Act, see sect. 128, post, and Parry v. Harding, (1925) 1 K. B. 111; 94 L. J. K. B. 37.

30.—(1) Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the court, on an application in accordance with rules of court of any person entitled to any interest in any land used in whole or in part as a site for houses for the working classes, that the premises on the land are or are likely to become dangerous or injurious to health or unfit for human habitation, and that the interests of the applicant are thereby prejudiced, the court may make an order empowering the applicant forthwith to enter on the land and within the time fixed by the order to execute such works as may be necessary, and may order that any lease or agreement for a lease held from the applicant and any derivative underlease shall be determined, subject to such conditions and to the payment of such compensation as the court may think just.

authorise superior landlord to enter and execute works.

(2) The court shall include in its order provisions to secure that the proposed works are carried out and may authorise the local authority in whose area the land is situated to exercise such supervision or take such action as may be necessary for the purpose.

(3) For the purposes of this section, "court" means the High Court of Justice, and the Court of Chancery of the county palatine of Lancaster or Durham, or the county court, where those courts respectively have jurisdiction.

Supplemental.

53.—(1) Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the court, on an application in accordance with rules of court of any person entitled to any interest in any land used in whole or in part as a site for dwelling-houses for the working classes, that the applicant should be entrusted with the carrying out of a scheme of improvement or reconstruction approved by the local authority of the district in which the land is situate, the court may make an order empowering the applicant forthwith to enter on the land and within the time fixed by the order to execute such works as may be necessary, and may order that any lease or agreement for a lease held from the applicant and any derivative underlease shall be determined, subject to such conditions and to the payment of such compensation as the court may think just.

superior landlord to enter and
works.

(2) The court shall include in its order provisions to secure that the proposed works are carried out and may authorise the local authority in whose area the land is situated or which has approved a scheme of improvement or reconstruction under this section, to exercise such supervision or take such action as may be necessary for the purpose.

(3) For the purposes of this section "court" means the High Court, and the Court of Chancery of the county palatine of Lancaster or Durham or the county court, where those courts respectively have jurisdiction.

authorise conversion of house into
tenements.

102 Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the county court on an application by the local authority or any person interested in a house that, owing to changes in the character of the neighbourhood in which such house is situate, the house cannot readily be let as a single tenement but could readily be let for occupation if converted into two or more tenements, and that, by reason of the provisions of the lease or of any restrictive covenant affecting the house or otherwise, such conversion is prohibited or restricted, the court, after giving any person interested an opportunity of being heard, may vary the terms of the lease or other instrument imposing the prohibition or restriction so as to enable the house to be so converted subject to such conditions and upon such terms as the court may think just.

This section is of general application and does not apply only to tenements which, if converted, could be let for occupation by persons of the working class (Johnston v. Maconochie and Others, (1920) 3 K. B. 417; (1921) 1 K. B. 239; 89 L. J. K. B. 1045; 90 L. J. K. B. 83).

As to the specific findings which, in an application under this section, it is necessary that the county court should make, see Alliance Investment Co. v. Berton, (1923) 92 L. J. K. B. 750.

128. Nothing in the Increase of Rent and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions) Act, 1920, or in the enactments amending that Act, shall be deemed to affect the provisions of Part I. of this Act relating to the obtaining possession of a house with respect to which a closing order has been made, or to prevent a local authority from obtaining possession of any house the possession of which is required by them for the purpose of exercising their powers under this Act or under any scheme made under this Act or any enactment repealed by this Act.

(13 & 14 GEO. V., c. 8.)

This statute, which came into force on January 1st, 1924, consolidates and amends the law relating to Industrial Assurance, and repeals the Collecting Societies and Industrial Assurance Companies Act, 1896, gives (sect. 32) jurisdiction to the county court in all disputes between the society or company, and (a) member or person assured; (b) a person claiming through a member or person assured or under or in respect of any policy or under the rules, or under this Act; (c) a person aggrieved who has ceased to be a member, or person claiming through such person. The court is that court where the member or person resides, and such court may settle the dispute according to the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act, 1896.

32.—(1) In all disputes between a collecting society or industrial assurance company, and Disputes.

(a) any member or person assured; or

(b) any person claiming through a member or person assured, or under or in respect of any policy, or under the rules, or under this Act; or

(c) any person aggrieved who has ceased to be a member or any person claiming through such person aggrieved, that member or person may, notwithstanding any provisions of the rules of the society or company to the contrary, apply to the county court, or to a court of summary jurisdiction for the place where that member or person resides, and the court may (but in the case of a court of summary jurisdiction only if the amount of the claim does not exceed twenty-five pounds and not less than fourteen days' notice of the application has been given to the society or company) settle that dispute according to the provisions of the Friendly Societies Act, 1896, and, where a dispute is settled under this section by a court of summary jurisdiction, the court may make such order as to costs as it considers fair and reasonable:

Provided that any such dispute may be referred to the Commissioner—

(a) by such collecting society, industrial assurance company, member or person as aforesaid, if the amount of the claim does not exceed fifty pounds and the legality of the policy is not questioned, and fraud or misrepresentation is not alleged; and

(b) in any case, by both parties, without restriction as to the amount of claim or the nature of the question to be decided;

and, where a dispute is so referred, the Commissioner may deal with the dispute as if it were a dispute referred to him under the provisions of section sixty-eight of the Friendly Societies Act, 1896, and the consent of the Treasury to his dealing therewith had been given.

(2) In any case where a doubt arises as to the continued existence of the person on whose life a policy of industrial assurance was taken out, the Commissioner may, on the application of the owner of the policy or of the society or company which issued the policy, award that the society or company shall pay to the owner of the policy the surrender value thereof at the time of the award, and the award shall be a discharge for all claims by or against the society or company in connection with the policy.

THE INDUSTRIAL AND PROVIDENT SOCIETIES ACT, 1893; AND AMENDMENT ACT, 1913.

[56 & 57 VICT. C. 39; 3 & 4 GEO. V. C. 31.]

Jurisdiction under this Act relates to : (1) recovery of money payable to societies by members (sect. 23); (2) defaults of officers (sect. 48); (3) decision of disputes (sect. 49); (4) enforcement of awards on disputes (sect. 49); (5) to setting aside deeds of dissolution of societies (sect. 61).

Practice.—The Act does not specify the court where the proceedings should be commenced, except under sect. 23; in other cases proceed therefore in the court within the district of which the head office of the society was situate, or the defendant dwells. The practice is identical with that under the Building Societies Acts, 1874 and 1894, and is governed by Order XLI., ante, p. 1778.

In what Name sued.—Registration renders the society a body corporate by the name mentioned in the acknowledgment of registry, and it should be sued in that name (sect. 21 of Act).

Debentures.—Debentures issued by a society duly registered charging the society's personal chattels by way of security for money are not exempted by sect. 17 of the Bills of Sale Act (1878) Amendment Act, 1882, from the statutory requirements in respect of bills of sale (Great Northern Rail. Co. v. Coal Co-operative Society, (1896) 1 Ch. 187; 65 L. J. Ch. 214).

This jurisdiction is exerciseable, although the defendant has ceased to be a member of the society before the action is brought (Gwendolen Land Society v. Wicks, (1904) 2 K. B. 622; 73 L. J. K. B. 815).

Provided that in every case of dispute cognisable under the rules of a society by a court of summary jurisdiction, it shall be lawful for the parties thereto to enter into a consent referring such dispute to the county court, which may hear and determine the matter in dispute.

(5) Where the rules contain no direction as to disputes, or where no decision is made on a dispute within forty days after application to the society for a reference under its rules, the member or person aggrieved may apply either to the county court, or to a court of summary jurisdiction, which may hear and determine the matter in dispute.

(6) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Arbitration Act, 1889, or in any other Act, the court and the chief or other registrar shall not be compelled to state a special case on any question of law arising in the case, but the court . . . may, at the request of either party, state a case for the opinion in England of the Supreme Court of Judicature, . . . on any question of law, and may also grant to either party such discovery as to documents and otherwise, or such inspection of documents, . . . as might be granted by any court of law or equity, such discovery to be made on behalf of the society by such officer of the same as such court . . . may determine.

[42 & 43 VICT. c. 19 ; 51 & 52 VICT. c. 19 ; 61 & 62 VICT. c. 60.]

By the Act of 1879 the local authority were permitted to license "retreats" for the reception, control, and curative treatment of habitual drunkards. Persons were admitted to such retreats on their own application. The application was to be accompanied by a statutory declaration of two persons to the effect that the applicant was an habitual drunkard as defined by the Act, and the signature of the applicant attested (see 1898 Act, s. 16) by one justice.

The 1898 Act allows habitual drunkards convicted on indictment to be detained in a State inebriate reformatory or a certified inebriate reformatory, the managers of which are willing to receive him, and also allows habitual drunkards, four times convicted of drunkenness, to be detained in any certified inebriate reformatory, the managers of which are willing to receive them.

The 1888 Act only amends the 1879 Act in matters having no relation to county courts.

Jurisdiction.—The 1879 Act, s. 18, allows county court judges for the districts in which retreats are situate to authorise persons to visit and report on patients detained under that Act, and on their report to order, should they see fit, the detained person's discharge.

Under the 1898 Act, s. 12, a judge of county courts, if satisfied that any person detained in a State or certified inebriate reformatory has property more than sufficient to maintain his family, may make an order for the payment of the expenses incurred in relation to his detention, and the order may be enforced as a judgment of the county court ; sect. 27 of the same Act defines what expenses means.

Practice is provided by Order L. rr. 12, 13, infra.

42 & 43 VICT. c. 19.

Judge of High Court of Justice, etc., may make orders to inspect.

18. A judge of the High Court of Justice, on an application ex parte at chambers, or a county court judge, within whose district the retreat is situated, may at any time, by order under his hand, authorise and direct any person or persons to visit and examine a person detained in a retreat under this Act, and to inquire into and report on any matters which such judge may think fit in relation to the person so detained. The judge, on receiving such report, may, if he shall think fit, order the discharge of any person so detained from any such retreat.

61 & 62 VICT. c. 60.

Power to recover expenses against inebriate's estate.

12.—(1) If it is made to appear to a judge of county courts that any person detained in a State or certified inebriate reformatory has any real or personal property more than sufficient to maintain his family, if any, the judge may make an order for the payment of the expenses incurred in relation to the detention of that person, and the order may be enforced against any property of that person in the same way as a judgment of the county court.

Section 12.

(2) The order may be made on application—

- (a) in the case of a person detained in a State inebriate reformatory, of such person as may be authorised by the Secretary of State in that behalf; and
- (b) in the case of a person detained in a certified inebriate reformatory, of the managers of the reformatory, or any two of them, or of any authority contributing to the maintenance of such person.

COUNTY COURT RULES—ORDER L.

12. An application to the judge under sect. 18 of the Inebriates Act, 1879, shall be intituled in the matter of the Act and of the person detained, and shall be made in accordance with the rules for the time being in force as to interlocutory applications, and supported by affidavit.

13. An application under sect. 12 of the Inebriates Act, 1898, shall be made by petition, and the same procedure shall be followed and the same costs allowed as on a petition under Order XXXVIII.

For practice on interlocutory applications, see County Court Rules, Order XII. r. 11, Part I.; for Order XXXVIII., see Part I.

Removal of restriction as to appointment of certain persons to be trustees.

(2) A person may be appointed to be a judicial trustee of a trust although he is already a trustee of the trust.

6. On the appointment of any person to be judicial trustee the court shall make such vesting or other orders and exercise such other powers as may be necessary for vesting the trust property in the judicial trustee either as sole trustee or jointly with other trustees as the case requires. APPOINTMENT OF OFFICIAL OF COURT TO BE JUDICIAL TRUSTEE. Official judicial trustee.

7.—(1) Where an official of the court is appointed judicial trustee, the official solicitor of the court shall (subject to the provisions hereinafter contained in rules twenty-nine, thirty, and thirty-one) be so appointed, unless, for special reasons, the court directs that some other official of the court should be so appointed.

(2) Any official of the court appointed to be a judicial trustee shall, on his ceasing to hold office, cease to be such a trustee without any formal resignation.

(3) Where an official of the court is judicial trustee, any trust property vested in or held by him, shall be vested in and held by him under his official title and not in his own name.

(4) Where an official of the court appointed to be a judicial trustee of a trust dies, or ceases to hold office, his successor in office shall, unless the court otherwise directs, become judicial trustee of the trust without any order of the court or formal appointment, and the trust property shall, without any conveyance, assignment, or transfer, in such a case become vested in the successor as it was vested in his predecessor in office.

Security.

9.—(1) A judicial trustee, if not an official of the court, must give security to the court for the due application of the trust property, unless the court dispenses with security under this rule.

(2) The court may, on the appointment of a judicial trustee, or at any time during his continuance in office as judicial trustee, dispense with security on the application either of the person who is to be appointed or is judicial trustee, or of any person appearing to the court to be interested in the trust, and shall do so where a judicial trustee is appointed on the application of a person creating or intending to create a trust, and that person desires that security should be dispensed with, unless for special reasons the court consider that security is in such a case necessary or desirable.

(3) The security must be given, either by recognizance, bond, or otherwise, as the court directs, and with such sureties as the court approves.

(4) If the court is satisfied that sufficient provision is made for the safety of the capital of the trust property, the amount of the security shall, in ordinary cases, be an amount exceeding by twenty per centum the income of the trust property as estimated by the court.

(5) The court may at any time require that the amount or nature of the security given by a judicial trustee under this rule be varied, or that security be given where it has previously been dispensed with, and a judicial trustee shall comply with any such requirement.

(6) It shall be a condition of every recognizance, bond, or other form of security given under this rule that the judicial trustee shall give immediate notice to the court of the death or insolvency of any of his sureties.

(7) Any recognizance, bond, or other form of security given for the purpose of this rule may be vacated in such manner and subject to such conditions as the court may direct.

(8) Where security is not dispensed with, the appointment of a person to be judicial trustee shall not take effect until he has given the security required by the court under this rule.

(9) Any premium payable by a judicial trustee to any guarantee company on account of his security may, if the court so directs, be paid out of the trust property.

Trust account at bank and custody of document.

10.—(1) When a judicial trustee is appointed, a separate account for receipts and payments on behalf of the trust must be kept in the name of the trustees at some bank approved by the court.

(2) All title deeds and all certificates and other documents which are evidence of the title of the trustee to any of the trust property shall be deposited either with that bank or in such other custody as the court directs.

(3) The deeds or documents must be deposited in the names of the trustees, and the judicial trustee must give notice to the body or person with whom the deeds or documents are so deposited not to deliver any of them over to any person except on a request signed by the judicial trustee and countersigned by the officer of the court, and also to allow any person authorised by the officer of the court in writing to inspect them during business hours.

Rule 10.

(4) The judicial trustee must deposit with the court a list of all deeds or documents deposited in any custody in pursuance of this rule, and must give information to the court from time to time of any variation to be made in the list.

(5) The judicial trustee must, if at any time directed by the court, give an order to the bank at which the trust account is kept, not to pay at any one time any sum over a specified amount out of the trust account except on an order countersigned by the officer of the court.

(6) Any payments on account of the income of the trust property may be provided for by means of a standing order to the bank at which the trust account is kept.

(7) The court may give such directions to the judicial trustee as may, in the opinion of the court, be necessary or expedient for carrying this rule into effect, and for securing the safety of the trust property.

(8) Where an official of the court is judicial trustee, the court may direct that, instead of a separate account of the receipts and payments on behalf of the trust being kept at some bank approved by the court, all receipts on behalf of the trust may be dealt with, and all payments on behalf of the trust may be made, in such manner, and subject to such regulations as to the accounts to be kept of the receipts and payments and the procedure to be followed in dealing therewith, as the Treasury direct.

11. A judicial trustee must pay all money coming into his hands on account of his trust without delay to the trust account at the bank, and if he keeps any such money in his hands for a longer time than the court considers necessary, shall be liable to pay interest upon it at such rate not exceeding five per centum as the court may fix for the time during which the money remains in his hands. Judicial trustee not to keep money in his hands.

12.—(1) A judicial trustee may at any time request the court to give him directions as to the trust or its administration. Directions to judicial trustees.

(2) The request must be accompanied by a statement of the facts with regard to which directions are required, and by the fee required under these rules in respect of a communication from the court with regard to the administration of the trust.

(3) The court may require the trustee or any other person to attend at chambers if it appears that such an attendance is necessary or convenient for the purpose of obtaining any information or explanation required for properly giving directions, or for the purpose of explaining the nature of the directions.

13. The court, if satisfied that there is no reasonable doubt of any fact which affects the administration of a trust by a judicial trustee, may give directions to the judicial trustee to act without formal proof of the fact. Power to dispense with formal evidence.

ACCOUNTS AND AUDIT.

14.—(1) The court shall give directions to a judicial trustee as to the date to which the accounts of the trust are to be made up in each year, and shall fix in each year the time after that date within which the accounts are to be delivered to it for audit. Accounts and audit.

officer of the court, but the court, if it considers that the accounts are likely to involve questions of difficulty, may refer them to a professional accountant for report, and order the payment to him of such amount in respect of his report as the court may fix.

Filing and inspection of accounts.

15.—(1) The accounts of any trust of which there is a judicial trustee, with a note of any corrections made upon the audit, shall be filed as the court directs.

(2) The judicial trustee shall send a copy of the accounts or, if the court thinks fit, of a summary of the accounts, of the trust to such beneficiaries or other persons as the court thinks proper.

(3) The court may, if it thinks fit, having regard to the nature of the relation of the applicant to the trust, allow any person applying to inspect the filed accounts so to inspect them on giving reasonable notice to the officer of the court.

Deductions allowed.

16. A judicial trustee shall, unless the court otherwise directs, be allowed on the audit of his accounts deductions made on account of his remuneration and allowances under these rules and also on account of the fees paid by him under these rules, but shall not be allowed any deduction on account of the expenses of professional assistance, or his own work or personal outlay, unless the deduction has been authorised by the court in pursuance of the Act or the court is satisfied that the deduction is justified by the strict necessity of the case.

17.—(1) Where a judicial trustee is to be remunerated the remuneration to be paid to him shall be fixed by the court, and may be altered by the court from time to time.

(3) The court may make, if it thinks fit, special allowances to judicial trustees for the following matters, to be paid out of the trust property—

(b) for realising and reinvesting trust property, where the property is realised for the purpose of reinvestment, an allowance not exceeding one and half per centum on the amount realised and reinvested;

(c) for realising or investing trust property in any other case, an allowance not exceeding one per centum on the amount realised or invested.

(4) The court may also in any year make a special allowance to a judicial trustee, if satisfied that in that year more trouble has been thrown upon the trustee by reason of exceptional circumstances than would ordinarily be involved in the administration of the trust.

(5) Where a trustee is remunerated, any allowance under this rule may be paid in addition to his remuneration.

(6) Any remuneration or allowance payable to a judicial trustee shall be paid or allowed to him at such times and in such manner as the court directs.

trustee.

(2) When a judicial trustee is suspended the court shall cause notice to be given to such of the persons appearing to the court to be interested in the trust as the court directs, and also to the persons having the custody of the trust property, and shall give any other directions which appear necessary for securing the safety of the trust property.

21.—(1) The court may, either without any application or on the application of any person appearing to the court to be interested in the trust, remove a judicial trustee if the court considers that it is expedient to do so in the interests of the trust.

Removal of trustee.

(2) Any application to remove a judicial trustee must be made by summons.

(3) A judicial trustee shall not be removed by the court without an application for the purpose, except after notice has been given to him by the court of the grounds on which it is proposed to remove him, and of the time and place at which the matter will be heard.

(4) The court shall cause a copy of the notice to the trustee to be sent to such of the persons appearing to the court to be interested in the trust as the court directs, and the same procedure shall be followed in the matter as far as possible as on a summons to remove a judicial trustee.

22. Where an inquiry into the administration by a judicial trustee of any trust, or into any dealing or transaction of a judicial trustee is ordered, the inquiry shall, unless the court otherwise directs, be conducted by the officer of the court, and he shall have the same powers in relation thereto as he has in relation to any other inquiry directed by the court.

Rule 23.

(2) The court shall give facilities for the appointment on a proper application of an official of the court to be judicial trustee in place of a judicial trustee who desires to be discharged, in cases where no fit and proper person appears available for the office, or where the court considers that such an appointment is convenient or expedient in the interests of the trust.

Discontinuance of judicial trustee.

24.—(1) Where there is a judicial trustee of a trust, the court may at any time, on the application made by summons of any person appearing to the court to be interested in the trust, order that there shall cease to be a judicial trustee of the trust, whether the person who is judicial trustee continues as trustee or not.

(2) If the court is satisfied that all the persons appearing to the court to be interested in the trust concur in an application under this rule, the court shall accede to the application, and in any case shall ascertain as far as may be the wishes of those appearing to the court to be interested in the trust with regard to the application.

(3) Where an order is made under this rule, the court shall make all such orders as may be necessary for carrying it into effect, and where in pursuance of any such order a new trustee is appointed in the place of an official of the court, shall make all such vesting or other orders and exercise all such other powers as may be necessary for vesting the trust property in the new trustee either as sole trustee or jointly with other trustees as the case requires.

COUNTY COURTS.

31.—(1) For the purpose of the Act and these rules the jurisdiction of the county court judge shall extend to any trust in which the trust property does not exceed in value five hundred pounds, as if that jurisdiction had been given under section sixty-seven of the County Courts Act, 1888, but that jurisdiction shall be exercised only in a metropolitan county court, or in a county court for the time being having bankruptcy jurisdiction.

compensation for improvements.

1.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Part of this Act, a tenant of a holding to which this Part of this Act applies shall, if a claim for the purpose is made in the prescribed manner—
(a) in the case of a tenancy terminated by notice, within one month after the notice was served on or by the tenant ;
and

(b) in any other case, not more than thirty-six nor less than twelve months before the termination of the tenancy ;
be entitled, at the termination of the tenancy, on quitting his holding, to be paid by his landlord compensation in respect of any improvement (including the erection of any building) on his holding made by him or his predecessors in title, not being a trade or other fixture which the tenant is by law entitled to remove, which at the termination of the tenancy adds to the letting value of the holding :

Provided that the sum to be paid as compensation for any improvement shall not exceed—

- (a) the net addition to the value of the holding as a whole which may be determined to be the direct result of the improvement ; or
- (b) the reasonable cost of carrying out the improvement at the termination of the tenancy, subject to a deduction of an amount equal to the cost (if any) of putting the works constituting the improvement into a reasonable state of repair, except so far as such cost is covered by the liability of the tenant under any covenant or agreement as to the repair of the premises.

(2) In determining the amount of such net addition as aforesaid, regard shall be had to the purposes for which it is intended that the premises shall be used after the termination of the tenancy, and if it is shown that it is intended to demolish or to make structural alterations in the premises or any part thereof or to use the premises for a different purpose, regard shall be had to the effect of such demolition, alteration or change of user on the additional value attributable to the improvement, and to the length of time likely to elapse between the termination of the tenancy and the demolition, alteration or change of user.

(3) In the absence of agreement between the parties, all questions as to the right to compensation under this section, or as to the amount thereof, shall be determined by the tribunal hereinafter mentioned, and if the tribunal determines that, on account of the intention to demolish or alter or to change the user of the premises, no compensation or a reduced amount of compensation shall be paid, the tribunal may authorise a further application for compensation to be made by the tenant if effect is not given to the intention within such time as may be fixed by the tribunal.

2.—(1) A tenant shall not be entitled to compensation under this Part of this Act—

Limitation on tenant's right to compensation in certain cases.

- (a) in respect of any improvement made before the commencement of this Act; or
- (b) in respect of any improvement made in pursuance of a statutory obligation, or of any improvement which the tenant or his predecessors in title were under an obligation to make in pursuance of a contract entered into, whether before or after the passing of this Act, for valuable consideration, including a building lease; or
- (c) in respect of any improvement made less than three years before the termination of the tenancy; or
- (d) if within two months after the making of the claim under section one, subsection (1), of this Act the landlord serves on the tenant notice that he is willing and able to grant to the tenant, or obtain the grant to him of, a renewal of the tenancy at such rent and for such term as, failing agreement, the tribunal may consider reasonable; and, where such a notice is so served and the tenant does not within one month from the service of the notice send to the landlord an acceptance in writing of the offer, the tenant shall be deemed to have declined the offer.

(2) Where an offer of the renewal of a tenancy by the landlord under this section is accepted by the tenant, the rent fixed by the tribunal shall be the rent which in the opinion of the tribunal a willing lessee other than the tenant would agree to give and a willing lessor would agree to accept for the premises, having regard to the terms of the lease, but irrespective of the value attributable to the improvement in respect of which compensation would have been payable.

(3) The tribunal in determining the compensation for an improvement shall in reduction of the tenant's claim take into consideration any benefits which the tenant or his predecessors in title may have received from the landlord or his predecessors in title in consideration expressly or impliedly of the improvement.

3.—(1) Where a tenant of a holding to which this Part of this Act applies proposes to make an improvement on his holding, he shall serve on his landlord notice of his intention to make such improvement, together with a specification and plan showing the proposed improvement and the part of the existing premises affected thereby, and if the landlord, within three months after the service of the notice, serves on the tenant notice of objection, the tenant may, in the prescribed manner, apply to the tribunal, and the tribunal may, after ascertaining that notice of such

Section 3. intention has been served upon any superior landlords interested and after giving such persons an opportunity of being heard, if satisfied that the improvement—

- (a) is of such a nature as to be calculated to add to the letting value of the holding at the termination of the tenancy ;
and
- (b) is reasonable and suitable to the character thereof ; and
- (c) will not diminish the value of any other property belonging to the same landlord, or to any superior landlord from whom the immediate landlord of the tenant directly or indirectly holds ;

and after making such modifications (if any) in the specification or plan as the tribunal thinks fit, or imposing such other conditions as the tribunal may think reasonable, certify in the prescribed manner that the improvement is a proper improvement :

Provided that, if the landlord proves that he has offered to execute the improvement himself in consideration of a reasonable increase of rent, or of such increase of rent as the tribunal may determine, the tribunal shall not give a certificate under this section unless it is subsequently shown to the satisfaction of the tribunal that the landlord has failed to carry out his undertaking.

(2) In considering whether the improvement is reasonable and suitable to the character of the holding, the tribunal shall have regard to any evidence brought before it by the landlord or any superior landlord (but not any other person) that the improvement is calculated to injure the amenity or convenience of the neighbourhood.

(3) The tenant shall, at the request of any superior landlord or at the request of the tribunal, supply such copies of the plans and specifications of the proposed improvement as may be required.

(4) Where no such notice of objection as aforesaid to a proposed improvement has been served within the time allowed by this section, or where the tribunal has certified an improvement to be a proper improvement, it shall be lawful for the tenant as against the immediate and any superior landlord to execute the improvement according to the plan and specification served on the landlord, or according to such plan and specification as modified by the tribunal or by agreement between the tenant and the landlord or landlords affected, anything in any lease of the premises to the contrary notwithstanding :

Provided that nothing in this subsection shall authorise a tenant to execute an improvement in contravention of any restriction created or imposed—

- (a) for naval, military or air force purposes ;
- (b) for civil aviation purposes under the powers of the Air Navigation Act, 1920 ;
- (c) for securing any rights of the public over the foreshore or bed of the sea.

(5) A tenant shall not be entitled to claim compensation under this Part of this Act in respect of any improvement unless he has, or his predecessors in title have, served notice of the proposal to make the improvement under this section, and (in case the landlord has served notice of objection thereto) the improvement has been certified by the tribunal to be a proper improvement and the tenant has complied with the conditions, if any, imposed by the tribunal, nor unless the improvement is completed within such time after the service on the landlord of the notice of the proposed improvement as may be agreed between the tenant and the landlord or may be fixed by the tribunal, and where proceedings have been taken before the tribunal, the tribunal may defer making any order as to costs until the expiration of the time so fixed for the completion of the improvement.

(6) Where a tenant has executed an improvement of which he has served notice in accordance with this section and with respect to which either no notice of objection has been served by the landlord or a certificate that it is a proper improvement has been obtained from the tribunal, the tenant may require the landlord to furnish to him a certificate that the improvement has been duly executed; and if the landlord refuses or fails within one month after the service of the requisition to do so, the tenant may apply to the tribunal who, if satisfied that the improvement has been duly executed, shall give a certificate to that effect.

Where the landlord furnishes such a certificate, the tenant shall be liable to pay any reasonable expenses incurred for the purpose by the landlord, and if any question arises as to the reasonableness of such expenses, it shall be determined by the tribunal.

4.—(1) The tenant of a holding to which this Part of this Act applies shall, if a claim for the purpose is made in the prescribed manner— Compensation for goodwill.

(i) in the case of a tenancy terminated by notice, within one month after the service of the notice on the tenant; and
 (ii) in any other case, not more than thirty-six nor less than twelve months before the termination of the tenancy;
 be entitled, at the termination of the tenancy on quitting the holding, to be paid by his landlord compensation for goodwill if he proves to the satisfaction of the tribunal that by reason of the carrying on by him or his predecessors in title at the premises of a trade or business for a period of not less than five years goodwill has become attached to the premises by reason whereof the premises could be let at a higher rent than they would have realised had no such goodwill attached thereto:

Provided that—

- (a) the sum to be awarded as compensation for such goodwill shall not exceed such addition to the value of the holding at the termination of the tenancy as may be determined to be the direct result of the carrying on of the trade or business by the tenant or his predecessors in title, and in determining such addition the tribunal shall, if it is proved that the premises will be demolished wholly or partially, or used for a different and more profitable purpose, have regard to the effect of such demolition or change of user on the value of the goodwill to the landlord;
- (b) the tenant shall not be entitled to compensation in respect of such goodwill if within two months after the making of the claim the landlord serves on the tenant notice that he is willing and able to grant to the tenant, or obtain the grant to him of a renewal of, the tenancy of the premises at which the trade or business is carried on at such rent and for such term not exceeding fourteen years as, failing agreement, the tribunal may consider reasonable; and if the tenant does not within one month from the service of the notice send to the landlord an acceptance in writing of the offer the tenant shall be deemed to have declined the offer;

- (c) in the case of licensed premises the sum payable as compensation for goodwill under this section shall not include any addition to the value of the premises attributable to the fact that the premises are licensed premises;
- (d) the tribunal shall, in determining the amount of compensation for goodwill—

- (i) have regard to the intentions of the tenant as to carrying on the trade or business elsewhere, and may make it a condition of its award that the tenant shall undertake not to carry on the trade or business within such distance of the premises as may be specified in the award; and

- (ii) disregard any value which is attributable exclusively to the situation of the premises;

- (e) where the landlord proves that the value of the goodwill has been created or increased owing to restrictions imposed by the landlord, whether by agreement with the tenant or not, upon the letting for a competitive trade or business of other premises in the neighbourhood owned by or under the control of the landlord, the tribunal shall have regard thereto and may refuse the application for compensation or may award a reduced amount of compensation;
- (f) compensation under this section shall not be payable if the tenant has determined the tenancy or failed to exercise an option for a further term contained in the lease or in a collateral agreement, unless, in the case of an option, the terms of the option are such that the tenant could not reasonably be expected to exercise it;
- (g) where any government department, or a local or public authority, or a charity, or a statutory or public utility company have, in pursuance of the powers contained in the lease, terminated the lease by resuming possession of the premises for the purpose of the department or any other government department, or of the authority, or of the charity, or of the undertaking of the company, or where premises the tenancy whereof has expired by effluxion of time are required for any such purpose no compensation shall be payable under this section.

(2) For the purposes of this section, premises shall be deemed to be used for a more profitable purpose if, but not unless, the rent which the landlord could obtain for the premises if used for that purpose would be greater than the rent which could be obtained if they were used for the purpose of the trade or business carried on by the tenant.

Section 4.

(3) Where an offer of the renewal of a tenancy by the landlord under this section is accepted by the tenant, the rent fixed by the tribunal shall be the rent which in the opinion of the tribunal a willing lessee other than the tenant would agree to give and a willing lessor would agree to accept for the premises having regard to the terms of the lease, but irrespective of the value of any goodwill which may have become attached to the premises by reason of the tenant or his predecessors in title having carried on thereat a particular trade or business.

(4) In the absence of agreement between the parties, all questions as to the right to compensation under this section, and as to the amount thereof, shall be determined by the tribunal.

5.—(1) Where the tenant alleges that, though he would be entitled to compensation under the last foregoing section, the sum which could be awarded to him under that section would not compensate him for the loss of goodwill he will suffer if he removes to and carries on his trade or business in other premises, he may in lieu of claiming such compensation, at any time within the period allowed for making a claim under the said section, serve on the landlord notice requiring a new lease of the premises at which the trade or business is carried on to be granted to him.

Right to new lease in certain cases.

(2) Where such a notice is so served, the tribunal, on application being made for the purpose either by the landlord or by the tenant not less than nine months before the termination of the tenancy, or, where the tenancy is terminated by notice, within two months after the service of the notice, may, if it considers that the grant of a new tenancy is in all the circumstances reasonable, order the grant of a new tenancy for such period (being a term of years absolute) not exceeding fourteen years and on such terms as the tribunal may determine to be proper, but if the tribunal is precluded on any of the grounds mentioned in paragraph (b) of the following subsection from making such an order the tribunal may award such compensation as is provided under the last foregoing section :

Provided that the rent fixed by the tribunal as the rent payable under the new tenancy shall be such rent as the tribunal may determine to be the rent which a willing lessee other than the tenant would agree to give and a willing lessor would agree to accept for the premises, having regard to the terms of the tenancy but irrespective of any goodwill which may have become attached to the premises by reason of the tenant or his predecessors in title having carried on thereat a particular trade or business.

(3) Where the tenant is the applicant, the grant of a new lease under this section shall not be deemed to be reasonable—

- (a) unless the tenant proves that he is a suitable tenant and that he would be entitled to compensation under the last foregoing section, but that the sum which could be awarded to him under that section would not compensate him for the loss he would suffer if he removed to and carried on his trade or business in other premises ; or

Section 5.

(b) if the landlord proves—

(i) that the premises are required for occupation by himself, or, where the landlord is an individual, for occupation by a son or daughter of his over eighteen years of age; or

(ii) that he intends to pull down or remodel the premises; or

(iii) that vacant possession of the premises is required in order to carry out a scheme of re-development; or

(iv) that for any other reason the grant of such a lease of the premises would not be consistent with good estate management, and for this purpose regard shall be had to the development of any other property of the same landlord :

Provided that, if the grant of a new lease is refused by the tribunal on any such ground as is mentioned in paragraph (b), the tribunal may make it a condition of refusal that if the landlord fails to carry out his intention within such period as may be allowed by the tribunal, the landlord shall pay to the tenant such compensation as the tribunal may fix not exceeding the amount of the loss which the tenant has suffered by reason of having been deprived of his right to the grant of a new lease under this section.

(4) Where the landlord proves to the satisfaction of the tribunal that the premises, though not required immediately on any such ground as aforesaid, will be so required after the lapse of a certain period, the term for which the lease is granted shall not extend beyond the expiration of that period, unless the lease is made subject to a condition that the landlord may at any time after the expiration of that period, on giving not less than six months' notice in writing, resume possession of the premises if he requires them for any such purpose as aforesaid.

(5) Every lease granted under this section shall, if the landlord so requires, be subject to a condition that if at any time after the expiration of seven years from the commencement of the term thereof the premises are required for the purpose of carrying out a scheme of re-development, the landlord, on satisfying the tribunal that the premises are so required, and on giving not less than twelve months' notice in writing to the tenant, may determine the lease and resume possession of the premises upon payment of such compensation as the tribunal may determine to be the value of the unexpired residue of the term of the lease.

(6) Where the landlord is a Government department or a local or public authority or a statutory or public utility company and it is proved to the satisfaction of the tribunal that the premises, though not required immediately for the purposes of the department or of any other Government department or of the authority or of the undertaking of the company, may be so required at some future time, the tribunal shall not order the grant of a lease unless the lease is made subject to a condition that the landlord may at any time on giving not less than six months' notice in writing resume possession of the premises if he requires them for any such purpose.

Section 5.

(7) The tribunal shall not order the grant of a new lease under this section if the landlord offers as an alternative thereto to sell to the tenant the landlord's interest in the premises for such consideration as, failing agreement, the tribunal may determine, and the duration of the landlord's interest is in the opinion of the tribunal adequate; and the consideration may as to the whole or any part thereof, if the tribunal so determines, be in the form of a terminable rent charge for such amount and of such duration not exceeding the duration of the landlord's interest as the tribunal may fix.

(8) No claim for a new lease under this section shall arise in respect of goodwill attaching to the premises and attributable to the trade or business carried on thereat during the term of a new lease granted in pursuance of this section, or of a renewal of a lease granted in lieu of compensation under the last foregoing section; without prejudice however to the right to make a claim for compensation under the last foregoing section in respect of goodwill created during the term of such new lease or renewal.

(9) Where the immediate landlord is a mesne landlord, the expression "landlord" in this section shall include any superior landlord who may be affected by the order of the tribunal:

Provided that the tenant shall not be under the obligation to serve a notice under this section on any landlord except his immediate landlord, but his immediate landlord, if a mesne landlord, shall forthwith serve a copy of the notice on his immediate landlord, who shall in his turn forthwith serve a copy thereof on his immediate landlord if he may be affected by the provisions of this section, and so on; and if any such landlord fails so to serve a copy of the notice on his immediate landlord he shall be liable to pay to the tenant compensation for any loss the tenant may suffer in consequence of such failure, the amount of such compensation to be determined by the tribunal.

(10) Where an order for a new lease is made under this section, the landlord shall be bound to grant, and the tenant shall be bound to accept, a lease in accordance with the order:

Provided that, before making an order, binding any superior landlord, the tribunal shall satisfy itself that notice of the application to the tribunal for a new lease has been served on him and that he has had an opportunity of appearing before the tribunal.

(11) Where the term for which, in the opinion of the tribunal, a new lease should be ordered to be granted would extend beyond the termination of the lease held by the immediate landlord, the power of the tribunal under this section to order the grant of a new lease shall include power to order the grant of such lease and reversionary leases that the combined effect thereof will be equivalent to the grant of a new lease for such term as aforesaid:

Provided that every such lease and reversionary lease shall be so framed as to confer on the landlord granting the lease the same rights of distress as he would have enjoyed had he retained a reversion expectant on the termination thereof.

A reversionary lease granted in pursuance of such an order shall be deemed to be a lease authorised by section ninety-nine of the Law of Property Act, 1925.

c. 20.

(12) A new lease under this section shall, if the landlord so requires, contain a covenant prohibiting the carrying on of any trade or business and the doing of any act prohibited by the original lease, unless the landlord has by licence or otherwise consented to a variation of the original terms of the lease in this respect.

(13) Where it appears to the tribunal that proceedings under this section cannot be completed and a new lease in accordance with the order of the tribunal entered into before the termination of the tenancy of the tenant, and that the delay is not due to any default on the part of the tenant, the tribunal may make an interim order authorising the tenant to continue in possession of the premises for such time after the termination of his tenancy and on such terms as the tribunal may allow.

Right of
landlord to offer alternative ac-commoda-
tion.

6. The tenant shall not be entitled to compensation under section four of this Act or to a new lease under section five thereof if within one month after the tenant has made a claim under section four, subsection (1), or served a notice under section five, subsection (1), the landlord serves on the tenant notice that he is willing to grant to the tenant at such rent and for such term as the tribunal may consider reasonable a tenancy of other premises which, in the opinion of the tribunal, would reasonably preserve to the tenant the goodwill of his business.

Provision
when claim is both for improvement and goodwill.

7. Where in respect of any holding a claim for compensation has been made both for improvements and for goodwill, and the landlord has offered in lieu of compensation for either such claim to grant to the tenant, or obtain the grant to him of, a renewal of the tenancy, the rent under such renewal shall, if both such claims are valid, be fixed irrespective of any increased value of the premises attributable whether to the improvements or to the goodwill.

Rights of mesne landlords.

8.—(1) Where, in the case of any holding, there are several persons standing in the relation to each other of lessor and lessee, the following provisions shall apply :—

Any mesne landlord who has paid or is liable to pay compensation under this Part of this Act shall, at the end of his term, be entitled to compensation from his immediate landlord in like manner and on the same conditions as if he had himself made the improvement or created the goodwill in question, except that it shall be sufficient if the claim for compensation is made at least two months before the expiration of his term :

A mesne landlord shall not be entitled to make a claim under this section unless he has, within the time and in the manner prescribed, served on his immediate superior landlord copies of all documents relating to proposed improvements and claims which have been sent to him in pursuance of this Part of this Act :

Where such copies are so served, the said superior landlord shall have, in addition to the mesne landlord, the powers conferred by or in pursuance of this Part of this Act in like manner as if he were the immediate landlord of the occupying tenant, and shall, in the manner and to the extent prescribed, be at liberty to appear before the tribunal and shall be bound by the proceedings :

Section 8.

Where more than one landlord is concerned and they do not agree as to whether an offer of the renewal of the tenancy in lieu of compensation for an improvement or for goodwill should be made, the matter shall be referred to the tribunal, and the decision of the tribunal as to whether or not any such offer is to be made shall be binding on all the landlords concerned.

(2) In this section, references to a landlord shall include references to his predecessors in title.

9. This Part of this Act shall apply notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, being a contract made at any time after the eighth day of February, nineteen hundred and twenty-seven :

Restriction on contracting out.

Provided that, if on the hearing of a claim or application under this Part of this Act it appears to the tribunal that a contract made after such date as aforesaid, so far as it deprives any person of any right under this Part of this Act, was made for adequate consideration, the tribunal shall in determining the matter give effect thereto.

10. The landlord of a holding to which this Part of this Act applies, or any person authorised by him, may at all reasonable times enter on the holding or any part of it, for the purpose of executing any improvement he has undertaken to execute and of making any inspection of the premises which may reasonably be required for the purposes of this Part of this Act.

entry.

11.—(1) Out of any money payable to a tenant by way of compensation under this Part of this Act, the landlord shall be entitled to deduct any sum due to him from the tenant under or in respect of the tenancy.

Right to make deductions.

(2) Out of any money due to the landlord from the tenant under or in respect of the tenancy, the tenant shall be entitled to deduct any sum payable to him by the landlord by way of compensation under this Part of this Act.

12. Section twenty of the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1923 (which relates to charges in respect of money paid for compensation), as set out and modified in the First Schedule to this Act, shall apply to the case of money paid for compensation under this Part of this Act, including any proper costs, charges, or expenses incurred by a landlord in opposing any proposal by a tenant to execute an improvement, or in contesting a claim for compensation, and to money expended by a landlord in executing an improvement the notice of a proposal to execute which has been served on him by a tenant under this Part of this Act.

Application of 13 & 14
Geo. 5, c. 9,
s. 20.

13.—(1) Capital money arising under the Settled Land Act, 1925 (either as originally enacted or as applied in relation to trusts for sale by section twenty-eight of the Law of Property Act, 1925),

Power to apply and raise capital money.

Section 13. or under the University and College Estates Act, 1925, may be applied—

15 Geo. 5,
c. 18; 15
Geo. 5, c. 24.

(a) in payment as for an improvement authorised by the Act of any money expended and costs incurred by a landlord under or in pursuance of this Part of this Act in or about the execution of any improvement;

(b) in payment of any sum due to a tenant under this Part of this Act in respect of compensation for an improvement or goodwill, and any costs, charges, and expenses incidental thereto;

(c) in payment of the costs, charges, and expenses of opposing any proposal by a tenant to execute an improvement.

(2) The satisfaction of a claim for such compensation as aforesaid shall be included amongst the purposes for which a tenant for life, statutory owner, trustee for sale, or personal representative may raise money under section seventy-one of the Settled Land Act, 1925.

(3) Where the landlord liable to pay compensation for an improvement or goodwill is a tenant for life or in a fiduciary position, he may require the sum payable as compensation and any costs, charges, and expenses incidental thereto, to be paid out of any capital money held on the same trusts as the settled land.

In this subsection "capital money" includes any personal estate held on the same trusts as the land, and "settled land" includes land held on trust for sale or vested in a personal representative.

Power to sell or grant leases notwithstanding restrictions.

14. Where the powers of a landlord to sell or grant leases are subject to any statutory or other restrictions, he shall, notwithstanding any such restrictions or any rule of law to the contrary, be entitled to offer to sell or grant any such reversion or lease as would under this Part of this Act relieve him from liability to pay compensation thereunder, and to convey and grant the same, and to execute any lease which he may be ordered to grant under this Part of this Act.

Provisions as to rever-
leases.

15.—(1) Where the amount which a landlord is liable to pay as compensation for an improvement under this Part of this Act has been determined by agreement or by an award of the tribunal, and the landlord had before the passing of this Act granted or agreed to grant a reversionary lease commencing on or after the termination of the then existing tenancy, the rent payable under the reversionary lease shall, if the tribunal so directs, be increased by such amount as, failing agreement, may be determined by the tribunal having regard to the addition to the letting value of the holding attributable to the improvement:

Provided that no such increase shall be permissible unless the landlord has served or caused to be served on the reversionary lessee copies of all documents relating to the improvement when proposed which were sent to the landlord in pursuance of this Part of this Act.

(2) The reversionary lessee shall have the same right of objection to the proposed improvement and of appearing and being heard at any proceedings before the tribunal relative to the proposed improvement as if he were a superior landlord, and if the amount of compensation for the improvement is determined by the tribunal, any question as to the increase of rent under the reversionary lease shall, where practicable, be settled in the course of the same proceedings.

(3) Where a landlord who would have been liable to pay compensation for goodwill under this Part of this Act had, before the thirty-first day of March, nineteen hundred and twenty-seven, granted or agreed to grant a reversionary lease commencing on or after the termination of the then existing tenancy, the landlord shall not be liable to pay compensation to the tenant for goodwill under this Part of this Act.

16. Where the landlord is liable to pay any taxes (otherwise than by deduction from rent) or rates (including water rate) in respect of any premises comprised in a holding, or has undertaken to pay the premiums on any fire insurance policy on any such premises, and in consequence of any improvement executed by the tenant on the premises under this Act the assessment of the premises or the rate of premium on the policy is increased, the tenant shall be liable to pay to the landlord sums equal to the amount by which—

Landlord's right to reimburse-ment of increased taxes, rates or insurance premiums.

(a) the taxes or rates payable by the landlord are increased by reason of the increase of such assessment ;

(b) the fire premium payable by the landlord is increased by reason of the increase in the rate of premium ;

and the sums so payable by the tenant shall be deemed to be in the nature of rent and shall be recoverable as such from the tenant, anything to the contrary in the Rent and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions) Acts, 1920 to 1925, contained notwithstanding.

17.—(1) The holdings to which this Part of this Act applies are any premises held under a lease, other than a mining lease, made whether before or after the commencement of this Act, and used wholly or partly for carrying on thereat any trade or business, and not being agricultural holdings within the meaning of the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1923.

Holdings to which Part I. applies.

(2) This Part of this Act shall not apply to any holding let to tenant as the holder of any office, appointment or employment, from the landlord, and continuing so long as the tenant holds such office, appointment or employment, but in the case of a tenancy created after the commencement of this Act, only if the contract is in writing and expresses the purpose for which the tenancy is created.

(3) For the purposes of this section, premises shall not be deemed to be premises used for carrying on thereat a trade or business—

(a) by reason of their being used for the purpose of carrying on thereat any profession ;

(b) by reason that the tenant thereof carries on the business of subletting the premises as residential flats, whether or not the provision of meals or any other service for the occupants of the flats is undertaken by the tenant :

Section 17. — Provided that, so far as this Part of this Act relates to improvements, premises regularly used for carrying on a profession shall be deemed to be premises used for carrying on a trade or business.

(4) In the case of premises used partly for purposes of a trade or business and partly for other purposes, this Part of this Act shall apply to improvements only if and so far as they are improvements in relation to the trade or business.

PART II.

GENERAL AMENDMENTS OF THE LAW OF LANDLORD AND TENANT.

Provisions
as to covenants to repair.

18.—(1) Damages for a breach of a covenant or agreement to keep or put premises in repair during the currency of a lease, or to leave or put premises in repair at the termination of a lease, whether such covenant or agreement is expressed or implied, and whether general or specific, shall in no case exceed the amount (if any) by which the value of the reversion (whether immediate or not) in the premises is diminished owing to the breach of such covenant or agreement as aforesaid ; and in particular no damage shall be recovered for a breach of any such covenant or agreement to leave or put premises in repair at the termination of a lease, if it is shown that the premises, in whatever state of repair they might be, would at or shortly after the termination of the tenancy have been or be pulled down, or such structural alterations made therein as would render valueless the repairs covered by the covenant or agreement.

(2) A right of re-entry or forfeiture for a breach of any such covenant or agreement as aforesaid shall not be enforceable, by action or otherwise, unless the lessor proves that the fact that such a notice as is required by section one hundred and forty-six of the Law of Property Act, 1925, had been served on the lessee was known either—

(a) to the lessee ; or

(b) to an under-lessee holding under an under-lease which reserved a nominal reversion only to the lessee ; or

(c) to the person who last paid the rent due under the lease either on his own behalf or as agent for the lessee or under-lessee ; and that a time reasonably sufficient to enable the repairs to be executed had elapsed since the time when the fact of the service of the notice came to the knowledge of any such person.

Where a notice has been sent by registered post addressed to a person at his last known place of abode in the United Kingdom, then, for the purposes of this subsection, that person shall be deemed, unless the contrary is proved, to have had knowledge of the fact that the notice had been served as from the time at which the letter would have been delivered in the ordinary course of post.

This subsection shall be construed as one with section one hundred and forty-six of the Law of Property Act, 1925.

(3) This section applies whether the lease was created before or after the commencement of this Act.

Section 19.

Provisions as to covenants not to assign, etc., without licence or consent.

- (a) to a proviso to the effect that such licence or consent is not to be unreasonably withheld, but this proviso does not preclude the right of the landlord to require payment of a reasonable sum in respect of any legal or other expenses in connection with such licence or consent ; and
- (b) (if the lease is for more than forty years and is made in consideration wholly or partially of the erection, or the substantial improvement, addition or alteration of buildings, and the lessor is not a Government department or local or public authority, or a statutory or public utility company) to a proviso to the effect that in the case of any assignment, under-letting, charging or parting with the possession (whether by the holders of the lease or any under-tenant whether immediate or not) effected more than seven years before the end of the term no consent or licence shall be required, if notice in writing of the transaction is given to the lessor within six months after the transaction is effected.

(3) In all leases whether made before or after the commencement of this Act containing a covenant condition or agreement against the alteration of the user of the demised premises, without licence or consent, such covenant condition or agreement shall, if the alteration does not involve any structural alteration of the premises, be deemed, notwithstanding any express provision to the contrary, to be subject to a proviso that no fine or sum of money in the nature of a fine, whether by way of increase of rent or otherwise, shall be payable for or in respect of such licence or consent ;

Section 19. but this proviso does not preclude the right of the landlord to require payment of a reasonable sum in respect of any damage to or diminution in the value of the premises or any neighbouring premises belonging to him and of any legal or other expenses incurred in connection with such licence or consent.

THE LANDLORD AND TENANT ACT, 1927.

Final Order granting or refusing new lease in lieu of other compensation for loss of Goodwill.

17 & 18 Geo. 5,
c. 36, s. 5.

[Title of Action or Matter.]

Upon reading the notice dated the day of 19 and served on the defendant on the day of 19 [and the report of Mr. dated the day of 19 and filed at this Court.]

It is ordered that a new tenancy of the holding situate at and being
No. Street mentioned in the said notice be granted to the plaintiff for the term of years from the day of 19 at the yearly rent of and subject to the conditions and stipulations set forth in the draft annexed to the said Report [or as may be] or (if new lease is refused on any of the grounds mentioned in Section 5 (3) (b)).

And it appearing that the holding is required by the defendant for occupation by himself (or a son or daughter of his over 18 years of age) or that the defendant intends to pull down (remodel) the premises or that vacant possession of the said holding is required to carry out a scheme of redevelopment or that the grant of such a lease as is claimed is not consistent with good estate management.

This Court doth not think fit to make any order for the grant of a new lease (add if applicable) but doth order that if the defendant shall fail to carry out his intention within the period of months from the day of 19, he do at the expiration of that period pay to the plaintiff the sum of £ as compensation for any loss which the said Plaintiff has suffered by reason of having been deprived of his right to the grant of a new lease under section 5 of the above Act.

And any party is to be at liberty to apply as he may be advised—

[Directions as to taxation and payment of costs and remuneration or expenses of Referees] or And it appearing that the defendant has offered as an alternative to the granting of a new lease under section 5 of the above Act to sell to the plaintiff his interest in the holding for such consideration as falling agreement this Court may determine and this Court being of opinion that the duration of the interest of the defendant is adequate and that the sum of £ (or a terminable rentcharge of £ per annum payable by equal half-yearly instalments and issuing out of the holding for a term of years from the day of 19) is the proper consideration for the sale of the said interest this Court doth make no order except that each of the parties to this action do and perform all such acts and execute all such deeds and instruments as may be necessary to give effect to the said offer on the terms and conditions and for the consideration aforesaid.

[Directions as to taxation and payment of costs and Referees' remuneration and expenses] or And it appearing that proceedings under section 5 of the above Act cannot be completed and a new lease in accordance with the order of this Court entered into before the termination of the tenancy of the plaintiff and that the delay is not owing to any default on the part of the plaintiff it is ordered that the plaintiff be at liberty to continue in possession of the said holding for the period of after the termination of his tenancy subject to the following terms and conditions that is to say

[State terms and conditions] and this hearing is adjourned until [Directions (if any) as to taxation and payment of Costs and Referees' remuneration and expenses]

LAW OF PROPERTY ACT, 1925.

By this Act, passed to assimilate and amend the law of real and personal estate, to abolish copyhold and other special tenures, and to amend the law relating to commonable lands, many powers are conferred upon "the court." These are too numerous to be here described.

By sect. 203 (3) the expression "court" means "county court" where such court has jurisdiction, and by sub-s. (2) of the same section every application to the court shall, save as otherwise expressly provided and subject to any rules of court to the contrary, be by summons at Chambers. A county court rule under this sub-s. has been made (Ord. XXXVIII. r. 32), which provides that the application may be made in accordance with the rules as to interlocutory applications.

[16 & 17 GEO. 5, c. 60.]

Jurisdiction.—By section 2 of the Act the county court is given concurrent jurisdiction with the High Court to grant a declaration of legitimacy of persons legitimated by the Act. If the county court judge considers that, owing to the value of the property involved or otherwise, the case ought to be dealt with by the High Court, he may, and if so ordered by the High Court, shall transfer the matter to that Court (sect. 2 (2)). A petition under this Act cannot be heard in camera (In the matter of a Petition, (1928) 138 L. T. 64).

Procedure.—Procedure is by petition. All persons interested must be made parties, and a copy of the petition and the affidavit in support must be delivered to the Attorney-General at least a month before the petition is presented or filed. See Order LA., post, p. 2127.

Court Fees.—A fee of 10s. is payable on filing the petition and a further fee of 10s. on the hearing (C. C. Fees Order, 1925, Fees No. 2 and 20).

Section 1.

Legitimation by subsequent marriage of parents.

1.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this section, where the parents of an illegitimate person marry or have married one another, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, the marriage shall, if the father of the illegitimate person was or is at the date of the marriage domiciled in England or Wales, render that person, if living, legitimate from the commencement of this Act, or from the date of the marriage, whichever last happens.

(2) Nothing in this Act shall operate to legitimate a person whose father or mother was married to a third person when the illegitimate person was born.

(3) The legitimation of a person under this Act does not enable him or his spouse, children or remoter issue to take any interest in real or personal property save as is hereinafter in this Act expressly provided.

(4) The provisions contained in the Schedule to this Act shall have effect with respect to the re-registration of the births of legitimated persons.

Declarations of legitimacy of legitimated persons.
15 & 16 Geo.
5, c. 49.

(2) A petition under the said Act may be presented by any such person as aforesaid to the county court instead of to the High Court, and the county court on such a petition being presented shall have all such jurisdiction as by the said Act is conferred upon the High Court:

Provided that, where a petition is presented to the county court, the county court, if it considers that the case is one which owing to the value of the property involved or otherwise ought to be dealt with by the High Court, may, and if so ordered by the High Court shall, transfer the matter to the High Court, and on such transfer the proceeding shall be continued in the High Court as if it had been originally commenced therein. Section 2.

3.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, a legitimated person and his spouse, children or more remote issue shall be entitled to take any interest— Rights of legitimated persons, &c., to take interests in property.

(a) in the estate of an intestate dying after the date of legitimation ;

(b) under any disposition coming into operation after the date of legitimation ;

(c) by descent under an entailed interest created after the date of legitimation ;

in like manner as if the legitimated person had been born legitimate.

(2) Where the right to any property, real or personal, depends on the relative seniority of the children of any person, and those children include one or more legitimated persons, the legitimated person or persons shall rank as if he or they had been born on the day when he or they became legitimated by virtue of this Act, and if more than one such legitimated person became legitimated at the same time, they shall rank as between themselves in order of seniority. Ranking of legitimated children inter se and in relation to legitimate children.

(3) Where property real or personal or any interest therein is limited in such a way that, if this Act had not been passed, it would (subject or not to any preceding limitations or charges) have devolved (as nearly as the law permits) along with a dignity or title of honour, then nothing in this Act shall operate to sever the property or any interest therein from such dignity, but the same shall go and devolve (without prejudice to the preceding limitations or charges aforesaid) in like manner as if this Act had not been passed. This subsection applies, whether or not there is any express reference to the dignity or title of honour and notwithstanding that in some events the property, or some interest therein, may become severed therefrom. Devolution of property along with dignity or title.

(4) This section applies only if and so far as a contrary intention is not expressed in the disposition, and shall have effect subject to the terms of the disposition and to the provisions therein contained. Section to apply subject to any intention to the contrary expressed in disposition.

4. Where a legitimated person or a child or remoter issue of a legitimated person dies intestate in respect of all or any of his real or personal property, the same persons shall be entitled to take the same interests therein as they would have been entitled to take if the legitimated person had been born legitimate. Succession on intestacy of legitimated persons and their issue.

5. Where an illegitimate person dies after the commencement of this Act and before the marriage of his parents leaving any spouse, children or remoter issue living at the date of such marriage, then, if that person would, if living at the time of the marriage of his parents, have become a legitimated person, the provisions of this Act with respect to the taking of interests in property by, or in succession to, the spouse, children and remoter issue of a legitimated person (including those relating to the rate of death duties) shall apply as if such person as aforesaid had been a legitimated person dying before marriage of parents. Application to illegitimate person dying before marriage of parents.

Section 5.

Personal rights and obligations of legitimated persons.

Provisions as to pensions, etc., under Widows', etc., Contributory Pensions Act, 1925.

Death duties.

Provisions as to persons legitimated by extra-neous law.

Meaning of "country."

Right of illegitimate child and mother of person and the date of the marriage of his parents had been the date of legitimation.

6.—(1) A legitimated person shall have the same rights, and shall be under the same obligations in respect of the maintenance and support of himself or of any other person as if he had been born legitimate, and, subject to the provisions of this Act, the provisions of any Act relating to claims for damages, compensation, allowance, benefit, or otherwise by or in respect of a legitimate child shall apply in like manner in the case of a legitimated person.

(2) Where the marriage leading to the legitimation of a child took place before the fourth day of January, nineteen hundred and twenty-six, and the father of the child died before that date, the child shall, for the purpose of determining rights to pension or additional allowance under the Widows', Orphans' and Old Age Contributory Pensions Act, 1925, be deemed to have been a child of the marriage living at that date :

Provided that nothing in this subsection shall confer any right to claim any payment in respect of any period prior to the date of legitimation.

7. Where a legitimated person or any relative of a legitimated person takes any interest in real or personal property, any succession, legacy or other duty which becomes leviable after the date of legitimation shall be payable at the same rate as if the legitimated person had been born legitimate.

8.—(1) Where the parents of an illegitimate person marry or have married one another, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, and the father of the illegitimate person was or is, at the time of the marriage, domiciled in a country, other than England or Wales, by the law of which the illegitimate person became legitimated by virtue of such subsequent marriage, that person, if living, shall in England and Wales be recognised as having been so legitimated from the commencement of this Act or from the date of the marriage, whichever last happens, notwithstanding that his father was not at the time of the birth of such person domiciled in a country in which legitimation by subsequent marriage was permitted by law.

(2) All the provisions of this Act relating to legitimated persons and to the taking of interests in property by or in succession to a legitimated person and the spouse, children and remoter issue of a legitimated person (including those relating to the rate of death duties) shall apply in the case of a person recognised as having been legitimated under this section, or who would, had he survived the marriage of his parents, have been so recognised ; and, accordingly, this Act shall have effect as if references therein to a legitimated person included a person so recognised as having been legitimated.

(3) For the purposes of this section, the expression "country" includes Scotland and any other part of His Majesty's Dominions, as well as a foreign country.

9.—(1) Where, after the commencement of this Act, the mother of an illegitimate child, such child not being a legitimated person, dies intestate as respects all or any of her real or personal property, and does not leave any legitimate issue her surviving, the illegitimate child, or, if he is dead, his issue, shall be entitled to take any interest therein to which he or such issue would have been entitled if he had been born legitimate. Section 9. illegitimate child to succeed on intestacy of the other.

LICENSING (CONSOLIDATION) ACT, 1910.

[10 EDW. VII. & 1 GEO. V. C. 24.]

Jurisdiction.—The county court under this Act and the Licensing Rules, 1910, made by virtue of sect. 47, can be called upon to exercise jurisdiction in two ways: (1) the compensation authority may refer to the county court any question arising on the division of the amount to be paid as compensation, which such authority considers can be more conveniently determined by the county court (sect. 20, sub-s. 3); (2) where the compensation authority makes default for one month in paying 50*l.* or more, due in respect of any loan raised under the Act, the persons entitled or any of them may apply to the county court for the appointment of a receiver. (Rule 71.)

Practice.—A reference by the compensation authority is governed by Order L. rr. 37—57 (post, p. 2136). By Rule 38, the court in the district of which the premises are situated shall be the court having jurisdiction; the form of the reference is settled by Rule 39; of the petition and affidavit, by Rule 41; who are to be respondents, by Rule 42; the fixing of the day for hearing, by Rules 44, 45; notice to parties and service, by Rules 46—50; by Rule 53 the procedure shall be the same as on any other petition; by Rule 56 the costs are regulated. By Rule 52 of Order L. the county court, though it can make no order inconsistent with the order of the compensating authority, if it appears to the county court that any person who has not made a claim before the compensating authority is interested, may send the order of reference back to the compensating authority with a report to that effect, in order that the said authority may take such action as it may think fit.

Practice as to the appointment of a Receiver.—Under Licensing Rule 71 the county court having jurisdiction is the court of the district in which the office of the treasurer is situated. By Order L. r. 58 (post) an application for the appointment of a receiver shall be by petition, and the procedure shall be the same as on any other petition as to any matter amounting to 50*l.* or over (see O. XXXVIII.).

COMPENSATION IN RESPECT OF NON-RENEWAL OF OLD ON-LICENCES.

Payment of compensation.

c. 23.

20.—(1) Where the compensation authority refuse the renewal of an old on-licence, a sum equal to the difference between the value of the licensed premises (calculated as if the licence were subject to the same conditions of renewal as were applicable immediately before the passing of the Licensing Act, 1904, and including in that value the amount of any depreciation of trade fixtures arising by reason of the refusal to renew the licence), and the value which those premises would bear if they were not licensed premises, shall be paid as compensation to the persons interested in the licensed premises.

57 & 58 Vict.
c. 30.

(2) The amount to be so paid shall, if an amount is agreed upon by the persons appearing to the compensation authority to be interested in the licensed premises and is approved by that authority, be that amount, and, in default of such agreement and approval, shall be determined by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue in the same manner and subject to the like appeal, under section ten of the Finance Act, 1894, to the High Court, as on the valuation of an estate for the purpose of estate duty, and in any event the amount shall be divided amongst the persons interested in the licensed premises (including the holder of the licence) in such shares as may be determined by the compensation authority:

Provided that, in the case of the holder of the licence, regard shall be had not only to his legal interest in the premises or trade fixtures, but also to his conduct and to the length of time during which he has been the holder of the licence; and the holder of a licence, if a tenant, shall (notwithstanding any agreement to the contrary) in no case receive a less amount than he would be entitled to as tenant from year to year of the licensed premises.

(3) If on the division of the amount to be paid as compensation any question arises which the compensation authority consider can be more conveniently determined by the county court, they may refer that question to the county court in accordance with rules of court to be made for the purpose.

If there is delay on the part of the persons interested in the compensation (or it is presumed on the part of the court) the justices may grant a further provisional renewal of the licence though one has already been granted (Rex v. Newington Licensing Justices, [1914] 2 K. B. 710, 83 L. J. K. B. 1367).

(4) Any costs incurred by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue on an appeal from their decision to the High Court under this section shall, unless the High Court order those costs to be paid by some party to the appeal other than the Commissioners, be paid out of the amount to be paid as compensation.

Under s. 2 of the 1904 Act it was held that the valuation of the respective interests was a question of fact for the judge and that his finding could not be questioned. Query whether there was any appeal from him (Liverpool Corporation v. Peter Walker & Son, [C. A.] [1908] 2 K. B. 33; 77 L. J. K. B. 700).

(4) Any sums paid to a compensation authority in respect of the charges under this section, or received by the compensation authority from any other source for the payment of compensation under this Act, shall be paid by them to a separate account under their management, and the moneys standing to the credit of that account shall constitute the compensation fund.

(5) Any expenses incurred by the compensation authority in the payment of compensation under this Act, or otherwise in the exercise of their powers or the performance of their duties as compensation authority, and such expenses of the licensing justices incurred with respect to the matter of the reference to the compensation authority of the question of the renewal of old on-licences, or the grant of new on-licences, as the compensation authority may allow, shall be paid out of the compensation fund, and the compensation authority, in the exercise of their powers, shall have regard to the funds available for the purpose.

(6) The compensation authority may, with the consent of a Secretary of State, borrow in accordance with rules made under this Act, on the security of the compensation fund, for the purpose of paying any compensation payable under this Act.

Jurisdiction.—By this Act, jurisdiction is given to the county court (1) to adjust the affairs of a literary or scientific institution, where a dispute has arisen in its winding-up; (2) to distribute, if the members cannot agree, any surplus which may arise on such winding-up. Penalties for breach of byelaws may also be recovered in the county court, s. 24.

Practice.—Proceedings in case of disputes under this Act are commenced by plaint and summons. The practice is the same as explained for disputes in building societies (Order XLI.; see ante, p. 1778).

Fees.—Poundage is estimated on the amount in dispute, and if no amount is in dispute, or if the amount is unascertained, then as on a claim for 20%.

affairs.

29. Any number not less than three-fifths of the members of any institution may determine that it shall be dissolved, and thereupon it shall be dissolved forthwith, or at the time then agreed upon, and all necessary steps shall be taken for the disposal and settlement of the property of the institution, its claims and liabilities, according to the rules of the said institution applicable thereto, if any, and if not, then as the governing body shall find expedient; provided, that in the event of any dispute arising among the said governing body or the members of the institution the adjustment of its affairs shall be referred to the judge of the county court of the district in which the principal building of the institution shall be situated, and he shall make such order or orders in the matter as he shall deem requisite, or, if he find it necessary, shall direct that proceedings shall be taken in the Court of Chancery for the adjustment of the affairs of the institution.

companies.

30. If upon the dissolution of any institution there shall remain, after the satisfaction of all its debts and liabilities, any property whatsoever, the same shall not be paid to or distributed among the members of the said institution or any of them, but shall be given to some other institution, to be determined by the members at the time of the dissolution, or in default thereof by the judge of the county court aforesaid; provided, however, that this clause shall not apply to any institution which shall have been founded or established by the contributions of shareholders in the nature of a joint stock company.

Even if the rules provide for the distribution of any surplus amongst the members, the Act overrides them, and the surplus must be disposed of as above (Re Bristol Athenæum, (1889) 43 Ch. D. 236; 59 L. J. Ch. 116).

LOCAL GOVERNMENT (ENGLAND AND WALES) ACT, 1888.

[51 & 52 VICT. c. 41.]

See infra, PARLIAMENTARY ELECTIONS.

LOCAL LOANS ACT, 1875.

[38 & 39 VICT. C. 83.]

Jurisdiction is given under sect. 12, where the local authority has for twenty-one days made default in paying an amount of not less than 500*l.* (whether in one or separate sums), in respect of any security issued under the Act. The persons entitled to the amount or any of such persons may, as an additional remedy, apply to the county court to appoint a receiver, and the court may appoint and may make such orders and give such directions as to the powers and duties of the receiver as may be thought fit.

Further, under sect. 25, if the name of any person is without sufficient cause entered in or omitted from the register of securities issued under the Act (sect. 23), where the value of such securities does not exceed 50*l.*, proceedings for rectification of the register may be taken in the county court.

Practice.—The application under either section shall be by petition presented to the court of the district in which the local authority exercises its authority; the procedure is governed by Order L. rr. 6—8, infra.

12. Where a local authority makes default for a period of twenty-one days in paying an amount of not less than five hundred pounds (whether in one sum or separate sums) for the time being due on or in respect of any security issued under this Act, the persons entitled to the said amount, or any of such persons, may, instead of or in addition to bringing an action or actions, apply to the county court for the appointment of a receiver, and any receiver so appointed (subject to any direction which may be given by the court) shall from time to time raise as hereinafter mentioned, by or out of the local rate or property charged, sufficient money to pay the amount the payment of which is so in default, and all sums due while he is receiver on or in respect of any such security, together with all costs, charges, and expenses incurred in or about the appointment of such receiver and the execution of his duties under this section, including a proper remuneration for his trouble, and shall render to the defaulting authority the balance, if any, remaining in his hands after making the said payments.

Where the amount so due or authorised to be raised is charged on the local rate, the receiver may raise the money he is authorised to raise under this section by means of the local rate, and for that purpose shall have the same power as the defaulting authority of levying the local rate, and the receiver shall have such access to and use of the documents of the defaulting authority relative to the local rate as he may require.

Where the amount so due or authorised to be raised is charged on any property, other than the local rate, the receiver may raise the sum which he is authorised to raise under this section by receipt of the rents and profits of the property, and if the security involves a power of sale as in this Act mentioned, by sale of the property in such manner and subject to such conditions of sale and otherwise as the court may direct.

A county court may appoint a receiver under this section with respect to any local rate levied, or any property situate wholly or partly within the jurisdiction of such court, and may remove such receiver and appoint another in his stead, and so from time to time; and may make such orders and give such directions as

Section 12. to the powers and duties of the receiver, and otherwise as to the disposal of the moneys received by him, as may be thought fit for carrying this section into effect.

LOAN SOCIETIES ACT, 1840.

[3 & 4 VICT. C. 110.]

Practice.—Proceedings will be by plaint and summons, and the ordinary practice of the court applies.

Recovery of loans in courts of request. 17. And be it declared and enacted, that notwithstanding the provisions hereinbefore contained, the treasurer or clerk of such society for the time being may proceed for the recovery of the sum due on such note against the party or parties liable to pay the same, in any county court, or court of conscience or request, having jurisdiction to the amount so due, according to the course and practice of such courts; and in such case the Act or Acts, and all provisions therein relating to such court and the powers thereof, shall be applicable to the recovery of the sum so due on such note.

THE LONDON BUILDING ACTS, 1894 AND 1905.

[57 & 58 VICT. C. CCXIII.; 5 EDW. VII. C. CCIX.—PRIVATE ACTS.]

Jurisdiction is given to the county court by sect. 91 to hear appeals against an award made by surveyor or surveyors as to differences between building owners and adjoining owners within the limits of the administrative county of London; by sect. 94 to settle any difference as to security between a building owner and an adjoining owner; by sect. 168 to settle the time and manner of executing any work, or of doing any other thing, and to put the parties upon terms as to the execution of the work. By sect. 196, where any consent has to be given to, any notice served on, or any thing done by or to any owner, and there is no owner, or the owner cannot be found, the judge of the county court may give such consent and do or cause such thing to be done on such terms as he may think fit, or may dispense with the service of any notice. By sect. 200, sub-s. 11 (d), (e), the failure to comply with any order of the county court made in pursuance of the Act, or the refusal to admit at a reasonable time any builder to any building or in any way to prevent a builder from complying with any order of the county court, causes a person so offending to be liable upon summary conviction to penalties. By sect. 20 of the Act of 1905 (supra) the owner of any building who has paid or incurred the expenses of executing any work in respect of such building which the owner of such building is required to execute under the provisions of this Act or has paid any other expenses which by any such provision as aforesaid are required to be borne or paid by the owner may, if he thinks fit, apply to the county court of the district in which such building is situate and such court may thereupon issue a summons requiring the several persons entitled to any estate or interest in the building to appear before the court and the court may make such order concerning such expenses or their apportionment among all the several persons entitled to any estate or interest in the building as appears to the court to be just and equitable in the circumstances of the case, regard being had to the terms of any lease or contract affecting such building.

Removal to High Court.]—By sect. 91, sub-s. 5, if the appellant satisfies the judge that the matter involves a liability to pay a sum, exclusive of costs, exceeding 50*l.*, and gives security, proceedings in the county court are to be stayed, and the appellant may bring an action against the other party in the High Court, the costs incurred in the county court are to be deemed to be costs incurred in such action.

Practice is settled by Order L. rr. 30—32 (post, p. 2146). Rule 30 settles the practice of appeals from an award under sect. 91; Rule 31, the practice where security is demanded under sect. 94; and Rule 32, the practice on an application made under sect. 196. Poundage is estimated on the amount in dispute; if no amount is in dispute, or is unascertained, as on a claim for 20*l.*

Appeal from County Court.]—In any matter in which jurisdiction is given to a county court by the Act, any person has, by sect. 168, the same right of appeal as he would have under the County Courts Act, 1888, s. 120.

See Monroe v. Lord Burghclere, (1918) 1 K. B. 291.

aiding, within their respective jurisdictions, in the execution of the warrant so endorsed as aforesaid. Section 94.

The City of London court being now substantially a county court (51 & 52 Vict. c. 43, ss. 84, 185, 186), and subject to the general provisions applicable to county courts, it is believed that no provision in aid of that court is necessary, though appeal in an original mayor's court action must still be brought where no leave to appeal is given within two days (see Newman v. Klausner, (1922) 91 L. J. K. B. 125).

95. That in all cases where a warrant of execution shall have issued against the goods and chattels of any party, or an order for his commitment shall have been made, under the before-mentioned Act for the more easy recovery of small debts and demands in England, and such party or his goods and chattels shall be or be believed to be within the city of London or the liberties thereof, it shall be lawful for the high bailiff of the county court from which such warrant of execution shall have issued, or by which such order of commitment shall have been made, to send such warrant or order to the chief bailiff of the sheriffs court, with a warrant thereto annexed under the hand of the high bailiff and the seal of the county court from which the original warrant or order issued, requiring execution of the same, and the clerk of the sheriffs court shall seal or stamp the same with the seal of the court holden under the provisions of this Act, and shall issue the same to the chief bailiff of the court; and thereupon such chief bailiff shall be authorized and required to act in all respects as if the original warrant of execution or order of commitment had been directed to him by the court holden under the authority of this Act, and shall, within such time as shall be specified in the rules of practice, return to the high bailiff of the county court from which the same originally issued what he shall have done in the execution of such process; and in case a levy shall have been made shall, within such time as shall be specified in the rules of practice, pay over all moneys received in pursuance of the warrant to the high bailiff of the court from which the same shall have originally issued, retaining the fees for execution of the process; and where any order of commitment shall have been made, and the person apprehended mentioned in such order shall be within the city of London or the liberties thereof, he shall be forthwith conveyed in the custody of the bailiff or officer apprehending him to some gaol, house of correction or other prison within the city of London or the liberties thereof, and kept therein for the time mentioned in the warrant of commitment, unless sooner discharged under the provisions of the before-mentioned Act for the recovery of small debts and demands in England, or under any Act altering or amending the same.

How execution out of any county court may be had within the jurisdiction of this court.

[53 & 54 VICT. c. 5.]

AS AMENDED BY LUNACY ACT, 1891 (54 & 55 VICT. c. 65).

MENTAL DEFICIENCY ACT, 1913.

[3 & 4 GEO. V. c. 28.]

Jurisdiction.—By sect. 132 of the Act of 1890, where a reception order has been made in the case of a lunatic, the value of whose real and personal estate is under 200*l.*, and no relative or friend is willing to undertake the management of such property, any judge of county courts having jurisdiction in the place from which the lunatic is sent, upon application of a clerk to the guardians or relieving officer, may authorise such persons to take possession of and realise the property of the lunatic, and exercise the powers of a legal personal representative as if the lunatic were dead. Also, by sect. 300, upon application by the guardians of a union, a county court judge may make an order to be enforced against any property of the lunatic for payment of expenses incurred in relation to a lunatic.

Since the passing of this statute, patients, not being paupers or lunatics so found by inquisition, can be received only under an order made by a "judicial authority"; by sect. 9, a county court judge may exercise the powers of a "judicial authority," but is not required to exercise such powers so as to interfere with or delay the exercise of his ordinary jurisdiction. In such case he must sign and send the certificate as provided.

The judge of county courts by sect. 19 of the Mental Deficiency Act, 1913, is made a judicial authority under that Act. In s. cts. 5—9 of that Act and the Regulations (post, pp. 2159—2163) the requirements as to making orders by the judicial authority are enacted. The judicial authority is entitled to be assisted by the same officers as if he was acting in the exercise of his ordinary jurisdiction.

Practice.—An application under sects. 132 and 300 of the Act of 1890 shall be made by petition and same procedure followed, and costs allowed as on a petition under Order XXXVIII. (see Order L. r. 17, post, p. 2156). The practice when the judge is acting as a judicial authority is provided by sects. 4—7 of the Act of 1890, and is initiated by a petition accompanied by particulars and two medical certificates on separate sheets of paper. The petition shall be considered in private, and, except by leave of the judicial authority, no one except the petitioner, the alleged lunatic, one person appointed by the lunatic, and the persons signing the medical certificates shall be present. Petitions under the Act of 1913 follow the enactments of sects. 5—9 and Order XXXVIII. and Order L. r. 17. See also Regulations dated 2nd April, 1914, post, p. 2159.

Privilege.—On such an application, the judicial authority is acting judicially, and statements made during the proceedings are not actionable (Hodson v. Pare, (1899) 1 Q. B. 455; 68 L. J. Q. B. 309).

53 & 54 VICT. c. 5.

Private patients not found lunatic

4.—(1) Subject to the exceptions in this Act mentioned, a person not being a pauper or a lunatic so found by inquisition, shall not be received and detained as a lunatic in an institution for lunatics, or as a single patient, unless under a reception order made by the judicial authority hereinafter mentioned. A relative of the person applying for an order under this section or of the lunatic, or of the husband or wife of the lunatic, shall not be capable of making such order.

(2) The order shall be obtained upon a private application by petition accompanied by a statement of particulars and by two medical certificates on separate sheets of paper.

8.—(1) When a lunatic has been received as a private patient under an order of a judicial authority, without a statement in the order that the patient has been personally seen by such judicial authority, the patient shall have the right to be taken before or visited by a judicial authority, other than the judicial authority who made the order, unless the medical officer of the institution, or, in the case of a single patient, his medical attendant, within twenty-four hours after reception, in a certificate signed and sent to the Commissioners, states that the exercise of such right would be prejudicial to the patient.

(2) Where no such certificate has been signed and sent, the manager of the institution in which the patient is, or the person having charge of him as a single patient, shall, within twenty-four hours after reception, give to the patient a notice in writing of his right under this section, and shall ascertain whether he desires to exercise the right, and if he, within seven days after his reception, expresses his desire to exercise the right, such manager or person shall procure him to sign a notice of such desire, and shall forthwith transmit it by post in a prepaid registered letter to the judicial authority who is to exercise the jurisdiction under this section, or to the justices' clerk of the petty sessional division or borough where the lunatic is, to be by him transmitted to such judicial authority, and the judicial authority shall thereupon arrange, as soon as conveniently may be, either to visit the patient or to have the patient brought before him by the manager or person as the judicial authority may think fit.

(3) The judicial authority shall be entitled, if he desires so to do, to see the medical certificates and any other documents, upon the consideration of which the reception order was made, and shall after personally seeing the patient send to the Commissioners a report, and the Commissioners shall take such steps as may be necessary to give effect to the report.

(4) For the purposes of this section the jurisdiction shall be exercised by any judicial authority having authority to act in the place where the person received is, and not being the judicial authority who made the reception order; and arrangements shall for that purpose from time to time be made amongst themselves by the persons having such authority as aforesaid.

9.—(1) The powers of the judicial authority under this Act shall be exercised by a justice of the peace specially appointed as hereinafter provided, or a judge of county courts, or magistrate.

Residue of sub-s. rep., 54 & 55 Vict. c. 65, s. 29.

132.—(1) Where a reception order is made in the case of a lunatic the value of whose real and personal property is under two hundred pounds, and no relative or friend of the lunatic is willing to undertake the management of such property, any judge of county courts having jurisdiction in the place from which the lunatic is sent, may, upon the application of the clerk of the guardians, or a relieving officer of the union from which the lunatic is sent, authorise the clerk or relieving officer, or such other person as the judge by his order appoints, to take possession of and sell and realise the real and personal property of the lunatic, and to exercise all the powers which could be exercised by the legal personal representative of the lunatic if he were dead; and the receipt of the person so authorised shall be a valid discharge to any person who pays any money or delivers any property of the lunatic to such person.

(2) The judge, by whom such order is made, may by the same or any subsequent orders give such directions as he thinks fit as to the application of the property of the lunatic for his benefit or in reimbursement of such sums as may have been or may be expended by the guardians of the union for his care or relief, or of the costs or expenses incurred in relation to the lunatic by such guardians, or by the person acting under any such order as aforesaid, or the judge may, if he thinks fit, order that the whole or any part of the proceeds of the lunatic's property be paid into the county court to the credit of an account intitled in the matter of such lunatic, and any sum so paid into court may either be invested in the manner provided by the county court rules in force for the time being, or be paid out of court from time to time to such person as the judge directs, to be held and applied for the benefit of such lunatic, or in or towards such reimbursement as aforesaid, in such manner as the judge directs.

(3) The person acting under any such order shall render an account of his dealings with the lunatic's property to the judge by whom such order was made in such manner as the judge appoints.

MENTAL DEFICIENCY ACT, 1913.

[3 & 4 GEO. V. c. 28.]

REQUIREMENTS AS TO THE MAKING OF ORDERS.

(See Regulations of 2nd April, 1914, post, p. 2159.)

NOTE.—The definition of a defective within the meaning of the Mental Deficiency Acts, 1913 to 1927 is now contained in sect. 1 of the 1927 Act (17 & 18 Geo. V. c. 33).

Presentation of petitions.

5.—(1) An order of a judicial authority under this Act shall be obtainable upon a private application by petition made by any relative or friend of the alleged defective, or by any officer of the local authority under this Act authorised in that behalf (a).

(2) Every petition shall be accompanied by two medical certificates, one of which shall be signed by a medical practitioner approved for the purpose by the local authority or the Board, or a certificate that a medical examination was impracticable, and by a statutory declaration made by the petitioner and by at least one other person (who may be one of the persons who gave a medical certificate) stating—

- (a) that the person to whom the petition relates is a defective within the meaning of this Act, and the class of defectives to which he is alleged to belong; and
- (b) that that person is subject to be dealt with under this Act, and the circumstances which render him so subject; and
- (c) whether or not a petition under this Act, or a petition for a reception order under the Lunacy Acts, 1890 to 1911, has previously been presented concerning that person, and, if such a petition has been presented, the date thereof and the result of the proceedings thereon; and
- (d) if the petition is accompanied by a certificate that a medical examination was impracticable, the circumstances which rendered it impracticable.

(3) If a petition is not presented by a relative or by an officer of the local authority, it shall contain a statement of the reasons why the petition is not presented by a relative, and of the connection of the petitioner with the person to whom the petition relates and the circumstances under which he presents the petition.

(4) Where the Board are satisfied that a petition under this section ought to be presented concerning any person, and that the local authority have refused or neglected to cause a petition to be presented, they may direct an inspector or other officer to present a petition, and this section shall apply accordingly.

Procedure on hearing petitions.

6.—(1) Upon the presentation of the petition and such documents as aforesaid, the judicial authority shall either visit the person to whom the petition relates or summon him to appear before him.

(a) See Rex v. Judge Radcliffe, (1915) 84 L. J. K. B. 2196.

Section 6.

(2) Proceedings before the judicial authority may, in any case if the judicial authority thinks fit, and shall, if so desired by the person to whom the petition relates, be conducted in private, and in that case no one except the petitioner, the person to whom the petition relates, his parents or guardian and any two persons appointed for the purpose by the person to whom the petition relates, or by his parents or guardian, and the persons signing the medical certificates and the statutory declaration accompanying the petition shall, without leave of the judicial authority, be allowed to be present.

(3) If the judicial authority is satisfied that the person to whom the petition relates is a defective and is also satisfied that he is subject to be dealt with under this Act, the judicial authority may, if he thinks it desirable to do so in the interests of such person, make an order either ordering him to be sent to an institution the managers of which are willing to receive him, or appointing a suitable person to be his guardian, and the order shall state the class of defectives to which he belongs, and the circumstances which render him subject to be dealt with under this Act :

Provided that—

(a) where the petition is not presented by the parent or guardian, the order shall not be made without the consent in writing of the parent or guardian, unless it is proved to the satisfaction of the judicial authority that such consent is unreasonably withheld, or that the parent or guardian cannot be found, or that, by reason of the parent or guardian being abroad, any attempt to obtain his consent would result in undue delay in dealing with the petition, but consent shall not be deemed to be unreasonably withheld if withheld with the bonâ fide intention of benefiting the defective; and

(b) nothing in this section shall prevent an order being made, notwithstanding that the person to whom the petition relates does not appear to the judicial authority to belong to the class of defectives to which he is in the petition alleged to belong, if the judicial authority is satisfied that he is a defective.

(4) If the judicial authority is not satisfied that the person to whom the petition relates is a defective, and subject to be dealt with under this Act, or that it is desirable in the interests of such person that an order should be made, the judicial authority may, if he thinks fit, adjourn the case for a period not exceeding fourteen days for further evidence or information, and may order that the person to whom the petition relates shall submit himself to medical examination, or may dismiss the petition :

Provided that, unless the petition is dismissed, the judicial authority shall order a medical examination in any case where the petition was accompanied by a certificate that a medical examination was impracticable.

NOTE.—Words in italics added by Mental Deficiency Act, 1927, s. 4.

7.—(1) Where an order has been made that a defective be placed under guardianship the judicial authority which made the order, or any other judicial authority, or, where the original order was not made by a judicial authority, any judicial authority may, on application being made for the purpose by the guardian or by the Board or by the local authority, and on being satisfied

(2a) Where an order has been made that a defective be sent to an institution, the judicial authority which made the order, or any other judicial authority, or where the original order was not made by a judicial authority, any judicial authority may, on application being made for the purpose by the Board, or by the local authority, and on being satisfied that the case is or has become one suitable for guardianship, order that the defective be placed under guardianship.

New clause added by Mental Deficiency (Amendment) Act, 1925 (15 & 16 Geo. V. c. 53).

(3) An order under this section shall not be made without giving to the local authority and, where practicable, to the relative or other person who presented the original petition and to the parent or guardian of the defective, an opportunity of being heard.

Procedure in cases of persons guilty of offences, etc. 8 Edw. VII. c. 57.

8.—(1) On the conviction by a court of competent jurisdiction of any person of any criminal offence punishable in the case of an adult with penal servitude or imprisonment, or on a child brought before a court under section fifty-eight of the Children Act, 1908, being found liable to be sent to an industrial school, the court, if satisfied on medical evidence that he is a defective within the meaning of this Act, may either—

- (a) postpone passing sentence or making an order for committal to an industrial school, and direct that a petition be presented to a judicial authority under this Act with a view to obtaining an order that he be sent to an institution or placed under guardianship; or
- (b) in lieu of passing sentence or making an order for committal to an industrial school, itself make any order which if a petition had been duly presented under this Act the judicial authority might have made, which order shall have the like effect as if it had been made by a judicial authority on a petition under this Act:

Provided that, if the court is a court of summary jurisdiction and the case is one which the court has power to deal with summarily, the court, if it finds that the charge is proved, may give such directions or make such order as aforesaid without proceeding to a conviction, and such a person shall for the purposes of this Act be deemed to be a person found guilty of an offence.

(2) The court may act either on the evidence given during the trial or other proceedings, or may call for further medical or other evidence.

(3) Where the court so directs a petition to be presented against a person, it may order him to be detained in an institution for defectives or in a place of safety for such time as is required for the presentation of the petition and the adjudication thereof.

(4) Where it appears to any court of summary jurisdiction by which a person charged with an offence is remanded or committed for trial that such person is a defective, the court may order that pending the further hearing or trial he shall be detained in an institution for defectives, or be placed under the guardianship of any person on that person entering into a recognisance for his appearance.

(5) Where it appears to the police authority that any person charged with an offence is a defective, they shall communicate with the local authority, and it shall be the duty of the police authority to bring before the court such evidence as to his mental condition as may be available :

Provided that, where it is intended to bring such evidence before the court, the police authority shall give notice of the intention to the person charged, and to his parent or guardian, if known.

NOTE.—As to detention of the defective if it is found impracticable to present a petition or the petition is dismissed, see sect. 5 of Mental Deficiency Act, 1927.

19.—(1) Any judge of county courts, police or stipendiary magistrate, or specially appointed justice who is a judicial authority for the purposes of the Lunacy Acts, 1890 to 1911, shall be a judicial authority for the purposes of this Act, and the number of justices specially appointed to be judicial authorities under those Acts shall be such as may be considered necessary to exercise the powers conferred by this Act as well as by those Acts on a judicial authority (a).

NOTE.—(a) Justices sitting as a judicial authority under this Act have no power to state a case, as their functions are only administrative (Newman v. Foster, (1917) 86 L. J. K. B. 360. By analogy with this case a county court judge exercising such jurisdiction is only acting in an administrative capacity).

(2) Every judicial authority shall, in the exercise of the jurisdiction conferred by this Act, have the same jurisdiction and power as regards the summoning and examination of witnesses, the administration of oaths, costs, and otherwise, as if he were acting in the exercise of his ordinary jurisdiction, and shall be assisted, if he so requires, by the same officers as if he were so acting, and their assistance under this Act shall be considered in fixing their remuneration.

PROVISIONAL REGULATIONS MADE BY THE SECRETARY OF STATE UNDER THE MENTAL DEFICIENCY ACT, 1913 (3 & 4 Geo. V. c. 28).

(IN SO FAR AS THEY AFFECT THE DUTIES OF A COUNTY COURT JUDGE, AS A "JUDICIAL AUTHORITY" UNDER THE ACT.)

I hereby certify in pursuance of Section 2 of the Rules Publication Act, 1893, that on account of urgency the following Regulations shall come into immediate operation, and in pursuance of the powers conferred on me by the Mental Deficiency Act, 1913, I hereby make the following Regulations to come into operation forthwith as Provisional Regulations :—

Reg. 1.

1. These Regulations may be cited as the Mental Deficiency Act Provisional Regulations, 1914.

2. In these Regulations, unless the context otherwise requires, "The Act" means the Mental Deficiency Act, 1913.

"The Board" means the Board of Control.

"A Commissioner" or "Commissioners" means a Commissioner or Commissioners of the Board of Control.

"Guardian," except when used in the phrase "parent or guardian," means a guardian appointed under the Act.

Other words have the same meaning as in the Act.

3. The penalty for a breach of any of these Regulations shall, where no other penalty is prescribed, be a penalty not exceeding a fine of 20*l*.

25. Where proceedings are taken for the placing of a defective under guardianship, the local authority which may become responsible for his maintenance shall lay before the judicial authority the names of such persons, including relatives of the defective, as are in their opinion suitable persons to undertake the duties of guardianship under this Act.

26. No person who already has charge of a defective or a person certified under the Lunacy Acts shall be recommended to the judicial authority as a suitable person to undertake the duties of guardianship without the consent of the Board.

27. The local authority, on becoming aware that a defective for whose maintenance they are responsible is or has become unsuitable for guardianship or that a guardian is unfit for the office of guardian or has died or resigned or abandoned his office, shall take all necessary steps for the care and protection of the defective.

PROCEDURE ON PETITIONS.

30. No person shall present a petition unless he is at least 21 years of age, and has, within 14 days before the presentation of the petition, personally seen the alleged defective.

31. No petition shall be presented unless signed by the petitioner and accompanied by the certificate or certificates and the statutory declaration required by the Act and a statement of particulars.

32. If the petition is presented by a relative or friend, the petitioner shall in the petition undertake that he will personally, or by someone specially appointed by him, visit the defective once at least in every six months, and the undertaking shall be recited in the order.

33.—(a) The judicial authority shall visit the defective or summon him to appear before him as soon as practicable after receiving the petition.

(b) After seeing the alleged defective, the judicial authority shall either forthwith consider the petition and make an order thereon or dismiss the same, or shall appoint as early a time as practicable, not being more than seven days from the presentation of the petition for considering the same, and notice of the time appointed shall be given to the petitioner, the alleged defective, the parent or guardian, and the local authority (if any) concerned.

(c) If the proceedings are to be conducted in private, the notice shall so state, and shall also state what persons will be allowed to be present.

34. If a petition is dismissed, the judicial authority shall deliver to the petitioner a statement in writing under his hand of his reasons for dismissing the same, and shall send a copy of such statement to the Board.

35. If, after a petition has been dismissed, another petition is presented as to the same alleged defective, the person presenting such other petition shall obtain from the Board, and present with his petition, a copy of the statement referred to in paragraph 34.

36. Any judicial authority making or refusing to make an order, shall, if so required by the Board, give to them all such information as they may require as to the circumstances in which the order was made or refused.

37.—(a) One of the medical certificates accompanying the petition shall whenever practicable be under the hand of the usual medical attendant, if any, of the alleged defective. If, for any reason, it is not practicable to obtain a certificate from such usual medical attendant, the reason shall be stated in the petition.

(b) Every medical certificate accompanying a petition shall state the facts upon which the certifier has formed his opinion that the alleged defective is a defective, distinguishing facts observed by himself from facts communicated by others, and an order shall not be made upon a certificate which is not founded wholly or in part upon facts observed by the certifier.

(c) An order shall not be made unless each medical practitioner who signs a certificate has, separately from the other medical practitioner, personally examined the alleged defective not more than seven clear days before the date of the presentation of the petition.

(d) A medical certificate accompanying a petition shall not be signed by the petitioner, or by the husband or wife, father or father-in-law, mother or mother-in-law, son or son-in-law, daughter or daughter-in-law, brother or brother-in-law, sister or sister-in-law, partner, or assistant of the petitioner.

(e) Neither of the persons signing the medical certificates accompanying the petition shall be the husband or wife, father or father-in-law, mother or mother-in-law, son or son-in-law, daughter or daughter-in-law, brother or brother-in-law, sister or sister-in-law, partner, or assistant of the other of them.

(f) A medical certificate shall not be signed by a visitor unless he is ordered by the judicial authority to examine the alleged defective.

(g) An order shall not be made sending any defective to an institution or certified house or placing him under guardianship where any certificate accompanying the petition has been signed by any of the following persons:—

- (i.) A manager or owner of the institution or certified house, or the person appointed guardian of the defective.
- (ii.) Any person interested in the payments on account of the defective.

Reg. 37.

in-law, brother or brother-in-law, sister or sister-in-law, partner, or assistant of any of the foregoing persons.

(h) Where the person who joins with the petitioner in making the statutory declaration is not one of the persons who gave a medical certificate the following provisions shall apply to him :—

- (i.) He or she shall not be the husband or wife, father or father-in-law, mother or mother-in-law, son or son-in-law, daughter or daughter-in-law, brother or brother-in-law, sister or sister-in-law, partner or assistant of the petitioner, or of either of the persons who gave the medical certificates.
- (ii.) The preceding sub-section (g) shall apply as if he or she had signed one of the medical certificates.

38. The documents upon which an order is founded shall be attached to the order, and the order and documents shall be delivered or sent by post to the petitioner, and shall be delivered by him or his agent to the superintendent of the institution or certified house into which the defective is to be received or to the person appointed to be his guardian.

39. An order made upon a petition, if the same appears to be in conformity with this Act, shall be sufficient authority for the petitioner, or any person authorised by him, to take the defective and convey him to the place mentioned in such order, and for the defective's reception and detention therein, and the order may be acted on without further evidence of the signature or of the jurisdiction of the person making the order.

40. At any time before an order has been executed, the judicial authority who made it, or, if he is not available, any other judicial authority, may, on being satisfied that it is necessary or expedient so to do, revoke the order, or may vary the same by substituting another institution or certified house for the institution or certified house, or another guardian for the guardian named in the order; and an order so varied shall take effect as if the substituted institution, certified house, or guardian had been originally named therein.

41.—(1) When a patient has been received under an order into an institution or certified house or under guardianship—

- (a) If the order or any document upon which the same is founded be found to be in any respect incorrect or imperfect it may, with the sanction of a Commissioner, be amended or supplemented within fourteen days from the reception of the patient.
- (b) If the Board or any two Commissioners deem the order or any document upon which the same is founded to be incorrect or defective they may authorise such order or document to be amended or supplemented as they shall, by notice to the superintendent of the institution or certified house or to the guardian, direct. If the order or document is not amended or supplemented in accordance with the direction so given within fourteen days or such longer period as may be allowed for the purpose, the Board or any two Commissioners may, if they think fit, make an order for the patient's discharge.

(2) Every order and document amended or supplemented under this section shall take effect as if the amendment or supplementary matter had been contained therein when it was signed.

Reg. 42.

42. No proceedings on a petition shall be conducted in a police court or other court or room used for the hearing of criminal charges.

43. The Forms P1 to P9 in the Schedule hereto or forms to the like effect may be used wherever applicable with such modifications as circumstances require.

TRANSFER OF PATIENT UNDER GUARDIANSHIP TO AN INSTITUTION OR CERTIFIED HOUSE OR TO ANOTHER GUARDIAN.

235. When a patient ordered to be placed under guardianship is or becomes unsuitable for guardianship, the local authority, in default of application by the person appointed guardian, shall, unless the Board otherwise direct, apply to a judicial authority for an order that the patient be sent to an institution or certified house.

236. The local authority, in default of application by any person who appears to be interested, shall, unless the Board otherwise direct, apply to a judicial authority for an order

(a) for the removal of any person appointed guardian who is or becomes unsuitable, or abandons his charge ;

(b) for the appointment of a suitable person in the place of a person appointed guardian who has been removed, has died, or has resigned, or is about to resign his office.

237. "The local authority" for the purpose of these regulations shall mean the local authority (if any) paying or contributing to the expenses of the patient's guardianship, or, if there be none such, the local authority within whose area the patient is detained under guardianship.

MARRIED WOMEN'S PROPERTY ACT, 1882.

[45 & 46 VICT. c. 75.]

Jurisdiction.—Besides such jurisdiction as the county court has under its ordinary legal and equitable jurisdiction, the judge of the county court of the district in which either party resides, irrespective of the value of the property in dispute, has, under sect. 17, upon application by summons in a summary way, power to make such order with respect to the title to or possession of property as to which there is any question between husband and wife as he shall think fit, subject in all proceedings in a county court in which, by reason of the value of the property in dispute, such court would not have had jurisdiction if this Act or the Married Women's Property Act, 1870, had not passed to being removed at the option of the defendant as of right into the High Court by certiorari or otherwise as may be prescribed.

The said judge has also under sect. 10, upon an application under sect. 17, power to order a fraudulent investment made by the wife with money of the husband, and the dividends thereof, to be transferred and paid to the husband.

By sect. 11, a policy of assurance effected by a man on his own life, but expressed to be for the benefit of his wife and/or his children, and by wife on her own life for the benefit of her husband and/or her children, shall create a trust in favour of the objects therein named. If at the time of the death of the insured, or at any time afterwards, there is no trustee or it is expedient to appoint a new trustee, such appointment may be made by a county court having jurisdiction under the Trustee Acts, that is in any case where the amount does not exceed 500*l*.

Practice.—This is determined by Order XLVI. (post. p. 2172). As to sect. 17, by Rule 2 of the said Order, particulars of the question to be submitted to the court must be filed, and thereupon a summons (Form 433) shall be issued, paying the same fee as upon the entry of a plaint; all subsequent proceedings as in an ordinary case; as to sect. 11, Rule 1 of the said Order determines the procedure.

Costs.—The judge shall direct upon what scale they are to be taxed.

Appeal.—Any order made by the judge under sect. 17 is subject to an appeal as in an equitable suit.

11. A married woman may by virtue of the power of making contracts hereinbefore contained effect a policy upon her own life or the life of her husband for her separate use ; and the same and all benefit thereof shall enure accordingly. Section 11.

A policy of assurance effected by any man on his own life, and expressed to be for the benefit of his wife, or of his children, or of his wife and children, or any of them, or by any woman on her own life, and expressed to be for the benefit of her husband, or of her children, or of her husband and children, or any of them, shall create a trust in favour of the objects therein named, and the moneys payable under any such policy shall not, so long as any object of the trust remains unperformed, form part of the estate of the insured, or be subject to his or her debts : Provided, that if it shall be proved that the policy was effected and the premiums paid with intent to defraud the creditors of the insured, they shall be entitled to receive, out of the moneys payable under the policy, a sum equal to the premiums so paid. The insured may by the policy, or by any memorandum under his or her hand, appoint a trustee or trustees of the moneys payable under the policy, and from time to time appoint a new trustee or new trustees thereof, and may make provision for the appointment of a new trustee or new trustees thereof, and for the investment of the moneys payable under any such policy. In default of any such appointment of a trustee, such policy, immediately on its being effected, shall vest in the insured and his or her legal personal representatives, in trust for the purposes aforesaid. If, at the time of the death of the insured, or at any time afterwards, there shall be no trustee, or it shall be expedient to appoint a new trustee or new trustees, a trustee or trustees or a new trustee or new trustees may be appointed by any court having jurisdiction under the provisions of the Trustee Act, 1850, or the Acts amending and extending the same. The receipt of a trustee or trustees duly appointed, or, in default of any such appointment, or in default of notice to the insurance office, the receipt of the legal personal representative of the insured shall be a discharge to the office for the sum secured by the policy or for the value thereof in whole or in part. Moneys payable under policy of assurance not to form part of estate of the insured.

c. 60.

17. In any question between husband and wife as to the title to or possession of property, either party, or any such bank, corporation, company, public body, or society as aforesaid in whose books any stocks, funds, or shares of either party are standing, may apply by summons or otherwise in a summary way to any judge of the High Court of Justice in England or in Ireland, according as such property is in England or Ireland, or (at the option of the applicant irrespectively of the value of the property in dispute) in England to the judge of the county court of the district, or in Ireland to the chairman of the civil bill court of the division in which either party resides, and the judge of the High Court of Justice or of the county court, or the chairman of the civil bill court (as the case may be) may make such order with respect to the property in dispute, and as to the costs of and consequent on the application as he thinks fit, or may direct such application to stand over from time to time, and any inquiry touching the matters in question to be made in such manner as he shall think Questions between husband and wife as to property to be decided in a summary way.

Section 17. fit (a): Provided always, that any order of a judge of the High Court of Justice to be made under the provisions of this section shall be subject to appeal in the same way as an order made by the same judge in a suit pending or on an equitable plaint in the said court would be; and any order of a county or civil bill court under the provisions of this section shall be subject to appeal in the same way as any other order made by the same court would be, and all proceedings in a county court or civil bill court under this section in which, by reason of the value of the property in dispute, such court would not have had jurisdiction if this Act or the Married Women's Property Act, 1870, had not passed, may, at the option of the defendant or respondent to such proceedings, be removed as of right into the High Court of Justice in England or Ireland (as the case may be), by writ of certiorari or otherwise as may be prescribed by any rule of such High Court; but any order made or act done in the course of such proceedings prior to such removal shall be valid, unless order shall be made to the contrary by such High Court: Provided also, that the judge of the High Court of Justice or of the county court, or the chairman of the civil bill court, if either party so require, may hear any such application in his private room: Provided also, that any such bank, corporation, company, public body, or society as aforesaid, shall, in the matter of any such application for the purposes of costs or otherwise, be treated as a stakeholder only.

NOTE.—(a) A judge of the High Court cannot refer the whole subject matter of an originating summons under this section to an official referee for trial, and quære whether the court has jurisdiction to refer a question of account arising in the dispute under sect. 14 of the Arbitration Act, 1889 (In re Married Women's Property Act, 1882, between W. A. Humphery and H. A. Humphery, (1917) 2 K. B. 72; 86 L. J. K. B. 775). Note.—By like reasoning a county court judge cannot refer a question under this section to arbitration, but must try it himself.

NOTE.—A married woman cannot sue her husband in tort (Hulton v. Hulton, (1917) 1 K. B. 813; 86 L. J. K. B. 633) though she may claim the rectification of a contract entered into by deed with her husband on the ground that she was induced to sign it by misrepresentation (ib.).

This only applies to engagements to sail from United Kingdom (Ritchie v. Larsen, (1899) 1 Q. B. 727 ; 68 L. J. Q. B. 335 ; see also Rowlands v. Miller, (1899) 1 Q. B. 735 ; 68 L. J. Q. B. 338.

Regulations as to allotment notes.

141.—(1) Any stipulation made by a seaman at the commencement of a voyage for the allotment of any part of his wages during his absence shall be inserted in the agreement with the crew, and shall state the amounts and times of the payments to be made.

(2) Where the agreement is required to be made in a form approved by the Board of Trade, the seaman may require that a stipulation be inserted in the agreement for the allotment by means of an allotment note, of any part (not exceeding one half) of his wages in favour either of a near relative or of a savings bank.

(3) Allotment notes shall be in a form approved by the Board of Trade.

(4) For the purposes of the provisions of this Act with respect to allotment notes—

- (a) the expression “ near relative ” means one of the following persons, namely, the wife, father, mother, grandfather, grandmother, child, grandchild, brother, or sister of the seaman.
- (b) the expression “ savings bank ” means a seaman's savings bank under this Act, or a trustee savings bank, or a post office savings bank.

This section must be read in conjunction with the Merchant Shipping (Seamen's Allotment) Act, 1911, post. See also sect. 62 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1906, post.

Notes.

Stipulation for Allotment.—By sect. 61 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1906 (6 Edw. VII. c. 48), after the seaman has signed the agreement, the superintendent or other officer is under an obligation to inquire of the seaman whether he requires a stipulation for allotment, and if the seaman does require it, then to insert it in the agreement, and any such stipulation is deemed to have been agreed to by the master.

142.—(1) An allotment in favour of a savings bank shall be made in favour of such persons, and carried into effect in such manner as may be prescribed by regulations of the Board of Trade.

Allotments through
banks.

(2) The sum received by a savings bank in pursuance of an allotment, shall be paid out only on an application made, through a superintendent or the Board of Trade, by the seaman himself, or, in case of his death, by some person to whom his property, if under one hundred pounds in value, may be paid under this Act.

143.—(1) The person in whose favour an allotment note under this Act is made may, unless the seaman is shown, in manner in this Act specified, to have forfeited or ceased to be entitled to the wages out of which the allotment is to be paid, recover the sums allotted, when and as the same are made payable, with costs from the owner of the ship with respect to which the engagement was made, or from any agent of the owner who has authorised the allotment, in the same court and manner in which wages of seamen not exceeding fifty pounds may be recovered under this Act; provided that the wife of a seaman, if she deserts her children, or so misconducts herself as to be undeserving of support from her husband, shall forfeit all right to further payments under any allotment made in her favour.

allotment
notes.

As to mode of recovering wages, see sects. 164 et seq.

(2) In any proceeding for such recovery, it shall be sufficient for the claimant to prove that he is the person mentioned in the note, and that the note was given by the owner or by the master or some authorised agent; and the seaman shall be presumed to be duly earning his wages, unless the contrary is shown to the satisfaction of the court, either

- (a) by the official statement of the change in the crew caused by his absence, made and signed by the master, as by this Act is required, or
- (b) by a certified copy of some entry in the official log book to the effect that he has left the ship, or
- (c) by a credible letter from the master of the ship to the same effect, or

Rights of Seamen in respect of Wages.

Right to wages, etc., when to begin.

155. A seaman's right to wages and provisions shall be taken to begin either at the time at which he commences work, or at the time specified in the agreement for his commencement of work or presence on board, whichever first happens.

Right to recover wages and salvage not to be forfeited.

156.—(1) A seaman shall not, by any agreement, forfeit his lien on the ship, or be deprived of any remedy for the recovery of his wages, to which, in the absence of the agreement, he would be entitled, and shall not, by any agreement, abandon his right to wages in case of the loss of the ship, or abandon any right that he may have or obtain in the nature of salvage; and every stipulation in any agreement inconsistent with any provision of this Act shall be void.

See The Leon Blum, (1915) C. A. 31 T. L. R. 582.

(2) Nothing in this section shall apply to a stipulation made by the seamen belonging to any ship, which, according to the terms of the agreement, is to be employed on salvage service, with respect to the remuneration to be paid to them for salvage services to be rendered by that ship to any other ship.

Wages not to depend on freight.

157.—(1) The right to wages shall not depend on the earning of freight; and every seaman and apprentice who would be entitled to demand and recover any wages, if the ship in which he has served had earned freight, shall, subject to all other rules of law and conditions applicable to the case, be entitled to demand and recover the same, notwithstanding that freight has not been earned; but in all cases of wreck or loss of the ship, proof that the seaman has not exerted himself to the utmost to save the ship, cargo, and stores, shall bar his claim to wages.

(2) Where a seaman or apprentice who would, but for death, be entitled by virtue of this section to demand and recover any wages, dies before the wages are paid, they shall be paid and applied in manner provided by this Act with respect to the wages of a seaman who dies during a voyage.

Wages on termination of service

158. Where the service of a seaman terminates before the date contemplated in the agreement, by reason of the wreck or loss of the ship, or of his being left on shore at any place abroad under a certificate granted as provided by this Act of his unfitness or inability to proceed on the voyage, he shall be entitled to wages up to the time of such termination, but not for any longer period. Section 158.

by wreck or illness.

NOTE.—This section has been amended by sect. 1 of the Merchant Shipping (International Labour Conventions) Act, 1925, see p. 2257.

“Loss of the Ship.”—See Austin Friars Co. v. Strack, (1905) 2 K. B. 315; 74 L. J. K. B. 683; Sivewright v. Allen, (1906) 2 K. B. 81; 75 L. J. K. B. 476; The Olympic (Wages), (1913) P. 92; Beal v. Horlock, (1916) 1 A. C. 486; 114 L. T. 193.

159. A seaman or apprentice shall not be entitled to wages for any time during which he unlawfully refuses or neglects to work, when required, whether before or after the time fixed by the agreement for his commencement of such work, nor, unless the court hearing the case otherwise directs, for any period during which he is lawfully imprisoned for any offence committed by him. Wages not to accrue during refusal to work or imprisonment

160. Where a seaman is by reason of illness incapable of performing his duty, and it is proved that the illness has been caused by his own wilful act or default, he shall not be entitled to wages for the time during which he is by reason of the illness, incapable of performing his duty. Forfeiture of wages, etc., of seaman when illness caused by
default.

161. Whenever in any proceeding relating to seamen's wages it is shown that a seaman or apprentice has in the course of the voyage been convicted of an offence by a competent tribunal, and rightfully punished for that offence by imprisonment or otherwise, the court hearing the case may direct any part of the wages due to the seaman, not exceeding three pounds, to be applied in reimbursing any costs properly incurred by the master in procuring the conviction and punishment. Costs of procuring punishment may be
from wages.

162. If a seaman, having signed an agreement, is discharged otherwise than in accordance with the terms thereof before the commencement of the voyage, or before one month's wages are earned, without fault on his part justifying that discharge, and without his consent, he shall be entitled to receive from the master or owner, in addition to any wages he may have earned, due compensation for the damage caused to him by the discharge not exceeding one month's wages, and may recover that compensation as if it were wages duly earned. Compensa-
seaman improperly discharged.

(a) they shall not be subject to attachment or arrestment from any court;

(b) an assignment or sale thereof made prior to the accruing thereof shall not bind the person making the same;

Section 163.

- (c) a power of attorney or authority for the receipt thereof shall not be irrevocable; and
- (d) a payment of wages to the seaman or apprentice shall be valid in law, notwithstanding any previous sale or assignment of those wages, or any attachment, incumbrance, or arrestment thereof.
- (2) Nothing in this section shall affect the provisions of this Act with respect to allotment notes.

But as to sub-s. 1 (b), see Rowlands v. Miller, (1899) 1 Q. B. 735; 68 L. J. Q. B. 338.

Mode of recovering Wages.

Summary proceedings
for wages.

164. A seaman or apprentice to the sea service or a person, duly authorised on his behalf, may as soon as any wages due to him, not exceeding fifty pounds, become payable, sue for the same before a court of summary jurisdiction in or near the place at which his service has terminated, or at which he has been discharged, or at which any person on whom the claim is made is or resides, and the order made by the court in the matter shall be final.

See notes to sect. 3, sub-s. 2, of the County Courts Admiralty Jurisdiction Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 71), ante.

“Shall be final.”—Notwithstanding sect. 33, sub-s. 1, of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879, no appeal by special case lies from an order made by a court of summary jurisdiction under this section; Wills & Sons v. McSherry, (1914) 1 K. B. 616; 83 L. J. K. B. 596, following and applying Westminster Corporation v. Gordon Hotels, (1908) A. C. 142; 77 L. J. K. B. 520.

Restrictions on suits for wages.

165. A proceeding for the recovery of wages not exceeding fifty pounds shall not be instituted by or on behalf of any seaman or apprentice to the sea service in any superior court of record in Her Majesty's dominions, nor as an admiralty proceeding in any court having admiralty jurisdiction in those dominions, except:

- (i.) where the owner of the ship is adjudged bankrupt; or
- (ii.) where the ship is under arrest or is sold by the authority of any such court as aforesaid; or
- (iii.) where a court of summary jurisdiction acting under the authority of this Act, refers the claim to any such court; or
- (iv.) where neither the owner nor the master of the ship is or resides within twenty miles of the place where the seaman or apprentice is discharged or put ashore.

See notes to sect. 3, sub-s. 2, of the County Courts Admiralty Jurisdiction Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 71), under heads “Limitation of Jurisdiction in Suits for Wages,” and “Other Claims Recoverable as Wages,” ante.

[Note.—“As an admiralty proceeding.”—This only excludes admiralty proceedings, and does not prevent common law proceedings in any county court.]

recoverable abroad in certain cases.

166.—(1) Where a seaman is engaged for a voyage or engagement which is to terminate in the United Kingdom, he shall not be entitled to sue in any court abroad for wages, unless he is discharged with such sanction as is required by this Act, and with the written consent of the master, or proves such ill-usage on the part or by authority of the master, as to warrant reasonable apprehension of danger to his life if he were to remain on board. Section 166.

(2) If a seaman on his return to the United Kingdom proves that the master or owner has been guilty of any conduct or default which but for this section would have entitled the seaman to sue for wages before the termination of the voyage or engagement, he shall be entitled to recover in addition to his wages such compensation not exceeding twenty pounds as the court hearing the case thinks reasonable.

167.—(1) The master of a ship shall, so far as the case permits, have the same rights, liens, and remedies for the recovery of his wages as a seaman has under this Act, or by any law or custom. Remedies of master for wages, disbursements, etc.

(2) The master of a ship, and every person lawfully acting as master of a ship, by reason of the decease or incapacity from illness of the master of the ship, shall, so far as the case permits, have the same rights, liens, and remedies for the recovery of disbursements or liabilities properly made or incurred by him on account of the ship as a master has for the recovery of his wages.

(3) If in any admiralty proceeding in any court having admiralty jurisdiction touching the claim of a master in respect of wages, or of such disbursements, or liabilities as aforesaid, any right of set-off or counterclaim is set up, the court may enter into and adjudicate upon all questions, and settle all accounts then arising or outstanding and unsettled between the parties to the proceeding, and may direct payment of any balance found to be due.

[NOTE.—For the considerable amount of case law bearing upon this important section reference should be made to a leading text-book upon the Act, as it is beyond the scope of this work.]

Power of Courts to rescind Contracts.

168. Where a proceeding is instituted in or before any court in relation to any dispute between an owner or master of a ship and a seaman or apprentice to the sea service arising out of or incidental to their relation as such, or is instituted for the purpose of this section, the court, if, having regard to all the circumstances of the case they think it just to do so, may rescind any contract between the owner or master and the seaman or apprentice, or any contract of apprenticeship, upon such terms as the court may think just, and this power shall be in addition to any other jurisdiction which the court can exercise independently of this section. Power of court to rescind contract between owner or master and seaman or apprentice.

Section 169.

Property of Deceased Seamen.

Property of seamen who die during voyage.

169.—(1) If any seaman or apprentice to the sea service belonging to a British ship, the voyage of which is to terminate in the United Kingdom, whether a foreign-going or a home trade ship, dies during that voyage, the master of the ship shall take charge of any money or effects belonging to the seaman or apprentice which are on board the ship.

(2) The master may, if he think fit, cause any of the effects to be sold by auction at the mast or otherwise by public auction.

(3) The master shall enter into the official log book the following particulars :—

(a) A statement of the amount of the money and a description of the effects :

(b) In case of a sale, a description of each article sold, and the sum received for each :

(c) A statement of the sum due to the deceased for wages and of the amount of deductions (if any) to be made from the wages.

(4) The entry shall be signed by the master and attested by a mate and some other member of the crew.

(5) The said money, effects, proceeds of sale of effects, and balance of wages are in this Act referred to as the property of the seaman or apprentice.

Dealing with and account of property of seamen who
voyage.

170.—(1) Where a seaman or apprentice dies as aforesaid, and the ship before coming to a port in the United Kingdom touches and remains for forty-eight hours at some port elsewhere, the master shall report the case to the British consular officer at such port, or if the port is in a British possession, to the officer of customs there, and shall give to the officer any information he requires as to the destination of the ship and probable length of the voyage.

(2) That officer may, if he thinks it expedient, require the property to be delivered and paid to him, and shall thereupon give to the master a receipt thereof, and endorse under his hand upon the agreement with the crew such particulars with respect thereto as the Board of Trade require.

(3) The receipt shall be produced by the master to a superintendent within forty-eight hours after his arrival at his port of destination in the United Kingdom.

(4) Where a seaman or apprentice dies as aforesaid, and the ship proceeds at once to a port in the United Kingdom without touching and remaining as aforesaid at a port elsewhere, or the consular officer or officer of customs does not require the delivery and payment of the property as aforesaid, the master shall, within forty-eight hours after his arrival at his port of destination in the United Kingdom, deliver and pay the property to the superintendent at that port. Section 170.

(5) In all cases where a seaman or apprentice dies during the progress of a voyage or engagement, the master shall give to the Board of Trade, or to the superintendent or officer to whom delivery and payment is made as aforesaid, such account in such form as they respectively require of the property of the deceased.

(6) A deduction claimed by the master in such account shall not be allowed unless verified, if an official log book is required to be kept, by an entry in that book made and attested as required by this Act, and also by such other vouchers (if any) as may reasonably be required by the Board of Trade or by the superintendent or officer to whom the account is given.

(7) A superintendent in the United Kingdom shall grant to a master, upon due compliance with such provisions of this section as relate to acts to be done at the port of destination, a certificate to that effect; and an officer of customs shall not clear inwards a foreign-going ship without the production of that certificate.

171.—(1) If the master of the ship fails to comply with the provisions of this Act with respect to taking charge of the property of a deceased seaman or apprentice, or to making in the official log-book the proper entries relating thereto, or to procuring the proper attestation of those entries as required by this Act, or to the payment or delivery of the property, he shall be accountable for the property to the Board of Trade, and shall pay and deliver the same accordingly, and shall in addition for each offence be liable to a fine not exceeding treble the value of the property not accounted for, or if such value is not ascertained not exceeding fifty pounds. Penalty for non-compliance with provisions as to property of deceased seamen.

(2) If any such property is not duly paid, delivered, or accounted for by the master, the owner of the ship shall pay, deliver, and account for the same, and such property shall be recoverable from him accordingly, and if he fails to account for and deliver or pay the same, he shall in addition to his liability for the same be liable to a fine not exceeding treble the value of the property not accounted for, delivered, or paid over, or, if such value be not ascertained, not exceeding fifty pounds.

(3) The property may be recovered in the same court and manner in which the wages of seamen may be recovered under this Act.

As to mode of recovering wages, see sects. 164 et seq.

See sect. 29 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1906, post, as to voyages terminating out of the United Kingdom.

Section 174.

Recovery of wages, etc., of seamen lost with their ship.

174.—(1) Where a seaman or apprentice is lost with the ship to which he belongs the Board of Trade may recover the wages due to him from the owner of the ship, in the same court and in the same manner in which seamen's wages are recoverable, and shall deal with those wages in the same manner as with the wages of other deceased seamen and apprentices under this Act.

(2) In any proceeding for the recovery of the wages, if it is shown by some official return produced out of the custody of the registrar-general of shipping and seamen, or by other evidence, that the ship has twelve months or upwards before the institution of the proceeding left a port of departure, she shall, unless it is shown that she has been heard of within twelve months after that departure, be deemed to have been lost with all hands on board either immediately after the time she was last heard of, or at such later time as the court hearing the case may think probable.

(3) Any duplicate agreement or list of the crew made out, or statement of the change of the crew delivered, under this Act, at the time of the last departure of the ship from the United Kingdom, or a certificate purporting to be a certificate from a consular or other public officer at any port out of the United Kingdom, stating that certain seamen and apprentices were shipped in the ship from the said port, shall, if produced out of the custody of the registrar-general of shipping and seamen, or of the Board of Trade, be, in the absence of proof to the contrary, sufficient proof that the seamen and apprentices therein named as belonging to the ship were on board at the time of the loss.

[Sects. 186 to 193, dealing with leaving seamen abroad and relief of distressed seamen are repealed by the Act of 1906, and sects. 31 to 43 of that Act should now be referred to; see post.]

Volunteering into the Navy.

* * * * *

Money and effects of seamen volunteer-ing into navy.

196.—(1) If a seaman, without having previously committed an act amounting to and treated by the master as desertion, leaves his ship in order to enter the naval service of Her Majesty, and is received into that service, the master shall deliver to him his effects on board the ship, and shall pay, subject to all just deductions, the proportionate amount of his wages down to the time of his entering Her Majesty's service, to the officer authorised to receive the seaman into that service, either in money or by bill drawn upon the owner, and payable at sight to the order of the accountant-general of the navy; and the receipt of that officer shall be a discharge for the money or bill so given; and the bill shall be exempt from stamp duty. Section 196.

(2) If the master fails so to deliver the seaman's effects, or to pay his wages, as by this section required, he shall, in addition to his liability to deliver and pay the same, be liable for each offence to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds.

(3) If any such bill be not duly paid when presented, the accountant-general of the navy or the seaman on whose behalf the bill is given, may sue thereon, or may recover the wages due by all or any of the means by which wages due to seamen are recoverable.

As to mode of recovering wages, see sects. 164 et seq.

Provisions, Health and Accommodation.

199. In either of the following cases; (that is to say,)

Allowance of short or bad provisions.

(i.) if during a voyage the allowance of any of the provisions for which a seaman has by his agreement stipulated is reduced (except in accordance with any regulations for reduction by way of punishment contained in the agreement with the crew, and also except for any time during which the seaman wilfully and without sufficient cause refuses or neglects to perform his duty, or is lawfully under confinement for misconduct either on board or on shore); or

(ii.) if it is shown that any of those provisions are or have during the voyage been bad in quality and unfit for use; the seaman shall receive, by way of compensation for that reduction, or bad quality, according to the time of its continuance, the following sums to be paid to him in addition to, and to be recoverable as, wages; (that is to say,)

provisions.

377.—(1) Nothing in the last preceding section shall take away or limit any remedy by action or before a court of summary jurisdiction which an owner or skipper would otherwise have for any breach of contract in respect of the matters constituting an offence under that section, but no owner or skipper shall be compensated more than once in respect of the same damage.

(2) Any question concerning the forfeiture of or deductions from the wages of a seaman or apprentice in the sea-fishing service may be determined in any proceeding lawfully instituted with respect to those wages, notwithstanding that the offence in respect of which the question arises, though by this Act made punishable by imprisonment as well as forfeiture, has not been made the subject of any criminal proceeding.

383.—(1) The wages of a skipper, seaman or apprentice of a fishing boat shall accrue from day to day.

(2) When wages are contracted for by the voyage or trip or the season or by the share, and not by a stated period of time, the amount accruing from day to day shall be an amount equal to the wages for the whole voyage or trip or season or the whole share (as the case may be), divided by the number of days occupied in the voyage or trip or season, but a skipper, seaman or apprentice shall not be entitled to more than what his share of the profits or catch made during the period he has actually served may or would have amounted to.

if any party to the dispute calls on him to decide it, and his decision thereon shall be final and binding on all persons.

(2) The decision shall, on the request of any party to the dispute, be put into writing, and any such written decision, if purporting to be signed by the superintendent, shall be admissible in evidence in manner provided by this Act.

(3) The decision may be enforced by any justice of the peace, within whose jurisdiction the person or goods of any one against whom the decision is given may be found, in the same manner as if the decision were an order made by a court of summary jurisdiction, and a skipper or seaman may also recover any sum adjudged due to him by any such decision as if it were wages.

420. (2) Every notice so given shall be communicated in the manner directed by the Board of Trade to the chief officer of customs at any port at which the ship may seek to obtain a clearance or transire ; and the ship shall be detained, until a certificate under the hand of a surveyor of ships is produced to the effect that the ship is properly provided with lights and with the means of making fog signals, in conformity with the collision regulations.

(3) For the purpose of an inspection under this section a surveyor shall have all the powers of a Board of Trade inspector under this Act.

Section 420.

(4) Where the certificate as to lights and fog signals is refused, an owner may appeal to the court of survey for the port or district where the ship for the time being is in manner directed by the rules of that court.

(5) On any such appeal the judge of the court of survey shall report to the Board of Trade on the question raised by the appeal, and the Board of Trade, when satisfied that the requirements of the report and of this Act as to lights and fog signals have been complied with, may grant, or direct a surveyor of ships or other person appointed by them to grant, the certificate.

(6) Subject to any order made by the judge of court of survey the costs of and incidental to the appeal shall follow the event.

(7) A surveyor in making an inspection under this section shall, if the owner of the ship so require, be accompanied on the inspection by some person appointed by the owner, and, if in that case the surveyor and the person so appointed agree, there shall be no appeal under this section to the court of survey.

(8) Such fees as the Board of Trade may determine shall be paid in respect of an inspection of lights and fog signals under this section not exceeding those specified in the sixteenth schedule to this Act.

Dangerous Goods.

446.—(1) A person shall not send or attempt to send by any vessel, British or foreign, and a person not being the master or owner of the vessel, shall not carry or attempt to carry in any such vessel, any dangerous goods, without distinctly marking their nature on the outside of the package containing the same, and giving written notice of the nature of those goods and of the name and address of the sender or carrier thereof to the master or owner of the vessel at or before the time of sending the same to be shipped or taking the same on board the vessel.

Restrictions on carriage of
goods.

(2) If any person fails without reasonable cause to comply with this section, he shall for each offence be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds; or if he shows that he was merely an agent in the shipment of any such goods as aforesaid, and was not aware and did not suspect and had no reason to suspect that the goods shipped by him were of a dangerous nature, then not exceeding ten pounds.

(3) For the purpose of this part of this Act the expression "dangerous goods" means aquafortis, vitriol, naphtha, benzine, gunpowder, lucifer matches, nitro-glycerine, petroleum, any Section 446. explosives within the meaning of the Explosives Act, 1875, and any other goods which are of a dangerous nature.

Penalty for misdescription of dangerous goods.

447. A person shall not knowingly send or attempt to send by, or carry or attempt to carry in, any vessel, British or foreign, any dangerous goods under a false description, and shall not falsely describe the sender or carrier thereof, and if he acts in contravention of this section he shall for each offence be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred pounds.

Power to deal with goods suspected of being dangerous.

448.—(1) The master or owner of any vessel, British or foreign, may refuse to take on board any package or parcel which he suspects to contain any dangerous goods, and may require it to be opened to ascertain the fact.

(2) Where any dangerous goods, or any goods, which, in the judgment of the master or owner of the vessel, are dangerous goods, have been sent or brought aboard any vessel, British or foreign, without being marked as aforesaid, or without such notice having been given as aforesaid, the master or owner of the vessel may cause those goods to be thrown overboard, together with any package or receptacle in which they are contained; and neither the master nor the owner of the vessel shall be subject to any liability, civil or criminal, in any court for so throwing the goods overboard.

Forfeiture of dangerous goods improperly sent or carried.

449.—(1) Where any dangerous goods have been sent or carried, or attempted to be sent or carried, on board any vessel, British or foreign, without being marked as aforesaid, or without such notice having been given as aforesaid, or under a false description or with a false description of the sender or carrier thereof, any court having Admiralty jurisdiction may declare those goods, and any package or receptacle in which they are contained, to be, and they shall thereupon be, forfeited, and when forfeited shall be disposed of as the court direct.

(2) The court shall have, and may exercise, the aforesaid powers of forfeiture and disposal notwithstanding that the owner of the goods has not committed any offence under the provisions of this Act relating to dangerous goods, and is not before the court, and has not notice of the proceedings, and notwithstanding that there is no evidence to show to whom the goods belong; nevertheless the court may, in their discretion, require such notice as they may direct to be given to the owner or shipper of the goods before they are forfeited.

Saving for other enactments relating to dangerous goods.

450. The provisions of this part of this Act relating to the carriage of dangerous goods shall be deemed to be in addition to and not in substitution for, or in restraint of, any other enact-Unseaworthy Ships.

* * * * *

459.—(1) Where a British ship, being in any port in the United Kingdom, is an unsafe ship, that is to say, is by reason of the defective condition of her hull, equipments, or machinery, or by reason of undermanning, or by reason of overloading or improper loading, unfit to proceed to sea without serious danger to human life, having regard to the nature of the service for which she is intended, such ship may be provisionally detained for the purpose of being surveyed, or for ascertaining the sufficiency of her crew, and either finally detained or released as follows :—

Power to detain unsafe ships, and procedure for detention.

- (a) The Board of Trade, if they have reason to believe, on complaint or otherwise, that a British ship is unsafe, may order the ship to be provisionally detained as an unsafe ship for the purpose of being surveyed.
- (b) When a ship has been provisionally detained there shall be forthwith served on the master of the ship a written statement of the grounds of her detention, and the Board of Trade may, if they think fit, appoint some competent person or persons to survey the ship and report thereon to the Board.
- (c) The Board of Trade on receiving the report may either order the ship to be released, or, if in their opinion the ship is unsafe, may order her to be finally detained, either absolutely, or until the performance of such conditions with respect to the execution of repairs or alterations, or the unloading or reloading of cargo, or the manning of the ship, as the Board think necessary for the protection of human life, and the Board may vary or add to any such order.
- (d) Before the order for final detention is made a copy of the report shall be served upon the master of the ship, and within seven days after that service the owner or master of the ship may appeal to the court of survey for the port or district where the ship is detained in manner directed by the rules of that court.
- (e) Where a ship has been provisionally detained, the owner or master of the ship, at any time before the person appointed under this section to survey the ship makes that survey, may require that he shall be accompanied by such person as the owner or master may select out of the list of assessors for the court of survey, and in that case if the surveyor and assessor agree, the Board of Trade shall cause the ship to be detained or released accordingly, but if they differ, the Board of Trade may act as if the requisition had not been made, and the owner and master shall have the like appeal touching the report of the surveyor as is before provided by this section.

- (f) Where a ship has been provisionally detained, the Board of Trade may at any time, if they think it expedient, refer the matter to the court of survey for the port or district where the ship is detained.
- (g) The Board of Trade may at any time, if satisfied that a ship detained under this section is not unsafe, order her to be released either upon or without any conditions.

Undermanning.]—This section was extended to undermanning by sect. 1, sub-s. 1, of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1897 (60 & 61 Vict. c. 59). See sect. 8 (2) of the Merchant Shipping (Convention) Act, 1914.

(2) Any person appointed by the Board of Trade for the purpose (in this Act referred to as a detaining officer) shall have the same power as the Board have under this section of ordering the provisional detention of a ship for the purpose of being surveyed, and of appointing a person or persons to survey her; and if he thinks that a ship so detained by him is not unsafe may order her to be released.

(3) A detaining officer shall forthwith report to the Board of Trade any order made by him for the detention or release of a ship.

(4) An order for the detention of a ship, provisional or final, and an order varying the same, shall be served as soon as may be on the master of the ship.

(5) A ship detained under this section shall not be released by reason of her British register being subsequently closed.

(6) The Board of Trade may with the consent of the Treasury appoint fit persons to act as detaining officers under this section and may remove any such officer; and a detaining officer shall be paid such salary or remuneration (if any) out of money provided by Parliament as the Treasury direct, and shall for the purpose of his duties have all the powers of a Board of Trade inspector under this Act.

(7) A detaining officer and a person authorised to survey a ship under this section shall for that purpose have the same power as a person appointed by a court of survey to survey a ship, and the provisions of this Act with respect to the person so appointed shall apply accordingly. Section 459.

As to courts of survey, see sects. 487—489.

Mustering of Crew.]—By virtue of sub-s. 1 of sect. 1 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1897, the powers exercisable under this sect. 459 are to include power to muster the crew.

460.—(1) If it appears that there was not reasonable and probable cause, by reason of the condition of the ship or the act or default of the owner, for the provisional detention of the ship under this Part of this Act as an unsafe ship, the Board of Trade shall be liable to pay to the owner of the ship his costs of and incidental to the detention and survey of the ship, and also compensation for any loss or damage sustained by him by reason of the detention or survey. Liability for costs and damages.

(2) If a ship is finally detained under this Act, or if it appears that a ship provisionally detained was, at the time of that detention, an unsafe ship within the meaning of this Part of this Act, the owner of the ship shall be liable to pay to the Board of Trade their costs of and incidental to the detention and survey of the ship, and those costs shall, without prejudice to any other remedy, be recoverable as salvage is recoverable.

(3) For the purpose of this section the costs of and incidental to any proceeding before a court of survey, and a reasonable amount in respect of the remuneration of the surveyor or officer of the Board of Trade, shall be part of the costs of the detention and survey of the ship, and any dispute as to the amount of those costs may be referred to one of the officers following, namely in England or Ireland to one of the masters or registrars of the High Court, and in Scotland to the auditor of the Court of Session, and the officer shall, on request of the Board of Trade, ascertain and certify the proper amount of those costs.

(4) An action for any costs or compensation payable by the Board of Trade under this section may be brought against the Secretary of that Board by his official title as if he were a corporation sole, and if the cause of action arises in Ireland, and the action is brought in the High Court, that court may order that the summons or writ may be served on the Crown and Treasury Solicitor for Ireland in such manner and on such terms respecting extension of time and otherwise as the court thinks fit, and that service shall be sufficient service of the summons or writ upon the Secretary of the Board of Trade.

- (iii.) where the owner or master of the ship appeals to the court of survey, the consular officer, on his request, may appoint a competent person to be assessor in the case in lieu of the assessor who, if the ship were a British ship, would be appointed otherwise than by the Board of Trade.

Section 29.

Property of seaman dying on a ship the voyage of which does not terminate in the United Kingdom.

30.—(1) The master of a British ship shall not discharge a seaman at any place out of the United Kingdom (except at a port in the country in which he was shipped), unless he previously obtains, endorsed on the agreement with the crew, the sanction of the proper authority as defined for the purpose in this Part of this Act, but that sanction shall not be refused where the seaman is discharged on the termination of his service.

Sanction required for discharge of seamen out of the United Kingdom.

(2) The authority to whom an application is made for sanction under this section may, and, if not a merchant, shall, examine into the grounds on which a seaman is to be discharged at a place out of the United Kingdom, and for that purpose may, if he thinks fit, administer oaths and may grant or refuse the sanction as he thinks just, but such sanction shall not be unreasonably withheld.

(3) If the master of a ship fails to comply with this section, he shall, in respect of each offence, be guilty of a misdemeanour, and in any legal proceeding for the offence it shall lie on the master to prove that the sanction was obtained or could not be obtained or was unreasonably withheld.

31. (2) If the master fails, without reasonable cause, to comply with this section, the expenses of maintenance and of the journey to the proper return port,—

(a) if defrayed by the seaman, shall be recoverable as wages due to him ; and

(b) if defrayed by the proper authority or by any other person, shall (unless the seaman has been guilty of barratry) be a charge upon the ship to which the seaman belonged, and may also be recovered against the person who is the owner of the ship for the time being, or, where the ship has been lost, against the person who was the owner of the ship at the time of the loss, or, where the ship has been transferred to some person not being a British subject, either against the owner for the time being or against the person who was the owner of the ship at the time of the transfer, at the suit of the proper authority or other person defraying the expenses, or, in case they have been allowed to the authority or person out of public money, as a debt to the Crown, either by ordinary process of law or in the court and in the manner in which wages may be recovered by seamen.

(3) This section shall not apply in the case of a foreign seaman who has been shipped at a port out of the United Kingdom and discharged at a port out of the United Kingdom.

34.—(1) If the master of, or a seaman belonging to, a ship receives any hurt or injury in the service of the ship, or suffers from any illness (not being venereal disease, or an illness due to his own wilful act or default or to his own misbehaviour), the expense of providing the necessary surgical and medical advice and attendance and medicine, and also the expenses of the maintenance of the master or seaman until he is cured, or dies, or is returned to a proper return port, and of his conveyance to the port, and in the case of death the expense (if any) of his burial, shall be defrayed by the owner of the ship, without any deduction on that account from his wages. Expenses of medical attendance in case of injury or illness.

“Venereal Disease, &c.” to be omitted. See Merchant Shipping Acts (Amendment) Act, 1923.

(2) If the master or a seaman is on account of any illness temporarily removed from his ship for the purpose of preventing infection, or otherwise for the convenience of the ship, and subsequently returns to his duty, the expense of the removal and of providing the necessary advice and attendance and medicine, and of his maintenance while away from the ship shall be defrayed in like manner.

(3) The expense of all medicines, surgical and medical advice, and attendance, given to a master or seaman whilst on board his ship shall be defrayed in like manner.

(4) In all other cases any reasonable expenses duly incurred by the owner for any seaman in respect of illness, and also any reasonable expenses duly incurred by the owner in respect of the burial of any seaman who dies whilst on service, shall, if duly proved, be deducted from the wages of the seaman.

[See National Health Insurance Act, 1924, sect. 62.]

35.—(1) If any of the expenses attendant on the illness, hurt, or injury of a seaman, which are to be paid under the Merchant Shipping Acts by the master or owner, are paid by any authority on behalf of the Crown, or if any other expenses in respect of the illness, hurt, or injury of any seaman whose wages are not accounted for under the Merchant Shipping Acts to that authority, are so paid, those expenses shall be repaid to the authority by the master or owner of the ship. Recovery of expenses from owner.

(2) If the expenses are not so repaid, the amount thereof shall with costs be a charge upon the ship, and be recoverable from the master or from the owner of the ship for the time being, or where the ship has been lost from the person who was the owner of the ship at the time of the loss, or, where the ship has been transferred

Section 35. — to some person not being a British subject, either from the owner for the time being or from the person who was the owner of the ship at the time of the transfer, as a debt to the Crown, either by ordinary process of law or in the court and in the manner in which wages may be recovered by seamen.

(3) In any proceeding for such recovery, a certificate of the facts, signed by the said authority, together with such vouchers (if any) as the case requires, shall be sufficient proof that the said expenses were duly paid by that authority.

(2) If a master fails without reasonable cause to deliver the account, he shall for each offence be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding ten pounds, and, if he knowingly delivers a false account, he shall for each offence be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds, in addition in each case to the payment of the wages.

Payment of wages of seamen left behind on ground of unfitness or inability to proceed to sea.

38.—(1) The master shall pay the amount of wages due to a seaman left behind on the ground of his unfitness or inability to proceed to sea, if he is left in a British possession to the seaman himself, and if he is left elsewhere to the British consular officer.

(2) Where payment is made to a British consular officer, that officer shall retain one duplicate of the account delivered to him, and, if satisfied with the account, endorse on the other duplicate a receipt for the payment, and return it to the master, and the master shall deliver the duplicate within forty-eight hours of his return to his port of destination, if that port is in the United Kingdom, to the superintendent at that port, and, if that port is not in the United Kingdom, to the proper authority as defined for the purpose of this Part of this Act.

(3) The payment shall be made, whenever it is practicable, in money, and, when not so practicable, by bills drawn on the owner of the ship, but if payment is made by bill—

(b) if the bill is drawn by the master, the owner of the ship shall be liable to pay the amount to the holder or endorsee thereof ; and it shall not be necessary in any proceeding against the owner upon the bill to prove that the master had authority to draw it ;

(c) a bill purporting to be drawn and endorsed under this section shall, if produced out of the custody of the Board of Trade or of the Registrar-General of Shipping and Seamen, or of any superintendent, be admissible in evidence ; and any endorsement on any such bill purporting to be made in pursuance of this section shall also be admissible as evidence of the facts stated in the endorsement.

(4) If a master fails, without reasonable cause, to make such payment of wages as provided by this section, he shall for each offence be liable on summary conviction, in addition to the payment of the wages, to a fine not exceeding ten pounds.

39. Where the amount of wages due to a seaman left behind on the ground of his unfitness or inability to proceed to sea is so paid to a British consular officer, that officer shall deal with the sum so paid to him in the following manner, namely :—

(2) The debt, in addition to any fines which may have been incurred, may be recovered by the Board of Trade, on behalf of the Crown, either by ordinary process of law or in the court and manner in which wages may be recovered by seamen.

(3) In any proceeding for such recovery the production of the account (if any) of the expenses furnished in accordance with this Act or the distressed seamen regulations, and proof of payment of the expenses by or on behalf of the Board of Trade, shall be prima facie evidence that the expenses were incurred or repaid under this Act by or on behalf of the Crown.

(4) For the purpose of this section, excepted expenses are expenses incurred in cases where the certificate of the proper authority obtained on leaving a seaman behind states, or the Board of Trade are otherwise satisfied, that the cause of the seaman being left behind is desertion, or disappearance, or imprisonment for misconduct, or discharge from his ship by a naval court on the ground of misconduct, and expenses incurred on account of the return to a proper return port of a distressed seaman who has been discharged at the port at which he was shipped, or at some neighbouring port.

As to mode of recovering wages, see sects. 164 et seq. of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894.

owner.

1.—(1) If it is alleged that the owners of any ship are liable to pay damages in respect of personal injuries including fatal injuries caused by the ship, or sustained on, in, or about the ship in any port or harbour in the United Kingdom in consequence of the wrongful act, neglect, or default of the owners of the ship, or the masters or officers or crew thereof, or any other person in the employment of the owners of the ship, or of any defect in the ship or its apparel or equipment, and at any time that ship is found in any port or river of England or Ireland, or within three miles of the coast thereof, a judge of any court of record in England or Ireland may, upon its being shown to him by any person applying in accordance with rules of court that the owners are probably liable to pay damages in respect of such injuries, and that none of the owners reside in the United Kingdom, issue an order directed to any officer of customs or other officer named by the judge requiring him to detain the ship until such time as the owners, agent, master, or consignee thereof have made satisfaction in respect of the injuries, or have given security, to be approved by the judge, to abide the event of any action, suit, or other legal proceeding that may be instituted in respect of the injuries, and to pay all costs and damages that may be awarded thereon; and any officer of customs or other officer to whom the order is directed shall detain the ship accordingly.

For powers of detention in the case of damage done by a foreign ship, see sect. 688 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (57 & 58 Vict. c. 60).

An application in the County Court is to be made in accordance with Rules 39 & 40 of the Consolidated Workmen's Compensation Rules, July, 1913, until County Court Rules are made under this Act. (See the Rules of the Supreme Court (Shipowners' Negligence Remedies), 1925.)

Cf. sect. 688, sub-s. 3, of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894.

(3) Section six hundred and ninety-two of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, shall apply to the detention of a ship under this Act as it applies to the detention of a ship under that Act,

(4) The words "person applying" in this section shall include an employer who has paid compensation or against whom a claim for compensation has been made under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1897, as amended by any subsequent enactment, if he shows the judge that he probably is or will become entitled to be indemnified under that Act, and in such case this section shall apply as if the employer were a person claiming damages in respect of personal injuries.

(2) An order under this Act shall be directed to some officer of customs and excise, or some other officer named in the order, and shall require him to detain the ship until such time as satisfaction has been made by the owners, agent, master, or consignee thereof in respect of the claim, or until security, to be approved by the judge, has been given by them or him, to abide the event of any action, suit, or other legal proceeding that may be instituted in respect of the claim, and to pay all costs and damages that may be awarded thereon, and where any such order is made, the officer to whom the order is directed shall detain the ship accordingly.

MARITIME CONVENTIONS ACT, 1911.

[1 & 2 GEO. V. c. 57.]

PROVISIONS AS TO COLLISIONS, &c.

1.—(1) Where, by the fault of two or more vessels, damage or loss is caused to one or more of those vessels, to their cargoes or freight, or to any property on board, the liability to make good the damage or loss shall be in proportion to the degree in which each vessel was in fault : Rule as to division of loss.

Provided that—

(a) if, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, it is not possible to establish different degrees of fault, the liability shall be apportioned equally ; and

(b) nothing in this section shall operate so as to render any vessel liable for any loss or damage to which her fault has not contributed ; and

(c) nothing in this section shall affect the liability of any person under a contract of carriage or any contract, or shall be construed as imposing any liability upon any person from which he is exempted by any contract or by any provision of law, or as affecting the right of any person to limit his liability in the manner provided by law.

(2) For the purposes of this Act, the expression “freight”

Section 1. includes passage money and hire, and references to damage or loss caused by the fault of a vessel shall be construed as including references to any salvage or other expenses, consequent upon that fault, recoverable at law by way of damages.

[NOTE.—This section alters the old Admiralty rule in the case of both vessels being to blame for a collision.]

See The Clara Camus, C. A. 134 L. T. 50; also (as to costs) The Modica, (1926) P. 72.

Damages for personal injuries.

2. Where loss of life or personal injuries are suffered by any person on board a vessel owing to the fault of that vessel and of any other vessel or vessels, the liability of the owners of the vessels shall be joint and several:

Provided that nothing in this section shall be construed as depriving any person of any right of defence on which, independently of this section, he might have relied in an action brought against him by the person injured, or any person or persons entitled to sue in respect of such loss of life, or shall affect the right of any person to limit his liability in cases to which this section relates in the manner provided by law.

3.—(1) Where loss of life or personal injuries are suffered by any person on board a vessel owing to the fault of that vessel and any other vessel or vessels, and a proportion of the damages is recovered against the owners of one of the vessels which exceeds the proportion in which she was in fault, they may recover by way of contribution the amount of the excess from the owners of the other vessel or vessels to the extent to which those vessels were respectively in fault:

Provided that no amount shall be so recovered which could not, by reason of any statutory or contractual limitation of, or exemption from, liability, or which could not for any other reason, have been recovered in the first instance as damages by the persons entitled to sue therefor.

(2) In addition to any other remedy provided by law, the persons entitled to any such contribution as aforesaid shall, for the purpose of recovering the same, have, subject to the provisions of this Act, the same rights and powers as the persons entitled to sue for damages in the first instance.

Abolition of statutory presumptions of fault.

57 & 58 Vict. c. 60.

4. [Repealed—Statute Law Revision Act, 1927.]

The failure of the master or person in charge of a vessel to comply with the provisions of section four hundred and twenty-two of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, (which imposes a duty upon masters and persons in charge of vessels after a collision to stand by and assist the other vessel) shall not raise any presumption of law that the collision was caused by his wrongful act, neglect, or default, and accordingly sub-section (2) of that section shall be repealed.

5. Any enactment which confers on any court Admiralty jurisdiction in respect of damage shall have effect as though references to such damage included references to damages for loss of life or personal injury, and accordingly proceedings in respect of such damages may be brought in rem or in personam. Section 5.
Jurisdiction in cases of loss of life or personal injury.

This section has not altered the law that claims in respect of loss of life which give no right of action for damages but merely a right to compensation under a statute, are not within the Admiralty rules or jurisdiction. Such claims, therefore, cannot be included as an item of damage in an action in rem by a shipowner for damages against the owners of another wrong-doing vessel. See The Molière, (1925) P. 127; (1924) W. N. 303.

PROVISIONS AS TO SALVAGE.

6.—(1) The master or person in charge of a vessel shall, so far as he can do so without serious danger to his own vessel, her crew and passengers (if any), render assistance to every person, even if such person be a subject of a foreign State at war with His Majesty, who is found at sea in danger of being lost, and, if he fails to do so, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanour. General duty to render assistance to persons in danger at sea.

(2) Compliance by the master or person in charge of a vessel with the provisions of this section shall not affect his right or the right of any other person to salvage.

7. Where any dispute arises as to the apportionment of any amount of salvage among the owners, master, pilot, crew, and other persons in the service of any foreign vessel, the amount shall be apportioned by the court or person making the apportionment in accordance with the law of the country to which the vessel belongs. Apportionment of salvage amongst owners, etc., of foreign ship.

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

8. No action shall be maintainable to enforce any claim or lien against a vessel or her owners in respect of any damage or loss to another vessel, her cargo or freight, or any property on board her, or damages for loss of life or personal injuries suffered by any person on board her, caused by the fault of the former vessel, whether such vessel be wholly or partly in fault, or in respect of any salvage services, unless proceedings therein are commenced within two years from the date when the damage or loss or injury was caused or the salvage services were rendered, and an action shall not be maintainable under this Act to enforce any contribution in respect of an overpaid proportion of any damages for loss of life or personal injuries unless proceedings therein are commenced within one year from the date of payment: Limitation of actions.

Provided that any court having jurisdiction to deal with an action to which this section relates may, in accordance with the rules of court, extend any such period, to such extent and on such conditions as it thinks fit, and shall, if satisfied that there has not

Section 8. during such period been any reasonable opportunity of arresting the defendant vessel within the jurisdiction of the court, or within the territorial waters of the country to which the plaintiff's ship belongs or in which the plaintiff resides or has his principal place of business, extend any such period to an extent sufficient to give such reasonable opportunity.

PART II.

MANNING, CONSTRUCTION, AND EQUIPMENT OF PASSENGER STEAMERS.

Manning of passenger steamers.

8.—(1) Every passenger steamer which is registered in the United Kingdom shall be manned with a crew sufficient and efficient from the point of view of safety of life at sea for the purpose of her intended voyage, and shall during her voyage be kept so manned.

(2) If any of the provisions of this section are not complied with in the case of any steamer, sections four hundred and fifty-nine and four hundred and sixty of the principal Act shall apply to the steamer as it applies to ships which are, by reason of undermanning, unfit to proceed to sea without serious danger to human life, having regard to the nature of the service for which they were intended, and the owner of the ship (if in fault) shall be liable in respect of each offence to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds, and the master of the ship (if in fault) shall be liable in respect of each offence to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds.

(3) The Board of Trade shall make rules with respect to the manning of passenger steamers for the purposes of this section from the point of view of safety of life at sea, and where those rules apply to a ship the ship shall for the purposes of this section be deemed to be manned with a sufficient and efficient crew if she is manned in accordance with those rules, and not to be manned with a sufficient and efficient crew if she is not manned in accordance with those rules.

Section 8.

See sects. 459 and 460 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, ante.

* * * * *

13. Any passenger steamer proceeding on a voyage within the home trade limits shall be exempt from the provisions of this part of this Act, and the Board of Trade may by order exempt passenger steamers proceeding on any other voyage specified in the order from all or any of the provisions of this part of this Act according to the voyage on which they are proceeding, if the Board are of opinion that, having regard to the nature of the voyage, it is unnecessary or unreasonable that the provisions from which the steamers are exempted should be applied to the steamers during the voyage; but no such exemption shall be given in relation to any voyage in the course of which the steamer goes more than two hundred sea miles from the nearest coast.

Power of Board of Trade to exempt passenger steamers going on short voyages.

14. For the purposes of this part of this Act—

PART IV.

SAFETY CERTIFICATE.

18.—(1) Where any provisions of Parts II. and III. of this Act are applicable to a British ship registered in the United Kingdom, that ship shall not proceed to sea from a port in the United Kingdom unless a certificate (in this Act referred to as a safety certificate) has been granted in respect of the ship, and is for the time being in force, and shall be provided with a safety certificate when coming into such a port.

Certificate of safety.

Section 18.

(2) If the provisions of this section are not complied with in the case of any ship, the master of the ship shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds.

(4) The safety certificate shall certify, in the form set out in the fourth schedule to this Act, that the provisions of the Convention therein referred to have been complied with, and shall be a certificate granted by or under the authority of the Board of Trade under this part of this Act.

Granting of safety certificates for British ships.

19.—(1) The Board of Trade shall not grant a safety certificate or allow a safety certificate to be granted unless they are satisfied, on the report of a wireless telegraphy inspector, as respects provisions relating to wireless telegraphy, and on the report of a surveyor of ships appointed under section seven hundred and twenty-four of the principal Act as respects other matters, that the certificate can be properly granted, and if they are so satisfied, shall grant the certificate.

(2) A copy of any report of a wireless telegraphy inspector or surveyor of ships for the purposes of this section shall be sent to the owner of the ship, and if the owner feels aggrieved by the report he may appeal to the court of survey for the port or the district where the ship for the time being is, in manner provided by the rules of that court.

On any such appeal the judge of the court of survey shall report to the Board of Trade on the question raised by the appeal, and for the purposes of deciding the question whether the certificate of safety is to be granted or not, the report from the judge of the court of survey shall be substituted by the Board of Trade for the report which has been the subject of appeal.

(3) A safety certificate shall not be in force for more than one year from the date of its issue, nor after notice is given by the Board of Trade to the owner, agent, or master of the ship in respect of which it has been granted, that the Board of Trade have cancelled the certificate.

(4) If a ship in respect of which a safety certificate has been granted is absent from the United Kingdom at the time when the certificate expires, the Board of Trade, or any person authorised by them for the purpose, may, if it appears proper and reasonable so to do, grant such an extension of the certificate as will allow the ship to complete the return voyage to the United Kingdom, but no such extension shall have effect for a period exceeding five months from the date of the expiration of the certificate. Section 19.

(5) Sections two hundred and seventy-six, two hundred and seventy-seven, two hundred and seventy-nine, two hundred and eighty, two hundred and eighty-one, and two hundred and eighty-two of the principal Act (which in connection with passenger steamer certificates relate to the transmission of a certificate, fees for certificate, the cancellation, delivery up, posting up, and penalties for the forgery of, a certificate) shall apply with respect to a safety certificate as they apply with respect to a passenger steamer's certificate, with the substitution of the report of the surveyor or inspector under this section for the declaration of survey.

As to courts of survey, see sects. 487—489 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, ante.

* * * * *

21. Where a safety certificate has been granted in respect of a ship and is in force, any of the provisions of this Act or the rules made thereunder relating to the manning, construction or equipment of the ship, or the provision of wireless telegraphy and wireless telegraphy operators and watchers on the ship, which are applicable to the ship, shall be deemed to have been complied with unless it appears that the ship cannot proceed to sea without danger to the passengers or crew, owing to the fact that the actual condition of the ship does not correspond in substantial particulars with the certificate. (a) shall, if entitled to a total or partial exemption from the provisions of the Convention under a certificate of exemption recognised by the Board of Trade as granted in accordance with and for the purposes of the Convention, be exempted to the same extent from the corresponding provisions of this Act; and

THE MERCHANT SHIPPING (WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY) ACT, 1919.

[9 & 10 Geo. V. c. 38.]

AN ACT TO MAKE FURTHER PROVISION WITH RESPECT TO WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY ON SHIPS.

Be it enacted, etc.

Wireless
requirements.

1.—(1) Every seagoing British ship registered in the United Kingdom being a passenger steamer or a ship of sixteen hundred tons gross tonnage or upwards shall be provided with a wireless telegraph installation, and shall maintain a wireless telegraph service which shall be at least sufficient to comply with the rules made for the purpose under this Act, and shall be provided with one or more certified operators and watchers, at least, in accordance with those rules :

Provided that the Board of Trade may exempt from the obligations imposed by this Act any ships or classes of ships if they are of opinion that, having regard to the nature of the voyages on which the ships are engaged, or other circumstances of the case, the provision of a wireless telegraph apparatus is unnecessary or unreasonable.

(2) The Board of Trade, in consultation with the Postmaster-General, shall make rules prescribing the nature of the wireless telegraph installation to be provided, of the services to be maintained, and the number, grade, and qualifications of operators and watchers to be carried :

4 & 5 Geo. 5,
c. 50.

Provided that no ship shall be required to carry more than one operator unless more than one operator would have been required under the provisions of the Merchant Shipping (Convention) Act, 1914.

(3) If this section is not complied with in the case of any ship, the master or owner of the ship shall be liable in respect of each offence to a fine not exceeding five hundred pounds, and any such offence may be prosecuted summarily, but, if the offence is prosecuted summarily, the fine shall not exceed one hundred pounds.

(4) A surveyor of ships or a wireless telegraphy inspector may inspect any ship for the purpose of seeing that she is properly provided with a wireless telegraph installation and certified operators and watchers in conformity with this Act, and for the purpose of that inspection shall have all the powers of a Board of Trade inspector under the Merchant Shipping Acts, 1894 to 1916.

If the said surveyor or inspector finds that the ship is not so provided, he shall give to the master or owner notice in writing pointing out the deficiency, and also pointing out what in his opinion is requisite to remedy the same. Section 1.

Every notice so given shall be communicated in the manner directed by the Board of Trade to the chief officer of customs of any port at which the ship may seek to obtain a clearance, or transire, and the ship shall be detained until a certificate under the hand of any such surveyor or inspector is produced to the effect that the ship is properly provided with wireless telegraph installation and certified operators and watchers in conformity with this Act.

(5) The obligations imposed by this Act [shall not come into operation while the obligations with respect to wireless telegraphy on ships imposed by the Defence of the Realm Regulations remain in force, but] shall be in addition to, and not in substitution for, the obligations as to wireless telegraphy imposed by the Wireless Telegraphy Act, 1904, or any Order in Council, or regulations made thereunder, or by the Merchant Shipping (Convention) Act, 1914. 4 Edw. 7, c. 24.

NOTE.—Words in square brackets repealed—Statute Law Revision Act, 1927.

2. The foregoing provisions of this Act shall, [as from a date three months after the coming into operation of the obligations imposed by this Act on British ships registered in the United Kingdom,] apply to ships other than British ships registered in the United Kingdom while they are within any port in the United Kingdom in like manner as they apply to British ships so registered. Application to ships not registered in the United Kingdom.

NOTE.—Words in square brackets repealed—Statute Law Revision Act, 1927.

3.—(1) This Act may be cited as the Merchant Shipping (Wireless Telegraphy) Act, 1919, and the Merchant Shipping Acts, 1894 to 1916, and this Act may be cited together as the Merchant Shipping Acts, 1894 to 1919. Short title and construction.

(2) This Act shall be construed as one with the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, and “passenger steamer” shall mean a steamer which carries more than twelve passengers, and “wireless telegraphy inspector” means an officer appointed under section twenty of the Merchant Shipping (Convention) Act, 1914, for the purposes therein mentioned. 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60. 4 & 5 Geo. 5, c. 50, s. 20.

Provided that a lighter, barge, or like vessel used exclusively in non-tidal waters, other than harbours, shall not, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be used in navigation.

(2) In the application of Part VIII. of the principal Act to any such lighter, barge, or like vessel as aforesaid, the expression "owner" shall include any hirer who has contracted to take over the sole charge and management thereof and is responsible for the navigation, manning and equipment thereof.

(3) Where the Board of Trade are satisfied that there are in force in any port, under any Act or order, regulations for the measurement or registration of lighters, barges, or like vessels, which provide for the measurement of their tonnage in substantial agreement with the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Acts, 1894 to 1920, and for an adequate system of identification of the vessels and their owners, the Board may by order declare that vessels measured or registered in accordance with such regulations shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be measured or registered under Part I. of the principal Act.

lighters, etc.

2.—(1) If any person uses or causes or permits to be used in navigation any lighter, barge, or like vessel when, through the defective condition of its hull or equipment or by reason of overloading or improper loading or through undermanning, it is so unsafe that human life is likely to be thereby endangered, he shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months.

(2) A prosecution under this section shall not, except in Scotland, be instituted otherwise than by, or with the consent of, the Board of Trade.

(2) A seaman shall not be entitled to receive wages under this section if the owner shows that the unemployment was not due to the wreck or loss of the ship and shall not be entitled to receive wages under this section in respect of any day if the owner shows that the seaman was able to obtain suitable employment on that date.

(3) In this section the expression "seaman" includes every person employed or engaged in any capacity on board any ship, but, in the case of a ship which is a fishing boat, does not include any person who is entitled to be remunerated only by a share in the profits or the gross earnings of the working of the boat.

MONEY-LENDERS ACT, 1900.

[63 & 64 VICT. c. 51.]

Section 1.

1.—(1) Where proceedings are taken in any court by a money-lender for the recovery of any money lent after the commencement of this Act, or the enforcement of any agreement or security made or taken after the commencement of this Act, in respect of money lent either before or after the commencement of this Act, and there is evidence which satisfies the court that the interest charged in respect of the sum actually lent is excessive, or that the amounts charged for expenses, inquiries, fines, bonus, premium, renewals, or any other charges, are excessive, and that, in either case, the transaction is harsh and unconscionable, or is otherwise such that a court of equity would give relief, the court may re-open the transaction, and take an account between the money-lender and the person sued, and may, notwithstanding any statement or settlement of account or any agreement purporting to close previous dealings and create a new obligation, re-open any account already taken between them, and relieve the person sued from payment of any sum in excess of the sum adjudged by the court to be fairly due in respect of such principal, interest and charges, as the court, having regard to the risk and all the circumstances, may adjudge to be reasonable; and if any such excess has been paid, or allowed in account, by the debtor, may order the creditor to repay it; and may set aside, either wholly or in part, or revise, or alter, any security given or agreement made in respect of money lent by the money-lender, and if the money-lender has parted with the security may order him to indemnify the borrower or other person sued.

The above section is amended by sect. 10 of the Money-lenders Act, 1927, post, p. 2262. See notes, Part I., Chapter IV., under heading "Money-lenders Act," for summary of law and practice relating to money-lenders.

The following cases were decided before the Act of 1927 was passed:—

The Act does not apply to a contract for a loan made and intended to be performed abroad (Shrichand v. Lacon, (1906) 22 T. L. R. 245).

Any court in which proceedings might be taken for the recovery of money lent by a money-lender may exercise the powers given by the section (63 & 64 Vict. c. 51, s. 1 (2)), but a trustee in bankruptcy has no such power. (Armstrong In re, B. Lipton ex. p. (1926) 95 L. J. Ch. 184.) See now sect. 10 (4) of 1927 Act. The test for the county court is the amount of money actually lent by the money-lender (Crossingham v. Park, (1928) 1 K. B. 330; 96 L. J. K. B. 1036).

On the above section it was decided in Wilton v. Osborne, (1901) 2 K. B. 110; 70 L. J. K. B. 507, that the words "or otherwise is such that a court of equity would give relief" were not exclusive of the words "harsh and unconscionable," and that in order to entitle the person sued to relief the transaction must be such as a court of equity would relieve against on the ground of its being harsh and unconscionable. This decision practically limited the effect of sect. 1, sub-s. 1 of the Act to cases where the debtor could theretofore have obtained relief in a court of equity (see Nevill v. Snelling, (1880) 15 Ch. Div. 679; 49 L. J. Ch. 777). But in the case of

Section 1.
Notes.

In re a Debtor (C. A.), (1903) 1 K. B. 705; 72 L. J. K. B. 382; and see Poncione v. Higgins, (1904) 21 T. L. R. 11), the Court of Appeal held that a transaction might be re-opened which was harsh and unconscionable, although not one in which a court of equity would have given relief before the Act, and Wilton v. Osborne, (1901) 2 K. B. 110; 70 L. J. K. B. 507, was in terms overruled. Excessive interest, having regard to the risk or absence of risk, may of itself render a transaction harsh and unconscionable (In re a Debtor, supra; Saunders v. Newbold, (1905) 1 Ch. 260; 74 L. J. Ch. 120; (H. L.) sub nom. Samuel v. Newbold, (1906) A. C. 461; 75 L. J. Ch. 705; Wells v. Allott (C. A.), (1904) 2 K. B. 842; 73 L. J. K. B. 1023; Part v. Bond, (1905) 93 L. T. 49; (C. A.) 94 L. T. 390; Kruse v. Seeley, (1924) 1 Ch. 136; 93 L. J. Ch. 67). But a high rate of interest is not necessarily excessive (Carringtons v. Smith, (1906) 1 K. B. 79; 75 L. J. K. B. 49). Whether the loan is secured or not is a circumstance to be taken into account (Salaman v. Blair, (1914) 111 L. T. 426).

It was held at nisi prius that a transaction could be re-opened where by reason of a term of the bargain understood by the money-lender, but not understood by the borrower, the rate of interest is considerably increased beyond that contemplated by the borrower (Levene v. Greenwood, (1904) 20 T. L. R. 389), and the Court of Appeal has held that in proper cases closed transactions may be re-opened (Korman v. Wainwright, (1916) 32 T. L. R. 295). See Halsey v. Wolfe, (1915) 84 L. J. Ch. 809.

The powers of the county court under sect. 1, sub-s. 1 of the Act may be exercised at any stage of the proceedings whether notice has or has not been given by the defendant of his intention to ask the court to exercise its powers, subject, where no notice has been given, to such terms as to adjournment, furnishing particulars, costs and otherwise as may be just (Order L. r. 33 (1)).

The questions whether the interest is excessive and whether the transaction is harsh or unconscionable are not questions for the jury, but are for the judge (Abrahams v. Dimmock, (1914) 2 K. B. 372; 84 L. J. K. B. 802).

Where a transaction is re-opened under the Act and an account is taken between the parties, the payments made by the borrower must be allocated first to interest, and then towards discharge of principal (id.).

But transactions cannot be re-opened under this section when they have been the subject-matter of a previous action in which a judgment has been given though the judgment was by consent and not drawn up (Cohen v. Jones, (1926) 1 K. B. 120; but see on appeal (1926) 2 K. B. 1; 95 L. J. K. B. 467, where the decision was reversed, apparently on the ground that the judgment had been re-opened under order of a judge which had not been appealed from. This case will not alter the general rule that a judgment is conclusive of the amount owing).

Art from the Act, if the contract to borrow money improperly and unduly fetters the borrower's liberty to dispose of his services, and the free dealing with his earnings and property, it may be unreasonable as being opposed to public policy (Horwood v. Millar's Timber and Trading Co., Ltd., (1917) 1 K. B. 305; 86 L. J. K. B. 190).

(2) Any court in which proceedings might be taken for the recovery of money lent by a money-lender shall have and may, at the instance of the borrower or surety or other person liable, exercise the like powers as may be exercised under this section, where proceedings are taken for the recovery of money lent, and the court shall have power, notwithstanding any provision or agreement to the contrary, to entertain any application under this Act by the borrower or surety, or other person liable, notwithstanding that the time for repayment of the loan, or any instalment thereof, may not have arrived.

Section 1.

An action brought by a borrower under this section against a money-lender is an action of contract, and can be remitted to a county court (White v. Smith, (1927) 96 L. J. K. B. 397), but proceedings under this sub-section cannot be commenced in the county court where the amount of the loan exceed 100*l.* (Crossingham v. Park, (1928) 1 K. B. 330 ; 96 L. J. K. B. 1036).

A substantive application to the court under sect. 1, sub-s. 2 of the Act must be by action commenced by plaint and summons. Particulars stating concisely the grounds on which the application is made and the relief claimed shall be filed (Order L. r. 33 (2), post, p. 2262).

(3) On any application relating to the admission or amount of a proof by a money-lender in any bankruptcy proceedings, the court may exercise the like powers as may be exercised under this section when proceedings are taken for the recovery of money.

On a bankruptcy petition presented by a money-lender on a judgment the transaction may be re-opened, but if a debt of over 50*l.* is still found to be due a receiving order must be made (In re a Debtor, Ex parte the Petitioning Creditor, (1917) 2 K. B. 60 ; 86 L. J. K. B. 746).

Apparently the Official Receiver, acting as trustee in bankruptcy, may re-open a transaction with a money-lender who proves in the bankruptcy in the same manner as the court may do so (In re Mackenzie, Ex parte Bowen, (1918) 87 L. J. K. B. 792). See s. 9 of 1927 Act, post, p. 2271.

(4) The foregoing provisions of this section shall apply to any transaction which, whatever its form may be, is substantially one of money-lending by a money-lender.

(5) Nothing in the foregoing provisions of this section shall affect the rights of any bonâ fide assignee or holder for value without notice.

(6) Nothing in this section shall be construed as derogating from the existing powers or jurisdiction of any court.

(7) In the application of this Act to Scotland this section shall be read as if the words "or is otherwise such that a court of equity would give relief" were omitted therefrom.

2 and 3. Repealed by Moneylenders Act, 1927, post.

Penalties for false statements and representations.

4. If any money-lender, or any manager, agent, or clerk of a money-lender, or if any person being a director, manager, or other officer of any corporation carrying on the business of a money-lender, by any false, misleading, or deceptive statement, representation or promise, or by any dishonest concealment of material facts, fraudulently induces or attempts to induce any person to borrow money or to agree to the terms on which money is or is to be borrowed, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be liable on indictment to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for a term not exceeding two years, or to a fine not exceeding five hundred pounds, or to both.

Amendment of 55 & 56 Vict. c. 4, s. 2, as to presumption of knowledge of fancy.

5 Where in any proceedings under section two of the Betting and Loans (Infants) Act, 1892, it is proved that the person to whom the document was sent was an infant, the person charged shall be deemed to have known that the person to whom the document was sent was an infant, unless he proves that he had reasonable ground for believing the infant to be of full age. Section 5.

ORDER L. RULE 33.

The following rule of practice has been made :—

Order L. Rule 33 (1). Where proceedings are taken by a money-lender, the powers of the court under sub-sect. 1 of sect. 1 of the Money-lenders Act, 1900, may be exercised at any stage of the proceedings, and whether notice has or has not been given by the defendant of his intention to apply to the court to exercise such powers ; subject, nevertheless, where no notice or insufficient notice of such intention has been given, to such terms as to adjournment, furnishing of particulars, costs, and otherwise, as may be just. lenders Act,

s. 1.

- O. L. r. 33. (2) An application to the court under sub-sect. 2 of sect. 1 of the said Act, at the instance of a borrower or surety or other person liable, shall be by action commenced by plaint and summons in the ordinary way. Particulars of demand shall be filed in such action, stating concisely the grounds on which the application is made, and the relief which the plaintiff claims.

NOTE.—The county court has no jurisdiction to entertain an action by a borrower against a moneylender under sect. 1 (2) of the Act of 1900 if the amount of the loan exceeded 100*l*. (Crossingham v. Park, (1928) 1 K. B. 330; 96 L. J. K. B. 1036).

Court Fees.—On the entry of a plaint under sect. 1 (2) of the Money-lenders Act, 1900, the fee payable is Fee No. 1 (1) of the County Court Fees Order, 1925. If no amount is stated, the fee is chargeable on 100*l*. The Lord Chancellor's Department does not regard a claim under this subsection as a claim "for the recovery of a sum of money and also for some other remedy or relief" to which Fee No. 1 (iv.) applies.

MONEYLENDERS ACT, 1927.

[17 & 18 GEO. 5, c. 21.]

Licences to be taken out by money-
lenders.

1.—(1) Every moneylender, whether carrying on business alone or as a partner in a firm, shall take out annually in respect of every address at which he carries on his business as such, an excise licence (in this Act referred to as "a moneylender's excise licence"), which shall expire on the thirty-first day of July in every year, and, subject as hereinafter provided, there shall be charged on every moneylender's excise licence an excise duty of fifteen pounds, or if the licence be taken out not more than six months before the expiration thereof, of ten pounds.

Provided that—

- (a) the duty charged on any moneylender's excise licence which will expire on the thirty-first day of July, nineteen hundred and twenty-eight, shall, notwithstanding that the licence may be taken out more than six months before the expiration thereof, be a duty of ten pounds; and
- (b) where moneylender's excise licences are taken out by two or more moneylenders in respect of any address or addresses at which they carry on their business as partners in a firm, the Commissioners of Customs and Excise shall remit, or if the duty has been paid repay, to the firm a sum equal to the aggregate of the duties charged on such number of the licences taken out as exceeds the number of the addresses in respect of which they are taken out; and
- (c) where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Commissioners of Customs and Excise that there is in force a licence for carrying on the business of a pawnbroker at any premises in respect of which a moneylender's excise licence is taken out by the person carrying on the business, the Commissioners shall remit, or if the duty has been paid repay, to that person such part of the duty charged on the moneylender's excise licence as is equal to the amount of the duty paid in respect of the licence for carrying on the business of a pawnbroker, or where in any such case moneylender's excise licences are taken out by partners in a firm in respect of the premises, the remission or repayment shall be made to the firm.

(2) Subject to the provisions of this Act, moneylenders' excise licences shall be in such form as the Commissioners of Customs and Excise may direct, and shall be granted on payment of the appropriate duty by any officer of Customs and Excise authorised by the Commissioners to grant them, and regulations made by the said Commissioners may make provision as to the procedure to be followed in making application for moneylenders' excise licences :

Provided that a moneylender's excise licence shall be taken out by a moneylender in his true name, and shall be void if it be taken out in any other name, but every moneylender's excise licence shall also show the moneylender's authorised name and authorised address.

(3) If any person—

- (a) takes out a moneylender's excise licence in any name other than his true name ; or
- (b) carries on business as a moneylender without having in force a proper moneylender's excise licence authorising him so to do, or, being licensed as a moneylender, carries on business as such in any name other than his authorised name, or at any other place than his authorised address or addresses ; or
- (c) enters into any agreement in the course of his business as a moneylender with respect to the advance or repayment of money, or takes any security for money, in the course of his business as a moneylender, otherwise than in his authorised name ;

he shall be guilty of a contravention of the provisions of this Act and shall for each offence be liable to an excise penalty of one hundred pounds :

Provided that, on a second or subsequent conviction of any person (other than a company) for an offence under this subsection, the court may, in lieu of or in addition to ordering the Section 1. offender to pay the penalty aforesaid, order him to be imprisoned for a term not exceeding three months, and an offender being a company shall on a second or subsequent conviction be liable to an excise penalty of five hundred pounds.

NOTE.—The following cases were decided under sect. 2 of the 1900 Act, which contained provisions somewhat similar to the above sub-section:—

The Christian name need not be registered in full. The initial letter is sufficient (Hart v. Hungerford, (1916) 85 L. J. K. B. 1029).

This sub-section is not violated by the money-lender taking a security—a bill of exchange—in which his name does not appear at all (Shaffer v. Sheffield and Another, (1914) 2 K. B. 1; 83 L. J. K. B. 817). See also Charles Taylor (London) Limited v. Miller and Fingard, (1917) 86 L. J. K. B. 49, and compare Merz v. South Wales Money Society, (1927) 137 L. T. 626.

The section applies to an unregistered money-lender, and renders incapable of enforcement any agreement with respect to the advance and repayment of money, and any security for money taken in the course of his business as an unregistered money-lender (Victorian Daylesford Syndicate v. Bott, (1905) 2 Ch. 624; 74 L. J. Ch. 673; approved in Bonnard v. Dott, (C. A.) (1906) 1 Ch. 740; 75 L. J. Ch. 446). Post-dated cheques are a “security for money” within the meaning of this sub-section (Stirling v. John, (1923) 1 K. B. 557; 92 L. J. K. B. 353). But an unregistered money-lender can maintain an action for damages for fraudulent misrepresentations whereby he was induced to advance money on loan (Dott v. Brickwell, (1906) 23 T. L. R. 61), and at all events, where the statutory defence is not pleaded, the judge is not justified in an action brought by a money-lender in insisting on having the fact of registration proved by an examined or certified copy of the same (Lipton v. Powell and Another, (1921) 2 K. B. 51; 90 L. J. K. B. 366).

The mere fact that the loan is actually completed at the borrower's office is not an infringement of the clause, which requires the business to be carried on at the money-lender's registered address and at no other address (King v. Massey, (1908) 24 T. L. R. 710); it may be carried on through the post (In re Seed, Ex parte King, (1910) 1 K. B. 661; 79 L. J. K. B. 421; Jackson v. Price, (1910) 1 K. B. 143; 79 L. J. K. B. 130). It is not necessary that every stage and every incident of every piece of the money-lending business should be transacted at the registered office. The question is one of fact, not of law (Kirkwood v. Gadd, (1910) A. C. 422; 79 L. J. K. B. 815; reversing Gadd v. Provincial Union Bank, (1909) 2 K. B. 353; 78 L. J. K. B. 815). See also H. Bowen & Co. v. Samuels, (1918) 34 T. L. R. 487.

A breach of the provisions as to carrying on business at the authorised address by a money-lender renders the transaction void, in addition to subjecting the money-lender to penalties (Cornelius v. Phillips, (1918) A. C. 199; 87 L. J. K. B. 246; Whiteman v. Sadler, (1910) A. C. 514; 79 L. J. K. B. 1050, explained).

A person registered under the Act as in partnership with another who enters into a money-lending transaction in his own name commits a breach of the Act, and cannot recover the money lent (Vorst v. Goldstein, (1924) 2 K. B. 372; 93 L. J. K. B. 965).

A company registered as moneylenders, who take as security from a borrower a promissory note in the name of the secretary of the company or the secretary of the company for the time being, have taken a security for money in the course of their business in a name other than their registered name and the transaction is therefore void (Mertz v. South Wales Equitable Money Society, (1927) 2 K. B. 366; 96 L. J. K. B. 1020).

A person who, while bonâ fide carrying on business as a solicitor, makes a practice of advancing money to clients and others, must register himself under the Money-Lenders Act, 1900, unless his primary object in so lending is to increase his professional business, and earn professional fees (Edgelow v. MacElwee, (1918) 1 K. B. 205; 87 L. J. K. B. 738. See also Litchfield v. Dreyfus, (1906) 1 K. B. 584).

Section 1.

A request by a moneylender to cancel his registration during the period for which he is registered does not cancel it (Schaverien v. Corbett, (1923) 1 K. B. 699; 92 L. J. K. B. 646).

2.—(1) A moneylender's excise licence shall not be granted except to a person who holds a certificate granted in accordance with the provisions of this section authorising the grant of the licence to that person, and a separate certificate shall be required in respect of every separate licence. Any moneylender's excise licence granted in contravention of this section shall be void.

Certificate required for grant of money-lender's excise licence.

(2) Certificates under this section (in this Act referred to as "certificates") shall be granted by the petty sessional court having jurisdiction in the petty sessional division in which the moneylender's business is to be carried on, so, however, that within any part of the metropolitan police district for which a police court is established, a certificate shall not be granted except by a police magistrate.

(3) Every certificate granted to a moneylender shall show his true name and the name under which, and the address at which, he is authorised by the certificate to carry on business as such, and a certificate shall not authorise a moneylender to carry on business at more than one address, or under more than one name, or under any name which includes the word "bank," or otherwise implies that he carries on banking business, and no certificate shall authorise a moneylender to carry on business under any name except—

(a) his true name; or

(b) the name of a firm in which he is a partner, not being a firm required by the Registration of Business Names Act, 1916, to be registered; or

6 & 7 Geo. 5, c. 58.

(c) a business name, whether of an individual or of a firm in which he is a partner, under which he or the firm has, at the passing of this Act, been registered for not less than three years both as a moneylender under the Moneylenders Act, 1900, and under the Registration of Business Names Act, 1916.

63 & 64 Vict. c. 51.

(4) A certificate shall come into force on the date specified therein, and shall expire on the next following thirty-first day of July.

(5) A Secretary of State shall make rules with respect to the procedure to be followed in making applications for certificates (including the notices to be given of intention to make such an Section 2. application), and certificates shall be in such form as may be prescribed by rules so made.

(6) A certificate shall not be refused except on some one or more of the following grounds—

- (a) that satisfactory evidence has not been produced of the good character of the applicant, and in the case of a company of the persons responsible for the management thereof;
- (b) that satisfactory evidence has been produced that the applicant, or any person responsible or proposed to be responsible for the management of his business as a money-lender, is not a fit and proper person to hold a certificate;
- (c) that the applicant, or any person responsible or proposed to be responsible for the management of his business as a moneylender, is by order of a court disqualified for holding a certificate;
- (d) that the applicant has not complied with the provisions of any rules made under this section with respect to applications for certificates.

(7) Any person aggrieved by the refusal of a petty sessional court to grant a certificate may appeal to a court of quarter sessions in manner provided by the Summary Jurisdiction Acts as if the refusal were an order of a court of summary jurisdiction.

Suspension and forfeiture of money-lenders'
certificates.
55 & 56 Vict.
c. 4.

3.—(1) Where any person, being the holder of a certificate, is convicted of any offence under this Act or under section two or four of the Betting and Loans (Infants) Act, 1892, or the Money-lenders Act, 1900, the court—

- (a) may order that any certificates held by that person, and in the case of a partner in a firm by any other partner in the firm, shall either be suspended for such time as the court thinks fit, or shall be forfeited, and may also, if the court thinks fit, declare any such person, or any person responsible for the management of the moneylending business carried on by the person convicted, to be disqualified for obtaining a certificate for such time as the court thinks fit; and
- (b) shall cause particulars of the conviction and of any order made by the court under this subsection to be endorsed on every certificate held by the person convicted or by any other person affected by the order, and shall cause copies of those particulars to be sent to the authority by whom any certificate so endorsed was granted, and to the Commissioners of Customs and Excise:

Section 3.

Provided that, where by order of a court a certificate held by any person is suspended or forfeited, or any person is disqualified for obtaining a certificate, he may, whether or not he is the person convicted, appeal against the order in the same manner as any person convicted may appeal against his conviction, and the court may, if it thinks fit, pending the appeal, defer the operation of the order.

(2) Any certificate required by a court for endorsement in accordance with the foregoing provisions of this section shall be produced, in such manner and within such time as may be directed by the court, by the person by whom it is held, and any person who, without reasonable cause, makes default in producing any certificate so required shall, in respect of each offence, be liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding five pounds for each day during which the default continues.

(3) Where a certificate held by any person is ordered to be suspended or to be forfeited under the foregoing provisions of this section, any moneylender's excise licences granted to that person whether in pursuance of that or any other certificate, shall be suspended during the period for which the certificate is ordered to be suspended or become void, as the case may be.

4.—(1) Subsection (2) of section two of the Companies (Particulars as to Directors) Act, 1917 (which requires certain particulars to be published in trade catalogues, trade circulars, show cards and business letters) shall apply with the necessary modifications to every company licensed under this Act notwithstanding that the company was registered or had established a place of business within the United Kingdom on or before the twenty-second day of November, nineteen hundred and sixteen.

Names to be stated on documents issued by money-lenders.
7 & 8 Geo. 5, c. 28.

(2) Without prejudice to the provisions of the last foregoing section and of section eighteen of the Registration of Business Names Act, 1916, a moneylender shall not, for the purposes of his business as such, issue or publish, or cause to be issued or published, any advertisement, circular, business letter, or other similar document which does not show—

- (a) in such manner as to be not less conspicuous than any other name, the authorised name of the moneylender; and
- (b) except in the case of an advertisement published in a newspaper, any name, other than his authorised name, under which the moneylender, and in the case of a firm any partner therein, was before the commencement of this Act registered as a moneylender under the Moneylenders Act, 1900;

Section 4. and any moneylender who acts in contravention of this subsection shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds in respect of each offence.

(3) If a moneylender, for the purposes of his business as such, issues or publishes, or causes to be issued or published, any advertisement, circular or document of any kind whatsoever containing expressions which might reasonably be held to imply that he carries on banking business, he shall on summary conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds, and on a second or subsequent conviction, in lieu of or in addition to such a fine as aforesaid, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months, or, in the case of a second or subsequent conviction of an offender being a company, to a fine not exceeding five hundred pounds.

Restrictions on money-lending advertisements.

5.—(1) No person shall knowingly send or deliver or cause to be sent or delivered to any person except in response to his written request any circular or other document advertising the name, address or telephone number of a moneylender, or containing an invitation—

- (a) to borrow money from a moneylender
- (b) to enter into any transaction involving the borrowing of money from a moneylender ;
- (c) to apply to any place with a view to obtaining information or advice as to borrowing any money from a moneylender.

(2) Subject as hereinafter provided, no person shall publish or cause to be published in any newspaper or other printed paper issued periodically for public circulation, or by means of any poster or placard, an advertisement advertising any such particulars, or containing any such invitation, as aforesaid :

Provided that an advertisement in conformity with the requirements of this Act relating to the use of names on moneylenders' documents may be published by or on behalf of a moneylender in any newspaper or in any such paper as aforesaid or by means of a poster or placard exhibited at any authorised address of the moneylender, if it contains no addition to the particulars necessary to comply with the said requirements, except any of the following particulars, that is to say any authorised address at which he carries on business as a moneylender and the telegraphic address and telephone number thereof, any address at which he formerly carried on business, a statement that he lends money with or without security, and of the highest and lowest sums that he is prepared to lend, and a statement of the date on which the business carried on by him was first established.

Section 5.

(3) No moneylender or any person on his behalf shall employ any agent or canvasser for the purpose of inviting any person to borrow money or to enter into any transaction involving the borrowing of money from a moneylender, and no person shall act as such agent or canvasser, or demand or receive directly or indirectly any sum or other valuable consideration by way of commission or otherwise for introducing or undertaking to introduce to a moneylender any person desiring to borrow money.

(4) Where any document issued or published by or on behalf of a moneylender purports to indicate the terms of interest upon which he is willing to make loans or any particular loan, the document shall either express the interest proposed to be charged in terms of a rate per cent. per annum or show the rate per cent. per annum represented by the interest proposed to be charged as calculated in accordance with the provisions of the First Schedule to this Act.

(5) Any person acting in contravention of any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanour and shall in respect of each offence be liable, on conviction on indictment, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds, or to both such imprisonment and fine, and, on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one month or to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds, or to both such imprisonment and fine.

(6) Where it is shown that a money-lending transaction was brought about by a contravention of any of the provisions of this section, the transaction shall, notwithstanding that the money-lender was duly licensed under this Act, be illegal, unless the money-lender proves that the contravention occurred without his consent or connivance.

6.—(1) No contract for the repayment by a borrower of money lent to him or to any agent on his behalf by a moneylender after the commencement of this Act or for the payment by him of interest on money so lent and no security given by the borrower or by any such agent as aforesaid in respect of any such contract shall be enforceable, unless a note or memorandum in writing of the contract be made and signed personally by the borrower, and unless a copy thereof be delivered or sent to the borrower within seven days of the making of the contract; and no such contract or security shall be enforceable if it is proved that the note or money-lenders'

memorandum aforesaid was not signed by the borrower before the money was lent or before the security was given as the case may be.

(2) The note or memorandum aforesaid shall contain all the terms of the contract, and in particular shall show the date on which the loan is made, the amount of the principal of the loan, and, either the interest charged on the loan expressed in terms of a rate per cent. per annum, or the rate per cent. per annum represented by the interest charged as calculated in accordance with the provisions of the First Schedule to this Act.

Prohibition of compound interest and provision as to defaults.

7. Subject as hereinafter provided, any contract made after the commencement of this Act for the loan of money by a moneylender shall be illegal in so far as it provides directly or indirectly for the payment of compound interest or for the rate or amount of interest being increased by reason of any default in the payment of sums due under the contract :

Provided that provision may be made by any such contract that if default is made in the payment upon the due date of any sum payable to the moneylender under the contract, whether in respect of principal or interest, the moneylender shall be entitled to charge simple interest on that sum from the date of the default until the sum is paid, at a rate not exceeding the rate payable in respect of the principal apart from any default, and any interest so charged shall not be reckoned for the purposes of this Act as part of the interest charged in respect of the loan.

Obligation of money-lender to supply information as to state of loan and copies of documents relating thereto.

8.—(1) In respect of every contract for the repayment of money lent by a moneylender whether made before or after the commencement of this Act, the moneylender shall, on any reasonable demand in writing being made by the borrower at any time during the continuance of the contract and on tender by the borrower of the sum of one shilling for expenses, supply to the borrower or, if the borrower so requires, to any person specified in that behalf in the demand, a statement signed by the moneylender or his agent showing—

- (a) the date on which the loan was made, the amount of the principal of the loan and the rate per cent. per annum of interest charged ; and
- (b) the amount of any payment already received by the moneylender in respect of the loan and the date on which it was made ; and
- (c) the amount of every sum due to the moneylender, but unpaid, and the date upon which it became due, and the amount of interest accrued due and unpaid in respect of every such sum; and Section 8.

(d) the amount of every sum not yet due which remains outstanding, and the date upon which it will become due.

(2) A moneylender shall, on any reasonable demand in writing by the borrower, and on tender of a reasonable sum for expenses, supply a copy of any document relating to a loan made by him or any security therefor, to the borrower, or if the borrower so requires, to any person specified in that behalf in the demand.

(3) If a moneylender to whom a demand has been made under this section fails without reasonable excuse to comply therewith within one month after the demand has been made, he shall not, so long as the default continues, be entitled to sue for or recover any sum due under the contract on account either of principal or interest, and interest shall not be chargeable in respect of the period of the default, and if such default is made or continued after proceedings have ceased to lie in respect of the loan, the moneylender shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding five pounds for every day on which the default continues.

9.—(1) Where a debt due to a moneylender in respect of a loan made by him after the commencement of this Act includes interest, that interest shall, for the purposes of the provisions of the Bankruptcy Act, 1914, relating to the presentation of a bankruptcy petition, voting at meetings, compositions and schemes of arrangement, and dividend, be calculated at a rate not exceeding five per cent. per annum, but nothing in the foregoing provision shall prejudice the right of the creditor to receive out of the estate, after all the debts proved in the estate have been paid in full, any higher rate of interest to which he may be entitled.

Provisions as to bankruptcy proceedings for money-lenders' loans.
4 & 5 Geo. 5, c. 59.

The provisions of this subsection shall, in relation to such a debt as aforesaid, have effect in substitution for the provisions of subsection (1) of section sixty-six of the Bankruptcy Act, 1914.

(2) No proof of a debt due to a moneylender in respect of a loan made by him shall be admitted for any of the purposes of the Bankruptcy Act, 1914, unless the affidavit verifying the debt is accompanied by a statement showing in detail—

(a) the amount of the sums actually lent to the debtor and the dates on which they were lent, and the amount of every payment already received by the moneylender in respect of the loan and the date on which every such payment was made; and

(b) the amount of the balance which remains unpaid distinguishing the amount of the principal from the amount of interest included therein, the appropriation between principal and interest being made in accordance with the provisions of this Act where the interest is not expressed by the contract for the loan in terms of a rate; and

- (c) where the amount of interest included in the unpaid balance represents a rate per cent. per annum exceeding five per cent., the amount of interest which would be so included if it were calculated at the rate of five per cent. per annum.

(3) General rules may be made under section one hundred and thirty-two of the Bankruptcy Act, 1914, for the purpose of carrying into effect the objects of this section.

NOTE.—This section is retrospective and applies to loans whether made before or after the passing of the Act (Re a Debtor (99 of 1928) (1928) 139 L. T. 234).

Amendments of 63 & 64
Vict. c. 51,
s. 1.

10.—(1) Where, in any proceedings in respect of any money lent by a moneylender after the commencement of this Act or in respect of any agreement or security made or taken after the commencement of this Act in respect of money lent either before or after the commencement of this Act, it is found that the interest charged exceeds the rate of forty-eight per cent. per annum, or the corresponding rate in respect of any other period, the court shall, unless the contrary is proved, presume for the purposes of section one of the Moneylenders Act, 1900, that the interest charged is excessive and that the transaction is harsh and unconscionable, but this provision shall be without prejudice to the powers of the court under that section where the court is satisfied that the interest charged, although not exceeding forty-eight per cent. per annum, is excessive.

(2) Where a court reopens a transaction of a moneylender under the said section one of the Moneylenders Act, 1900, the court may require the moneylender to produce any certificate granted to him in accordance with the provisions of this Act, and may cause such particulars as the court thinks desirable to be endorsed on any such certificate, and a copy of the particulars to be sent to the authority by whom the certificate was granted.

(3) The powers of a court under the said section one of the Moneylenders Act, 1900, with respect to the re-opening of the transactions of moneylenders, shall extend to any transaction effected under a special contract made in accordance with the provisions of section twenty-four of the Pawnbrokers Act, 1872, and accordingly, for the purposes of the first mentioned section, the provisions of paragraph (a) of section six of the Moneylenders Act, 1900, shall not apply with respect to any such transaction. Section 10.

(4) The powers of a court under subsection (2) of the said section one of the Moneylenders Act, 1900 (which enables a court at the instance of the borrower, surety, or other person liable, to exercise its powers under that section with respect to the re-opening of the transactions of moneylenders, although no proceedings are taken for the recovery of the money lent, and notwithstanding that the time for repayment may not have arrived), may in the event of the bankruptcy of the borrower be exercised at the instance of the trustee in bankruptcy, notwithstanding that he may not be a person liable in respect of the transaction.

(5) The powers of a court under the said subsection (2) of section one of the Moneylenders Act, 1900, may be exercised notwithstanding that the moneylender's right of action for the recovery of the money lent is barred.

11.—(1) Subject as hereinafter provided, no action by a money-lender for the recovery of money lent by him or for enforcing any agreement or security relating to any such money shall be brought in any inferior court other than a county court :

Courts to which proceedings on money-lending transactions are to be taken.

Provided that His Majesty may by Order in Council direct that any inferior court specified in the Order shall have the same jurisdiction as respects such actions as aforesaid as it would have had but for the provisions of this subsection, and any such Order may contain such provisions as appear to His Majesty expedient with respect to the making of rules of court for regulating the procedure to be followed in the case of any such action, and may be revoked or varied by any subsequent Order made in like manner.

(2) Before any Order in Council is made under this section, a draft thereof shall be laid before each House of Parliament for a period of not less than twenty-one days during the session of Parliament, and if either House before the expiration of the said period presents an address to His Majesty against the draft or any part thereof, no further proceedings shall be taken thereon, but without prejudice to the making of a new draft order.

NOTE.—By Order in Council, dated December 20th, 1927, made under this section, the following courts are given jurisdiction in actions by moneylenders subject to special Rules regulating the procedure : The Mayor's and City of London Court, The Court of Passage of the City of Liverpool, The Salford Hundred Court of Record, and the Derby Borough Court of Record.

12. Any agreement between a moneylender and a borrower or intending borrower for the payment by the borrower or intending borrower to the moneylender of any sum on account of costs, charges or expenses incidental to or relating to the negotiations by money-lenders.

Prohibition of charge for expenses on loans by money-lenders.

Section 12. for or the granting of the loan or proposed loan shall be illegal, and if any sum is paid to a moneylender by a borrower or intending borrower as for or on account of any such costs, charges or expenses, that sum shall be recoverable as a debt due to the borrower or intending borrower, or, in the event of the loan being completed, shall, if not so recovered, be set off against the amount actually lent and that amount shall be deemed to be reduced accordingly.

Limitation of time for proceedings in respect of money lent
lenders.

13.—(1) No proceedings shall lie for the recovery by a moneylender of any money lent by him after the commencement of this Act or of any interest in respect thereof, or for the enforcement of any agreement made or security taken after the commencement of this Act in respect of any loan made by him, unless the proceedings are commenced before the expiration of twelve months from the date on which the cause of action accrued :

Provided that—

- (a) if during the period of twelve months aforesaid or at any time within any subsequent period during which proceedings may by virtue of this proviso be brought, the debtor acknowledges in writing the amount due and gives a written undertaking to the moneylender to pay that amount, proceedings for the recovery of the amount due may be brought at any time within a period of twelve months from the date of the acknowledgment and undertaking ;
- (b) the time limited by the foregoing provisions of this section for the commencement of proceedings shall not begin to run in respect of any payments from time to time becoming due to a moneylender under a contract for the loan of money until a cause of action accrues in respect of the last payment becoming due under the contract ;
- (c) if at the date on which the cause of action accrues or on which any such acknowledgment and undertaking as aforesaid is given by the debtor, the person entitled to take the proceedings is non compos mentis, the time limited by the foregoing provisions of this section for the commencement of proceedings shall not begin to run until that person ceases to be non compos mentis or dies, whichever first occurs ; and
- (d) if at the date on which the cause of action accrues or on which any such acknowledgment and undertaking as aforesaid is given by the debtor, the debtor is beyond the seas, the time limited by the foregoing provisions of this section for the commencement of proceedings shall not begin to run until he returns from beyond the seas, so, however, that section eleven of the Mercantile Law Amendment Act, 1856 (which relates to the limitation of actions against joint debtors where some are beyond seas) shall have effect as if this section were included among the enactments therein referred to as fixing a period of limitation.

Section 13 .
 c. 97.

(2) Without prejudice to the powers of a court under section one of the Moneylenders Act, 1900, if at the time when proceedings are taken by a moneylender in respect of a default in the payment of any sum due to him under a contract for the loan of money, any further amount is outstanding under the contract but not yet due, the court may determine the contract and order the principal outstanding to be paid to the moneylender with such interest thereon, if any, as the court may allow up to the date of payment.

14.—(1) The provisions of sections six, twelve and thirteen of this Act shall not apply in relation to any loan by a pawnbroker on a pledge, or in relation to any debt in respect of such a loan, or any interest thereon, notwithstanding that the loan is not made in the course of the business carried on by the pawnbroker in accordance with the Acts for the time being in force in relation to pawnbrokers, so long as the following conditions are complied with in respect of the loan :—

 provisions as to pawnbroker's
 loans.

(a) The pawnbroker shall deliver or send to the pawner within seven days a note or memorandum containing all the terms of the contract, and in particular showing the date on which the loan is made, the amount of the principal of the loan, the interest charged on the loan expressed in terms of a rate per cent. per annum, and any other charges payable by the pawner under the contract, and the rate of interest charged shall not exceed the rate of twenty per cent. per annum ;

(b) Subject as hereinafter provided, the pawner shall not be charged any sum on account of costs, charges, or expenses incidental to or relating to the negotiations for or the granting of the loan or proposed loan, except a charge for the preparation of documents relating to the loan not exceeding the sum of one shilling, and a charge equal to the actual amount of any stamp duty paid by the pawnbroker upon any such document :

Provided that a pawnbroker shall not be deemed to have failed

Section 14. to comply with the foregoing conditions by reason of his having made in good faith and in accordance with the terms of the contract for the loan—

- (i) a reasonable charge in respect of the storage or care of any pledge which is not physically delivered to him or which, although so delivered, is of such weight or size that it would not under the Post Office regulations for the time being in force be received for transmission by parcel post; or
 - (ii) a charge for interest at a rate not exceeding twenty per cent. per annum upon any sum reasonably expended by the pawnbroker in respect of the storage or care of the pledge; or
 - (iii) a charge not exceeding one shilling for rendering any account of the sale of any pledge; or
 - (iv) a charge not exceeding one shilling in respect of any inspection of the pawnbroker's books;
- (2) Any charge authorised by this section for the preparation of documents relating to a loan, or in respect of stamp duty upon any such document, may be deducted by the pawnbroker from the amount of the loan, and, if so deducted, shall be deemed for the purposes of this Act to be included in the principal.

Interpretation, &c.

15.—(1) In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, the following expressions have the meanings hereby respectively assigned to them, that is to say :—

- “ Authorised name ” and “ authorised address ” mean respectively the name under which and the address at which a moneylender is authorised by a certificate granted under this Act to carry on business as a moneylender ;
- “ Business name ” means the name or style under which any business is carried on, whether in partnership or otherwise ;
- “ Company ” means any body corporate being a moneylender ;
- “ Firm ” means an unincorporate body of two or more individuals, or one or more individuals and one or more corporations, or two or more corporations, who have entered into partnership with one another with a view to carrying on business for profit ;
- “ Interest ” does not include any sum lawfully charged in accordance with the provisions of this Act by a moneylender for or on account of costs, charges, or expenses, but save as aforesaid, includes any amount, by whatsoever name called, in excess of the principal, paid or payable to a moneylender in consideration of or otherwise in respect of a loan ;

“Principal” means in relation to a loan the amount actually lent to the borrower. Section 15.

(2) Where by a contract for the loan of money by a money-lender the interest charged on the loan is not expressed in terms of a rate any amount paid or payable to the moneylender under the contract (other than simple interest charged in accordance with the proviso to section seven of this Act) shall be appropriated to principal and interest in the proportion that the principal bears to the total amount of the interest, and the rate per cent. per annum represented by the interest charged as calculated in accordance with the provisions of the First Schedule to this Act shall be deemed to be the rate of interest charged on the loan.

16.—(1) Where any debt in respect of money lent by a money-lender whether before or after the commencement of this Act or in respect of interest on any such debt or the benefit of any agreement made or security taken in respect of any such debt or interest is assigned to any assignee, the assignor (whether he is the money-lender by whom the money was lent or any person to whom the debt has been previously assigned) shall, before the assignment is made—

Notice and information to be given on assignment of money-lenders' debts.

(a) give to the assignee notice in writing that the debt, agreement or security is affected by the operation of this Act; and

and 15.

CALCULATION OF INTEREST WHERE THE INTEREST CHARGED ON A LOAN IS NOT EXPRESSED IN TERMS OF A RATE.

1. The amount of principal outstanding at any time shall be taken to be the balance remaining after deducting from the principal the total of the portions of any payments appropriated to principal in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

2. The several amounts taken to be outstanding by way of principal during the several periods ending on the dates on which payments are made shall be multiplied in each case by the number of calendar months during which those amounts are taken to be respectively outstanding, and there shall be ascertained the aggregate amount of the sum so produced.

3. The total amount of the interest shall be divided by one-twelfth part of the aggregate amount mentioned in paragraph 2 of this Schedule, and the quotient, multiplied by one hundred, shall be taken to be the rate of interest per cent. per annum.

4. If having regard to the intervals between successive payments it is desired so to do, the calculation of interest may be made by reference to weeks instead of months, and in such a case the foregoing paragraphs shall have effect as though in paragraph 2 the word "weeks" were substituted for the words "calendar months," and in paragraph 3 the words "one-fifty-second," were substituted for the words "one-twelfth."

THE MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS (CORRUPT AND ILLEGAL PRACTICES) ACT, 1884.

[47 & 48 VICT. c. 70.]

Under this Act claims against any person for expenses incurred by or on behalf of a candidate at a municipal election must be sent in within fourteen days after the day of election, and must be paid within twenty-one days after such day (sect. 21, sub-s. 1).

Jurisdiction.—The county court for the district in which the election was held, or the High Court, or an election court, may, on application either of the candidate or a creditor, allow any claim to be sent in, and any expense to be paid after the times above named (sect. 21, sub-s. 6).

It is rather singular that provision is made by subsequent sub-sections as to the terms on which the application may be granted by the High Court or an election court, but none as to county courts (sect. 21, sub-ss. 7, 8, 9). Doubtless, however, the provision may be taken as a guide in the county court.

(9) The date of the order, or if conditions and terms are to be complied with, the date at which the applicant fully complies with them, is referred to in this Act as the date of the allowance of the excuse.

(10) The return and declaration sent in pursuance of this Act to the town clerk shall be kept at his office, and shall at all reasonable times during the twelve months next after they are received by him be open to inspection by any person on payment of the fee of one shilling, and the town clerk shall, on demand, furnish copies thereof or of any part thereof at the price of twopence for every seventy-two words.

NATIONAL HEALTH INSURANCE ACT, 1924.

[14 & 15 GEO. V. c. 38.]

The various statutes relating to National Health Insurance have now been consolidated in the National Health Insurance Act, 1924 (14 & 15 Geo. 5, c. 38).

Under the previous statutes of 1911 and 1913 jurisdiction was given to the county court, on appeal from the Insurance Commissioners, to determine any question as to whether employment or any class of employment was employment within the meaning of the Act of 1911, also by the Act of 1913 to determine in the same way who was the employer of an employed contributor.

This jurisdiction is now apparently taken away from the county court and conferred upon a judge of the High Court. See sect. 89 of the Act.

The only jurisdiction seemingly remaining in the county court is that given by sect. 68, sub-s. (1) of the Act of 1911 (now sect. 102 of the Act of 1924) to the registrar of the county court as to cancelling or modifying a medical certificate. Under this section certain protection against distress for rent, execution, and ejectment is given to an insured person where the medical practitioner attending such insured person certifies that the taking of any of the aforesaid proceedings would endanger his life, and such certificate has been recorded in manner provided by sub-s. 4 of the said section; but any person who disputes the accuracy of the certificate may apply to the registrar of the county court, who may make an order cancelling or modifying such certificate.

The decision of the registrar, as to the certificate, is final and not subject to appeal.

Practice.—The applications to the registrar under sect. 68 (now sect. 102) are governed by Order XLIIA., rr. 24—26. Rule 24 deals with stay of proceedings; Rule 25 with an application to cancel or modify a certificate. Rule 26 relates to disputes as to security (see post, p. 2254; see also Forms 449 to 452, post, pp. 2288—2290).

Section 16 of the present Act contains provisions in the case of contributors entitled to compensation or damages under the Employers' Liability Act, 1880, or the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1925, or at common law. These are dealt with under Part IV. of this work which deals with Injuries to Workmen. This section is printed in full, ante, p. 1563.

Protection against distress and execution in certain cases.

102.—(1) Where the medical practitioner attending on any insured person in receipt of sickness benefit certifies that the levying of any distress or execution upon any goods or chattels belonging to such insured person and being on premises occupied by him, or the taking of any proceedings in ejectment or for the recovery of any rent or to enforce any judgment in ejectment against such person, would endanger his life, and such certificate has been sent to the insurance committee and has been recorded in manner hereinafter provided, it shall not be lawful during any period named in the certificate for any person to levy any such distress or execution or to take any such proceedings or to enforce any such judgment against the insured person :

Provided that, if any person desirous of levying such distress or execution or taking such proceedings or enforcing such judgment disputes the accuracy of the certificate, he may apply to the registrar of the county court, who, if he is of opinion that the certificate should be cancelled or modified, may make an order cancelling or modifying it, and no appeal shall lie against any such order or a refusal to make any such order.

(2) A certificate granted for the purpose of this section shall continue in force for one week or such less period as may be named in the certificate, but may be renewed from time to time for any period not exceeding one week, up to but not beyond the expiration of three months from the date of the grant of the original certificate, but no such renewal shall have effect unless sent to the insurance committee and recorded as aforesaid :

Provided that the protection conferred by this section shall not extend beyond the expiration of one month from such date if, on demand being made by the person desirous of levying such distress or execution, or taking such proceedings, or enforcing such judgment, proper security is not given for payment of rent thereafter to become due from the insured person or the amount of the judgment debt, as the case may be, and any dispute as to the sufficiency of the security shall be determined by the registrar of the county court whose decision shall be final and not subject to appeal.

(3) If any person knowingly levies or attempts to levy any such distress or execution or takes any such proceedings or enforces or attempts to enforce any such judgment in contravention of this section, he shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds.

(4) A certificate or renewal thereof granted under this section shall forthwith be sent to the insurance committee, and the committee shall, unless it has reason to suspect its genuineness, record it in a special register without fee, and such register shall, at all reasonable times, be open to inspection ; and, where so recorded, its genuineness shall not be questioned in any proceedings against a sheriff or other officer for failure to levy any distress or execute any warrant.

(5) The genuineness of a certificate so recorded shall not be questioned in any proceedings against a sheriff or other officer for failure to levy any distress or execute any warrant.

(6) Where the time within which a warrant may be executed is limited, any period during which the warrant cannot be executed by reason of the provisions of this section shall be disregarded in computing the time within which the warrant may be executed.

Rules. COUNTY COURT RULES, DATED APRIL 11, 1916, AS TO APPEALS UNDER THE NATIONAL INSURANCE ACT, 1911 (1 & 2 GEO. 5, c. 55), SECTION 68 (NOW SECTION 102 OF NATIONAL HEALTH INSURANCE ACT, 1924).

ORDER XLIIA.

These rules and forms in so far as they relate to applications to the Court, under the jurisdiction now taken away, are useless. They are consequently omitted.

APPLICATIONS TO THE REGISTRAR UNDER SECTION 68 (NOW 102).

Stay of proceedings, etc., where certificate granted under 14 & 15 Geo. V. c. 38, s. 102.

24.—(1) Where the medical practitioner attending on any person who is an insured person within the meaning of the National Insurance Act, 1911, and is in receipt of sickness benefit, certifies pursuant to section 68 of the said Act that the levying of any distress or execution upon any goods or chattels belonging to such insured person, and being on premises occupied by him, or the taking of any proceedings in ejectment or for the recovery of any rent or to enforce any judgment in ejectment against such person, would endanger his life, and such certificate has been sent to the insurance committee and has been recorded in manner provided by the said section, the following provision shall apply.

(2) If notice of such certificate having been given or renewed is given by or on behalf of the insured person to the registrar of the county court in the district of which such insured person resides, no execution upon any goods or chattels belonging to such insured person, and being on premises occupied by him, and no proceeding for the recovery of rent or to enforce any judgment in ejectment against such insured person shall be issued, and any execution or other proceeding as aforesaid issued before notice of the certificate having been given or renewed is received by the registrar shall be stayed, during the currency of the certificate or renewed certificate.

(3) If no notice is given to the registrar, then if notice of such certificate having been given or renewed is given to the bailiff in charge of any such execution or proceeding as aforesaid, such execution or proceeding shall be stayed during the currency of the certificate or renewed certificate.

(4) On notice of a certificate having been given or renewed being given to the registrar or to the bailiff, the registrar or high bailiff shall forthwith send notice to any person at whose instance any such execution or other proceeding as aforesaid issued of such certificate having been given or renewed.

(5) On proof being made to the satisfaction of the registrar that any such certificate or renewed certificate has ceased to be in force, any person desirous of levying any such execution or taking any such proceeding as aforesaid shall be entitled to proceed with the same.

Application to registrar to cancel or modify certificate under 14 & 15 Geo. V. c. 38, s. 102.

25.—(1) Where a person desirous of levying a distress or an execution upon any goods or chattels belonging to an insured person in receipt of sickness benefit, and being on premises occupied by him, or of taking proceedings in ejectment or for the recovery of rent, or to enforce any judgment in ejectment against any such person, disputes the accuracy of a certificate of the medical practitioner attending on such person granted to such person for the purpose of section 68 of the National Insurance Act, 1911, and sent to the insurance committee and recorded in manner provided by the said section, the following provisions shall apply.

Rule 25.

(2) The person disputing the accuracy of the certificate may apply to the registrar of the county court in the district of which the insured person resides for an order cancelling or modifying the certificate.

(3) The application may be made either in or out of court on notice in writing according to the form in the Appendix, which shall be filed with the registrar; and a copy thereof shall be served on the insured person two clear days at least before the hearing of the application, unless the registrar gives leave for shorter notice.

A copy of the certificate shall be filed with the notice of the application.

(4) On the hearing of the application evidence may be given on oath or affidavit, and the registrar may after hearing such evidence either dismiss the application or make an order cancelling or modifying the certificate, and may make such order and give such directions as may be just.

(5) The allowance of costs of and incidental to the application shall be in the discretion of the registrar.

(6) A sealed copy of the order made on the application shall be sent by post to the applicant and to the person insured, and to the insurance committee.

(7) Where a certificate is cancelled or modified, the applicant may, subject in any case in which the certificate is modified to any directions given by the order of the registrar, proceed as if the certificate had ceased to be in force.

26.—(1) Where a person desirous of levying such distress or execution or of taking such proceedings or enforcing such judgment as in the last preceding rule mentioned has demanded security for payment of rent thereafter to become due from the insured person, or of the amount of the judgment debt, as the case may be, and security is not given or offered, the person demanding security may, after the expiration of one month from the date of the grant of the original certificate, on proof being made to the satisfaction of the registrar of the county court in the district of which the insured person resides that security has been demanded and has not been given or offered, proceed as if the certificate had ceased to be in force.

Application to registrar to determine disputes as to sufficiency of security under 14 & 15 Geo. V. c. 38, s. 102.

(2) If security has been demanded and is given or offered, but any dispute arises as to the sufficiency of the security, either party may apply to the registrar of the county court in the district of which the insured person resides to determine such dispute, and in any such case the following provisions shall apply.

(3) The application may be made either in or out of court on notice in writing according to the form in the Appendix, which shall be filed with the registrar; and a copy thereof shall be served on the opposite party two clear days at least before the hearing of the application, unless the registrar gives leave for shorter notice.

(4) On the hearing of the application evidence may be given on oath or affidavit, and the registrar shall after hearing such Rule 26. evidence determine the dispute, and may make such order and give such directions as may be just. If he declares the security offered to be insufficient, he may further declare what security would be sufficient.

(5) The allowance of costs of and incidental to the application shall be in the discretion of the registrar.

(6) A sealed copy of the order made on the application shall be sent by post to each party to the application.

(7) If the registrar declares the security offered to be insufficient, and further declares what security would be sufficient, then, if such security is not given, the person demanding security may, after the expiration of one month from the date of the grant of the original certificate, on proof being made to the satisfaction of the registrar that security has not been given, and subject to any directions given by the order of the registrar, proceed as if the certificate had ceased to be in force.

The action should be brought in the district in which the defendant dwells or carries on business, and may not be brought after the expiration of six months from the date of the offence (sect. 13, infra). The proceedings will follow the ordinary practice of the court. No special rules.

Costs.—In every action, the party who shall prevail shall recover his full costs of suit (sect. 13, infra).

This Act applies only to those urban sanitary districts in which it is adopted in the manner required by the Act (sect. 2). If adopted, the provisions of sects. 150 to 152 of the Public Health Act, 1875, do not apply.

Jurisdiction.—Expenses of private street works in whole or any portion thereof (see sects. 10 and 12) incurred pursuant to the Act, together with interest at 4 per centum per annum from the date of the final apportionment (sect. 12) till payment may be recovered as a simple contract debt by action in any court of competent jurisdiction, i.e., in the county court up to 100*l*.

Short title, construction, and extent.

1. This Act may be cited as the Private Street Works Act, 1892, and shall be construed as one with the Public Health Acts, and shall extend only to England ; and this Act and the Public Health Acts may be cited together as the Public Health Acts.

Adoption of Act,

2. This Act shall extend and apply to any urban sanitary district in which it is respectively adopted under the provisions of this Act.

Apportionment of expenses.

10. In a provisional apportionment of expenses of private street works the apportionment of expenses against the premises fronting, adjoining or abutting on the street or part of a street in respect of which the expenses are to be incurred shall, unless the urban authority otherwise resolve, be apportioned according to the frontage of the respective premises ; but the urban authority may if they think just, resolve that in settling the apportionment regard shall be had to the following considerations (that is to say),

(a) The greater or less degree of benefit to be derived by any premises from such works ;

(b) The amount and value of any work already done by the owners or occupiers of any such premises.

They may also, if they think just, include any premises which do not front, adjoin or abut on the street or part of a street but access to which is obtained from the street through a court, passage or otherwise and which in their opinion will be benefited by the works, and may fix the sum or proportion to be charged against any such premises accordingly.

See Rex v. Minister of Health : Aldridge, Ex parte, (1925) 94 L. J. K. B. 707.

Amendment
of plan, etc.

11. The urban authority may from time to time amend the specifications, plans and sections (if any), estimates and provisional apportionments for any private street works, but if the total amount of the estimate in respect of any street or part of a street is increased, such estimate and the provisional apportionment shall be published in the manner prescribed in Part II. of the schedule to this Act, and shall be open to inspection at the urban authority offices at all reasonable times, and copies thereof shall be served on the owners of the premises affected thereby ; and objections may be made to the increase and on apportionment and if made shall be dealt with and determined in like manner as objections to the original estimate and apportionment.

12.—(1) When any private street works have been completed and the expenses thereof ascertained the surveyor shall make a final apportionment by dividing the expenses in the same proportions in which the estimated expenses were divided in the original or amended provisional apportionment (as the case may be) and such final apportionment shall be conclusive for all purposes; and notice of such final apportionment shall be served upon the owners of the premises affected thereby; and the sums apportioned thereby shall be recoverable in manner provided by this Act, or in the same manner as private improvement expenses are recoverable under the Public Health Act, 1875, 38 & 39 Vict. including the power to declare any such expenses to be payable c. 55. by instalments.

Section 12.

Final apportionment and recovery of expenses.

(2) Within one month after such notice the owner of any premises charged with any expenses under such apportionment may, by a written notice to the urban authority, object to such final apportionment on the following grounds, or any of them:—

- (a) That the actual expenses have without sufficient reason exceeded the estimated expenses by more than fifteen per cent.
- (b) That the final apportionment has not been made in accordance with this section.
- (c) That there has been an unreasonable departure from the specification, plans, and sections.

(3) Objections under this section shall be determined in the same manner as objections to the provisional apportionment.

* * * * *

14. The urban authority, if they think fit, may from time to time (in addition and without prejudice to any other remedy) recover summarily in a court of summary jurisdiction, or as a simple contract debt by action in any court of competent jurisdiction, from the owner for the time being of any premises in respect of which any sum is due for expenses of private street works the whole or any portion of such sum, together with interest at a rate not exceeding four pounds per centum per annum, from the date of the final apportionment till payment thereof.

Recovery of expenses summarily or by action.

The High Court held in Mayor of Blackburn v. Sanderson, (1902) 1 K. B. 794; 71 L. J. K. B. 590, that the six months' limitation only applies to summary proceedings, and not to an action brought in a court of competent jurisdiction; and hence does not apply to an action brought under the provisions of this section. Followed in Metropolitan Water Board v. Bunn, C. A., [1913] 3 K. B. 181; 82 L. J. K. B. 1024.

25. Neither sections one hundred and fifty, one hundred and fifty-one, and one hundred and fifty-two of the Public Health Act, 1875, nor section forty-one of the Public Health Acts Amendment Act, 1890, shall apply to any district or part of a district in which this Act is in force.

Certain sections of Public Health Acts not to apply.

THE PROBATE ACTS, 1857 AND 1858.

Jurisdiction.—Sect. 10 of the 1858 Act is repealed and re-enacted with modifications in sect. 150 (b) of the Supreme Court of Judicature (Consolidation) Act, 1925 (post, p. 2316). The judge of the county court (having jurisdiction in the place of abode of the deceased) has the contentious jurisdiction and authority of the Court of Probate in respect of questions as to the grant and revocation of probate or administration, provided that the deceased's personal estate (without deducting debts) was at the time of death under the value of 200*l.*, and that the deceased was not entitled beneficially to real estate of the value of 300*l.* or upwards. To give rise to this jurisdiction, the above conditions as to the amount of the property, must be proved to the satisfaction of a registrar of the principal registry, the application to him being on affidavit ; the affidavit is prima facie conclusive but if in the course of the proceedings it be shown to the judge that the conditions are not correctly stated in the affidavit, and if correctly stated, would not have given him jurisdiction, he must stay the proceedings, make such order as to costs as he may think just, and leave any party to apply to the Court of Probate (see sect. 57 of the 1857 Act).

Transfer from Probate Division to County Court.—Where the application for the grant or revocation of a grant of probate or letters of administration is made through the principal registry, the judge of the Probate Division, if any contentious matters arise, and the amount of the property and the place of abode of the deceased be such as to give contentious jurisdiction to a judge of a county court, may send the cause to the county court, and the judge of the said court may then proceed as if the application had been made to his court in the first instance (sect. 59 of the 1857 Act, now sect. 150 (a) of the Supreme Court of Judicature (Consolidation) Act, 1925, post, p. 2316) ; but that both the place of the abode and the value of the property should be as above are essential conditions necessary to enable the Probate Division to make the order. Where either the personalty is not under 200*l.*, or the realty not under 300*l.*, there is no power to transfer (see Davies v. Brecknell, (1870) L. R. 2 P. & D. 177 ; 40 L. J. P. 15, where the estate of the deceased consisted of personalty under 20*l.* in value, and of realty valued at 370*l.* subject to a mortgage ; and Thomas v. Nurse, (1870) 39 L. J. P. 80, where all conditions to give the county court jurisdiction existed, except that the realty exceeded 300*l.*, though not affected by the action).

Practice is governed by Order XLIX. (see p. 2316) framed under the authority of sect. 60 of the Act of 1857. The proceedings are commenced by plaint and summons in the ordinary way, but before the entry of any plaint the proposed plaintiff must lodge with the registrar an office copy of the minute of the High Court, authorising the commencement of the proceedings (Rule 4). The plaint and all subsequent proceedings are to be intitled "The Court of Probate Acts, 1857 and 1858" (Rule 1).

Parties.—Where a caveat has been lodged against the grant of probate or administration, the person who applies for probate or administration will be plaintiff in the proceedings, and the person lodging the caveat defendant (Rule 2). In proceedings for revocation of a grant, the party applying will be plaintiff, and the person against whom the application is made defendant (Rule 3).

Particulars.—Particulars of demand must be filed in all cases, stating concisely the nature of the proceedings and the relief or order which the plaintiff claims (Rule 5).

Service.—Service of a summons or notice of a summons out of England and Wales may be allowed by leave of the court (Order VII. r. 43).

Interveners.]—Any person not named in the summons may intervene and appear in the action, on filing an affidavit showing how he is interested in the estate of the deceased (Rule 6).

Notice for Production of Will, etc.]—The registrar, on issuing a plaint for revocation of probate or administration, must send notice (Form 443) by post to the district probate registrar by whom the probate or letters of administration has or have been granted, to produce the original will and other necessary documents at the hearing (Rule 7).

Transmission of Action from High Court.]—Where application for the grant or revocation of probate or letters of administration has been made at the principal registry of the Probate Division, and a judge of the said division shall send any action or contentious matter arising out of such application to the county court, the provisions of Order XLIX., post, p. 2316, and Order XXXIII., relating to actions or matters remitted from the Chancery Division to the county court shall apply to the proceedings in the county court (Rule 10). Where no provision has otherwise been made, the rules and practice of the Probate Division shall be followed so far as applicable (Rule 12).

After the transfer of an action, it becomes for all purposes a county court case, and the Probate Division cannot direct a new trial (Zealley v. Veryard, (1866) L. R. 1 P. & D. 195; 35 L. J. P. 127), or make an order as to costs either before or after removal (Macleur v. Macleure, (1868) L. R. 1 P. & D. 604; 37 L. J. P. & M. 68).

Production of Documents.]—The judge, upon application, may order any instrument, purporting to be testamentary, to be produced before him by the person in whose possession or control it may be; or where there is reasonable ground for believing that any person has knowledge of such paper or writing, the judge may require his attendance for the purpose of his being examined in open court, or upon interrogatories; and such person is to be liable to process of contempt in case he does not answer such interrogatories, or, if ordered, produce the document. The costs of the application are to be in the discretion of the judge (sect. 26 of the 1857 Act).

Administration pendente Lite.]—Pending any suit touching the validity of the will of any deceased person, or for obtaining, recalling or revoking any probate or any grant of letters of administration, the judge of the county court before whom such suit may be pending, may appoint an administrator of the personal estate of the deceased. The administrator has all the rights and powers of a general administrator, other than the right of distributing the residue of the personal estate, and is subject to the immediate control of the judge and must act under his directions (sect. 70 of the 1857 Act).

If in any such suit the will, the validity of which is disputed, affects real estate, the judge may appoint such administrator or any other person to be the receiver of the real estate, with such powers to receive all rents and profits, and of letting and managing it, as the judge may direct (sect. 71 of the 1857 Act).

The administrators and receivers so appointed are to receive out of the personal and real estate of the deceased such reasonable remuneration as the judge thinks fit (sect. 72 of the 1857 Act).

Jury.]—The judge of the county court may cause any question of fact arising in any suit or proceeding to be tried by a jury, or may direct an issue to be sent for trial to the High Court, in the same manner as an issue could formerly be directed by the Court of Chancery (sect. 35 of the 1857 Act).

Where an heir-at-law, cited or otherwise made party to a suit or proceeding, makes application to the judge for the question to be tried by a jury, the question must be so tried (Ib.).

In any other case where all the parties concur in an application for the question to be tried by a jury, or where any party or parties, other than the heir-at-law, make such application, and the court refuses to cause such trial, the applicant may appeal (Ib.).

The order of the judge shall be in Form 445, and a copy shall be sent by post to the plaintiff and defendant, and to any party intervening (Rule 9); the judge can enforce his judgments and orders as in an ordinary action (sect. 56 of the 1857 Act). The judge may order the costs to be taxed under column B or C, in default of an order they will be taxed under B (Rule 11).

Appeal.]—If either party is dissatisfied with the determination of the judge of the county court in point of law, or upon the admission or rejection of any evidence, he may appeal to the Probate Division of the High Court (sect. 58 of the 1857 Act; Leigh v. Green, (1892) P. 17; 61 L. J. P. 66). The right of appeal extends to proceedings under the Act of 1857 as well as 1858 (Copeland v. Simister, (1893) P. 16; 62 L. J. P. 38). The appeal will, it is believed, lie by motion, and generally the ordinary practice seems to apply (sect. 120, County Courts Act, 1888, Part I.). No further appeal lies to the Court of Appeal (Supreme Court of Judicature (Consolidation) Act, 1925, sect. 31 (1) (k)).

58. Any party who shall be dissatisfied with the determination Appeals of the judge of the county court in point of law, or upon the from county admission or rejection of any evidence in any matter or cause court. under this Act, may appeal from the same to the Court of Probate, in such manner and subject to such regulations as may be provided by the rules and orders made under this Act, and the decision of the Court of Probate on such appeal shall be final.

Note.—Words in italics repealed by the Supreme Court of Judicature (Consolidation) Act, 1925, which provides, by sect. 31 (1) (k), that no appeal shall lie from the decision of the High Court on any appeal from a county court on a point of law arising in any probate cause or matter.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH ACT, 1875.

[38 & 39 VICT. c. 55.]

Jurisdiction.]—For the purposes of the Act, sect. 91 declares certain things to be nuisances liable to be dealt with summarily as provided by the Act, and by sect. 35 of the Public Health Acts Amendment Act, 1907 (7 Edw. VII. c. 53), this definition of nuisance has been extended, and again by sect. 54 of the Public Health Act, 1925. By sects. 104 and 106, costs and expenses of the local authority, or of the officer of police authorised by the Local Government Board, incurred in making a complaint, or giving notice, or obtaining an order of the court of summary jurisdiction, or in carrying the same into effect, are declared to be money paid for the use and at the request of the person on whom the order is made, or of the person by whose act or default the nuisance was caused, and such costs and expenses to be recoverable in a summary manner, or in any county or superior court. It is clear that this gives under these two sections, county courts jurisdiction where the costs and expenses do not exceed 100*l.* and probably where they exceed this sum.

Further, by sect. 261, proceedings for the recovery of demands below 50*l.* which local authorities are empowered to recover in a summary manner may at the option of the authority be taken in the county court. There are many sections which empower local authorities to recover money summarily, but sect. 150 is the one on which proceedings are taken most frequently in the county court by virtue of the jurisdiction given by sect. 261.

Practice.—The proceedings should be by action commenced in usual way, by plaint and summons, and are regulated by Order L. rr. 35 and 36, see Part I. No special rules.

Time within which proceedings should be taken is discussed in notes to the respective sections.

PART I

PRELIMINARY.

1. This Act may be cited as The Public Health Act, 1875.

* * * * *

4. In this Act, if not inconsistent with the context, the following words and expressions have the meaning herein-after assigned to them; that is to say—

* * * * *

“Person” includes any body of persons, whether corporate or unincorporate:

“Local authority” means urban sanitary authority and rural sanitary authority:

“Surveyor” includes any person appointed by a rural authority to perform any of the duties of surveyor under this Act:

“Lands” and “premises” include messuages, buildings, lands, easements, and hereditaments of any tenure:

See Macey v. James, (1917) 86 L. J. K. B. 1257.

“Owner” means the person for the time being receiving the rackrent of the lands or premises in connexion with which the word is used, whether on his own account or as agent or trustee for any other person, or who would so receive the same if such lands or premises were let at a rackrent:

“Rackrent” means rent which is not less than two-thirds of the full net annual value of the property out of which the rent arises; and the full net annual value shall be taken to be the rent at which the property might reasonably be expected to let from year to year, free from all usual tenant’s rates and taxes, and tithe commutation rentcharge (if any), and deducting therefrom the probable average annual cost of the repairs, insurance, and other expenses (if any) necessary to maintain the same in a state to command such rent:

“Street” includes any highway, and any public bridge (not being a county bridge), and any road, lane, footway, square, court, alley, or passage, whether a thoroughfare or not:

See Regent’s Canal and Docks Co. v. Gibbons, (1925) 1 K. B. 81.

* * * * *

NUISANCES.

91. For the purposes of this Act,—

- (1) Any premises in such a state as to be a nuisance or injurious to health: Definition of nuisances.
- (2) Any pool, ditch, gutter, watercourse, privy, urinal, cesspool, drain, or ashpit so foul or in such a state as to be a nuisance or injurious to health:
- (3) Any animal so kept as to be a nuisance or injurious to health:

Section 91.

- (4) Any accumulation or deposit which is a nuisance or injurious to health :
- (5) Any house or part of a house so overcrowded as to be dangerous or injurious to the health of the inmates, whether or not members of the same family :
- (6) Any factory, workshop, or workplace (not already under the operation of any general Act for the regulation of factories or bakehouses), not kept in a cleanly state, or not ventilated in such a manner as to render harmless as far as practicable any gases, vapours, dust, or other impurities generated in the course of the work carried on therein that are a nuisance or injurious to health, or so overcrowded while work is carried on as to be dangerous or injurious to the health of those employed therein :
- (7) Any fireplace or furnace which does not as far as practicable consume the smoke arising from the combustible used therein, and which is used for working engines by steam, or in any mill, factory, dyehouse, brewery, bakehouse, or gaswork, or in any manufacturing or trade process whatsoever ; and
- (8) Any chimney (not being the chimney of a private dwelling-house) sending forth black smoke in such quantity as to be a nuisance, shall be deemed to be nuisances liable to be dealt with summarily in manner provided by this Act : Provided—

First. That a penalty shall not be imposed on any person in respect of any accumulation or deposit necessary for the effectual carrying on any business or manufacture if it be proved to the satisfaction of the court that the accumulation or deposit has not been kept longer than is necessary for the purposes of the business or manufacture, and that the best available means have been taken for preventing injury thereby to the public health :

Secondly. That where a person is summoned before any court in respect of a nuisance arising from a fireplace or furnace which does not consume the smoke arising from the combustible used in such fireplace or furnace, the court shall hold that no nuisance is created within the meaning of this Act, and dismiss the complaint, if it is satisfied that such fireplace or furnace is constructed in such manner as to consume as far as practicable, having regard to the nature of the manufacture or trade, all smoke arising therefrom, and that such fireplace or furnace has been carefully attended to by the person having the charge thereof.

The above definition of nuisance has been extended by the Public Health Acts Amendment Act, 1907, s. 35, which section is as follows :—

35. For the purpose of the Public Health Act, 1875,

- (1) Any cistern used for the supply of water for domestic purposes so placed, constructed, or kept as to render the water therein liable to contamination, causing or likely to cause risk to health.
- (2) Any gutter, drain, shoot, stack-pipe, or down-spout of a building which, by reason of its insufficiency or its defective condition, shall cause damp in such building, or in an adjoining building ; and

(3) Any deposit of material in or on any building or land which shall cause damp in such building, or in an adjoining building, so as to be dangerous or injurious to health, shall be deemed to be a nuisance within the meaning of the said Act.

Section 91.

The definition of nuisance has been further extended by sect. 54 of the Public Health Act, 1925 (15 & 16 Geo. V. c. 71), to include a watercourse so choked or silted up as to obstruct or impede the proper flow of the water.

See Clayton v. Sale U.D.C., (1926) 1 K. B. 415.

* * * * *

94. On the receipt of any information respecting the existence of a nuisance the local authority shall, if satisfied of the existence of a nuisance, serve a notice (a) on the person by whose act default or sufferance the nuisance arises or continues, or, if such person cannot be found (b), on the owner or occupier of the premises on which the nuisance arises, requiring him to abate the same within a time to be specified in the notice, and to execute such works and do such things as may be necessary for that purposes.

Local authority to serve notice requiring abatement of nuisance.

NOTE (a).—The notice must not be ambiguous (Whalling v. Rees, (1915) 84 L. J. K. B. 1122).

NOTE (b).—"Cannot be found." See, Rhymney Iron Co. v. Gelligaer District Council, (1917) 1 K. B. 589; 86 L. J. K. B. 564.

Provided—

First. That where the nuisance arises from the want or defective construction of any structural convenience, or where there is no occupier of the premises, notice under this section shall be served on the owner:

Secondly. That where the person causing the nuisance cannot be found and it is clear that the nuisance does not arise or continue by the act default or sufferance of the owner or occupier of the premises, the local authority may themselves abate the same without further order.

95. If the person on whom a notice to abate a nuisance has been served makes default in complying with any of the requisitions thereof within the time specified, or if the nuisance, although abated since the service of the notice is, in the opinion of the local authority, likely to recur on the same premises, the local authority shall cause a complaint relating to such nuisance to be made before a justice, and such justice shall thereupon issue a summons requiring the person on whom the notice was served to appear before a court of summary jurisdiction.

On non-compliance with notice complaint to be made to justice.

96. If the court is satisfied that the alleged nuisance exists, or that although abated it is likely to recur on the same premises, the court shall make an order on such person requiring him to comply with all or any of the requisitions of the notice, or otherwise to abate the nuisance within a time specified in the order, and to do any works necessary for that purpose; or an order prohibiting the recurrence of the nuisance and directing the execution of any works necessary to prevent the recurrence; or an order both requiring abatement and prohibiting the recurrence of the nuisance.

Power of court of summary jurisdiction to make order dealing with nuisance.

The Court may by their order impose a penalty not exceeding five pounds on the person on whom the order is made, and shall also give directions as to the payment of all costs incurred up to the time of hearing or making the order for abatement or prohibition of the nuisance.

Section 97.

Order of prohibition in case of house unfit for human habitation.

97. Where the nuisance proved to exist is such as to render a house or building in the judgment of the court unfit for human habitation the court may prohibit the using thereof for that purpose until in its judgment the house or building is rendered fit for that purpose; and on the court being satisfied that it has been rendered fit for that purpose the court may determine its previous order by another declaring the house or building habitable and from the date thereof such house or building may be let or inhabited.

Penalty for contravention of order of court.

98. Any person not obeying an order to comply with the requisitions of the local authority or otherwise to abate the nuisance shall if he fails to satisfy the court that he has used all due diligence to carry out such order be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten shillings per day during his default: and any person knowingly and wilfully acting contrary to an order of prohibition shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty shillings per day during such contrary action; moreover the local authority may enter the premises to which any order relates and abate the nuisance, and do whatever may be necessary in execution of such order and recover in a summary manner the expenses incurred by them from the person on whom the order is made.

Mandamus to compel a local authority to abate a nuisance will not be granted (In re Ham Local Board, (1857) 26 L. J. M. C. 64).

* * * * *

Costs and expenses of execution of provisions relating to nuisances.

104. All reasonable costs and expenses incurred in making a complaint, or giving notice, or in obtaining any order of the court or any justice in relation to a nuisance under this Act, or in carrying the same into effect, shall be deemed to be money paid for the use and at the request of the person on whom the order is made; or if the order is made on the local authority, or if no order is made, but the nuisance is proved to have existed when the complaint was made or the notice given, then of the person by whose act or default the nuisance was caused; and in case of nuisances caused by the act or default of the owner of premises, such costs and expenses may be recovered from any person who is for the time being owner of such premises: Provided that such costs and expenses shall not exceed in the whole one year's rack-rent of the premises.

Such costs and expenses, and any penalties incurred in relation to any such nuisance, may be recovered in a summary manner or in any county or superior court; and the court shall have power to divide costs expenses and penalties between persons by whose acts or defaults a nuisance is caused as to it may seem just.

Any costs and expenses recoverable under this section by a local authority from an owner of premises may be recovered from the occupier for the time being of such premises; and the owner shall allow such occupier to deduct any moneys which he pays under this enactment out of the rent from time to time becoming due in respect of the said premises, as if the same had been actually paid to such owner as part of such rent:

Provided, that no such occupier shall be required to pay any further sum than the amount of rent for the time being due from him, or which, after demand of such costs or expenses from such occupier, and after notice not to pay his landlord any rent without first deducting the amount of such costs or expenses, become payable by such occupier, unless he refuses, on application to him by the local authority, truly to disclose the amount of his rent and the name and address of the person to whom such rent is payable; but the burden of proof that the sum demanded from any such occupier is greater than the rent due by him at the time of such notice, or which has since accrued, shall lie on such occupier: Section 104.

Provided also, that nothing herein contained shall affect any contract between any owner or occupier of any house building or other property whereby it is or may be agreed that the occupier shall pay or discharge all rates dues and sums of money payable in respect of such house building or other property, or to affect any contract whatsoever between landlord and tenant.

The time within which an action may be brought for the recovery of costs and expenses and penalties has been discussed under divers sections of this Act and of local Acts, and the decisions have turned upon slight verbal differences in the different sections. The result of the decisions seems to be that if the statute allows proceedings to be taken either by complaint before justices, or by action in a court of competent jurisdiction, the six months' limit only applies to the summary proceedings, and not to the alternative proceedings (Mayor of Blackburn v. Sanderson, (1902) 1 K. B. 794; 71 L. J. K. B. 590), followed in Metropolitan Water Board v. Bunn (C. A.), (1913) 3 K. B. 181; 82 L. J. K. B. 1024: doubts being thrown upon Vestry of Hammersmith v. Lowenfeld, (1896) 2 Q. B. 278; 65 L. J. Q. B. 662; but if, as in sect. 261, demands made recoverable by summary proceedings are by another section made recoverable in the county court, the six months' limit of time wherein proceedings must be brought in the court of summary jurisdiction applies also to any action brought in the county court (Tottenham Local Board v. Rowell (C. A.), (1876) 1 Ex. D. 514; 46 L. J. Ex. 432); the time therefore under this section and sect. 106 is the usual period of limitation and not six months.

* * * * *

106. Where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Local Government Board that a local authority have made default in doing their duty in relation to nuisances under this Act, the Local Government Board may authorise any officer of police acting within the district of the defaulting authority to institute any proceeding which the defaulting authority might institute with respect to such nuisances, and such officer may recover in a summary manner or in any county or superior court any expenses incurred by him, and not paid by the person proceeded against, from the defaulting authority: Power of officer of police to proceed in certain cases against nuisances.

But such officer of police shall not be at liberty to enter any house used as the dwelling of any person without such person's consent, or without the warrant of a justice, for the purpose of carrying into effect this enactment.

As to the time within which an action must be brought in county court, see note to sect. 104.

* * * * *

150. Where any street within any urban district (not being a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large) or the carriage-way footway or any other part of such street is not sewered, levelled, paved, metalled, flagged, channelled and made good or is not lighted to the satisfaction of the urban authority, such authority may, if it is of opinion that it is expedient so to do, cause the street to be Power to compel paving, etc., of private streets.

Section 150. rity may, by notice addressed to the respective owners or occupiers of the premises fronting adjoining or abutting on such parts thereof as may require to be sewered levelled paved metalled flagged or channelled, or to be lighted, require them to sewer level pave metal flag channel or make good or to provide proper means for lighting the same within a time to be specified in such notice.

Before giving such notice the urban authority shall cause plans and sections of any structural works intended to be executed under this section, and an estimate of the probable cost thereof, to be made under the direction of their surveyor, such plans and sections to be on a scale of not less than one inch for eighty-eight feet for a horizontal plan, and on a scale of not less than one inch for ten feet for a vertical section, and, in the case of a sewer, showing the depth of such sewer below the surface of the ground : such plans sections and estimate shall be deposited in the office of the urban authority, and shall be open at all reasonable hours for the inspection of all persons interested therein during the time specified in such notice ; and a reference to such plans and sections in such notice shall be sufficient without requiring any copy of such plans and sections to be annexed to such notice.

If such notice is not complied with, the urban authority may, if they think fit, execute the works mentioned or referred to therein ; and may recover in a summary manner the expenses incurred by them in so doing from the owners in default, according to the frontage of their respective premises, and in such proportion as is settled by the surveyor of the urban authority, or (in case of dispute) by arbitration in manner provided by this Act ; or the urban authority may by order declare the expenses so incurred to be private improvement expenses.

The same proceedings may be taken, and the same powers may be exercised, in respect of any street or road of which a part is or may be a public footpath or repairable by the inhabitants at large as fully as if the whole of such street or road was a highway not repairable by the inhabitants at large.

Though the practice in the county court to recover claims under this section is, by sect. 261, very simple, viz., by plaint and summons, to satisfy the burden of proof thrown on the plaintiff is far from a simple matter. Each step indicated by the section must be proved step by step ; thus it must be proved (a) that the condition of the street is unsatisfactory in the opinion of the urban authority ; this may be proved by a resolution to that effect ; (b) that plans and sections as provided by the section have been made under the direction of their surveyor ; (c) that an estimate of the probable cost has been drawn up under the same direction ; (d) that the said plans, etc., and estimates had been deposited in the office of the urban authority ; (e) that notice had been addressed to the owners or occupiers of the premises fronting, adjoining, or abutting on such part of the street as may require to be made good, requiring them to make good or provide the work specified in such notice within a named time ; (f) such notice must contain a statement of the place where the said plans, etc., and estimate have been deposited, and that the same are open daily during business hours during the time specified in the notice for inspection by all persons interested ; (g) that such notice was not complied with, and that the works mentioned were executed by the urban authority ; (h) the expenses incurred in doing the works ; (i) the proportion payable by the respective owners in default as settled by the surveyor of the urban authority, or (in case of dispute) by arbitration in manner provided by the Act ; (k) a demand for payment.

Time.—See Macclesfield Corporation v. Governors of Free Grammar School of King Edward VI., (1921) 2 Ch. 189; 90 L. J. Ch. 477.

The action must be brought within six months (Tottenham Local Board v. Rowell (C. A.), (1876) 1 Ex. D. 514; 46 L. J. Ex. 432).

“Street,” for the meaning of, see sect. 4, ante, as explained in Fenwick v. Rural Sanitary Authority of Croydon, (1891) 2 Q. B. 212; 60 L. J. M. C. 161, following the dictum of Lord Selborne in Robinson v. Barton and Eccles Local Board, (1883) 8 App. Cas. 798; 53 L. J. Ch. 226, that “street” in this Act means the roadway as distinguished from the road with houses.

Notice must be specific; a notice which refers in general terms to the provisions of the section is bad (Stourbridge Urban District Council v. Butler and Grove, (1909) 1 Ch. 87; 78 L. J. Ch. 59), and must be served on the owner or occupier or expenses cannot be recovered (Jarrow Local Board v. Kennedy, (1870) L. R. 6 Q. B. 128; Bristol Corporation v. Sinott, (1918) 87 L. J. Ch. 30).

Dispute as to the apportionment must be referred to arbitration (Sandgate Local Board v. Keene, (1892) 1 Q. B. 831; 61 L. J. Q. B. 775); as to what is a dispute, see Mayor of Folkestone v. Brooks, (1893) 3 Ch. 22; 62 L. J. Ch. 863; Stoker v. Mayor, &c., of Morpeth, (1915) 2 K. B. 511.

Abutting.—A house may abut upon a street though it has no access thereto (Newport Urban Sanitary Authority v. Graham, (1882) 9 Q. B. D. 183).

Street or Road of which Part is a Public Footpath.—Frontagers liable to expense of improving the whole street, and not merely such part as had been added to ancient highway (Evans v. Newport Urban Sanitary Authority, (1890) 24 Q. B. D. 264; 59 L. J. M. C. 8).

Private Improvement Expenses.—The urban authority may declare the expenses under this section to be private improvement expenses; such expenses may be recovered under sects. 213 and 257.

There is a vast field of learning, and many decisions on this section which cannot satisfactorily be dealt with in a book merely dealing with the practice of a particular court, but can be found on reference to Lumley’s Public Health (7th edit.), pp. 287—318.

* * * * *

This limitation of six months, in the case of summary proceedings, does not apply to proceedings in the county court under sects. 104 or 106, nor to proceedings to enforce a charge under sect. 257 (see note to those sections).

* * * * *

257. Where any local authority have incurred expenses for the repayment whereof the owner of the premises for or in respect of which the same are incurred is made liable under this Act or by any agreement with the local authority, such expenses may be recovered, together with interest at a rate not exceeding five pounds per centum per annum, from the date of service of a demand for the same till payment thereof, from any person who is the owner of such premises when the works are completed for which such expenses have been incurred, and until recovery of such expenses and interest the same shall be a charge on the premises in respect of which they were incurred. In all summary proceedings by a local authority for the recovery of expenses incurred by them in works of private improvement, the time within which such proceedings may be taken shall be reckoned from the date of the service of notice of demand.

Where such expenses have been settled and apportioned by the surveyor of the local authority as payable by such owner,

Section 257. such apportionment shall be binding and conclusive on such owner unless within three months from service of notice on him by the local authority or their surveyor of the amount settled by the surveyor to be due from such owner, he shall by written notice dispute the same.

The local authority may, by order, declare any such expenses to be payable by annual instalments within a period not exceeding thirty years, with interest at a rate not exceeding five pounds per centum per annum, until the whole amount is paid; and any such instalments and interest, or any part thereof, may be recovered in a summary manner from the owner or occupier for the time being of such premises, and may be deducted from the rent of such premises, in the same proportions as are allowed in the case of private improvement rates under this Act.

Time within which proceedings may be taken to enforce a charge on the land is the usual period of limitation (Tottenham Local Board v Rowell (No. 2), (1880) 15 Ch. D. 378; 50 L. J. Ch. 99 (C. A.)), and the time begins to run from the demand for payment.

The proceedings to enforce such a charge in the county court should be taken under sect. 67 of the County Courts Act, 1888, as to which, see Act in Part I.

How the charge ought to be apportioned.]—Where a local authority have made up a road fronting several premises, held that the charge must be for an apportioned sum in respect of each one of the premises fronting on the road (Croydon Rural District Council v. Betts, (1914) 1 Ch. 870; 82 L. J. Ch. 709).

* * * * *

Demands below 50l. may be recovered in county courts.

261. Proceedings for the recovery of demands below fifty pounds, which local authorities are empowered to recover in a summary manner, may, at the option of the local authority, be taken in the county court as if such demands were debts within the cognizance of such courts.

Time for taking proceedings in the county court under this section, as well as before a court of summary jurisdiction, is six months, as provided by sect. 252 (Tottenham Local Board v. Rowell (C. A.), (1876) 1 Ex. D. 514; 46 L. J. Ex. 432; see note to sect. 104).

PUBLIC HEALTH (LONDON) ACT, 1891.

By this Act certain things are declared to be nuisances by sect. 2, and under sects. 4 and 5 certain steps may be taken to abate such nuisances.

Jurisdiction.—By sect. 11, sub-s. 1, all reasonable costs and expenses incurred in abating such nuisances shall be deemed to be money paid for the use and at the request of the person on whom the order is made; by sect. 11, sub-s. 2, such costs and expenses and fines may be recovered in a summary manner, or in the county court or High Court. The court has further power to divide costs, expenses and fines between the persons responsible for the nuisance.

By sect. 117, sub-s. 2, a demand not exceeding 50l., which a sanitary authority can recover in a summary manner, may be recovered in the county court as if such demand were a debt.

Practice.—Proceedings are to be by action commenced by plaint and summons in the ordinary way (Order L. rr. 35, 36 apply; see Part I.).

No special rules.

Time within which the action should be commenced is a matter of some doubt, but the better opinion seems to be that the action must be commenced within six calendar months' time (see note to sect. 11).

NUISANCES (GENERAL).

2.—(1) For the purposes of this Act,—

- (a) Any premises in such a state as to be a nuisance or injurious to health; What nuisances
- (b) Any pool, ditch, gutter, watercourse, cistern, watercloset, earth closet, privy, urinal, cesspool, drain, dung-pit, or ashpit so foul or in such a state as to be a nuisance or injurious to health; may be abated summarily.
- (c) Any animal kept in such place or manner as to be a nuisance or injurious or dangerous to health;
- (d) Any accumulation or deposit which is a nuisance or injurious or dangerous to health;
- (e) Any house or part of a house so overcrowded as to be injurious or dangerous to the health of the inmates, whether or not members of the same family;
- (f) Any such absence from premises of water fittings as is a nuisance by virtue of section thirty-three of the Metropolitan Water Act, 1871, set out in the first schedule to this Act; and 34 & 35 Vict. c. 113.
- (g) Any factory, workshop, or workplace which is not a factory subject to the provisions of the Factory and Workshop Act, 1878, relating to cleanliness, ventilation, and overcrowding, and 41 & 42 Vict. c. 16.
 - (i.) is not kept in a cleanly state and free from effluvia arising from any drain, privy, earth closet, watercloset, urinal, or other nuisance, or
 - (ii.) is not ventilated in such a manner as to render harmless as far as practicable any gases, vapours, dust, or other impurities generated in the course of the work carried on therein that are a nuisance or injurious or dangerous to health, or,
 - (iii.) is so overcrowded while work is carried on as to be injurious or dangerous to the health of those employed therein, shall be nuisances liable to be dealt with summarily under this Act.

(2) Provided that—

- (i.) Any accumulation or deposit necessary for the effectual carrying on of any business or manufacture shall not be punishable as a nuisance under this section, if it is proved to the satisfaction of the court that the accumulation or deposit has not been kept longer than is necessary for the purposes of the business or manufacture, and that the best available means have been taken for preventing injury thereby to the public health; and
- (ii.) In considering whether any dwelling-house or part of a dwelling-house which is used also as a factory, workshop, or workplace, or whether any factory, workshop, or workplace used also as a dwelling-house, is a nuisance by reason of overcrowding, the court shall have regard to the circumstance of such other user.

Section 11.

Costs of execution of provisions relating to nuisances.

11.—(1) All reasonable costs and expenses incurred in serving notice, making a complaint, or obtaining a nuisance order, or in carrying the order into effect, shall be deemed to be money paid for the use and at the request of the person on whom the order is made; or if the order is made on the sanitary authority, or, if no order is made, but the nuisance is proved to have existed when the notice was served or the complaint made, then of the person by whose act, default, or sufferance, the nuisance was caused; and in case of nuisances caused by the act or default of the owner of premises, such costs and expenses may be recovered from any person who is for the time being owner of such premises.

(2) Such costs and expenses, and any fines incurred in relation to any such nuisance, may be recovered in a summary manner or in the county court or High Court, and the court shall have power to divide costs, expenses and fines between persons by whose acts, defaults, or sufferance a nuisance is caused, as to it may seem just.

In the case of Vestry of Hammersmith v. Lowenfeld, (1896) 2 Q. B. 278; 65 L. J. Q. B. 662, it was held that any such action in a county court must be brought within six months from the time when the costs and expenses were incurred; some doubts were thrown upon this decision in the Mayor of Blackburn v. Sanderson, (1902) 1 K. B. 794; 71 L. J. K. B. 590. See also Metropolitan Water Board v. Bunn, C. A., (1913) 3 K. B. 181; 82 L. J. K. B. 1024, but the better opinion seems to be that the first-named case is correct, especially as fines are expressly named in the section, and would have to be recovered within six months if recovered in a summary manner.

PUBLIC TRUSTEE ACT, 1906.

[6 EDW. VII. c. 55.]

This Act provided for the appointment of a public trustee in England (a), a corporation sole which may sue or be sued under that name. The public trustee may, if he think fit (a) act in the administration of estates of small value, (b) as custodian trustee, (c) as an ordinary trustee, (d) as a judicial trustee, (e) as the administrator of the property of a convict under the Forfeiture Act, 1870.

NOTE (a).—Not Scotland. See Hewitt's Settlements, In re, (1915) 1 Ch. 223; 84 L. J. Ch. 358.

Jurisdiction of the county court is limited to estates which do not exceed 500*l.* in value. By sect. 10 of this Act any person aggrieved by any act or omission or decision of the public trustee in relation to any trust, may apply to the "court," and the "court" may make such order in the matter as it thinks fit. Under sect. 13, sub-s. 6. the "court" may make such order as it thinks just if the auditor, mentioned in that section, is refused access to any document, or is obstructed in his investigations. The word "court" by sect. 15 means the High Court, and as respects trusts within its jurisdiction, the county court; the County Courts Act, 1888, s. 67, limits the powers of the county court as to trust estates to 500*l.* A corporate body may be appointed custodian trustees (In re Cherry's Trusts, Robinson v. Trustees for Wesleyan Methodists, (1914) 1 Ch. 83; 83 L. J. Ch. 142).

Practice.—The proceedings are commenced by petition, and carried on as provided by Order XXXVIII. (see County Court Rules, Part I.).

Appeal from the county court will be as in cases under sect. 67 of the County Courts Act, 1888.

The Public Trustee Rules, 1912, have been made by the Lord Chancellor for carrying into effect the objects of this Act; none of these rules touch the practice of the county court, and they are, therefore, not set out, but will be found in the Annual Practice.

SUPPLEMENTAL PROVISIONS AS TO PUBLIC TRUSTEE.

10.—(1) A person aggrieved by any act or omission or decision Appeal to of the Public Trustee in relation to any trust may apply to the the court. court, and the court may make such order in the matter as the court thinks just.

(2) Subject to rules of court, an application under this section to the High Court shall be made to a judge of the Chancery Division of the High Court in chambers.

* * * * *

INVESTIGATION AND AUDIT OF TRUST ACCOUNTS.

13.—(1) Subject to rules under this Act and unless the court Investigation otherwise orders, the condition and accounts of any trust shall, and audit of on an application being made and notice thereof given in the trust prescribed manner by any trustee or beneficiary, be investigated accounts. and audited by such solicitor or public accountant as may be agreed on by the applicant and the trustees or, in default of agreement, by the Public Trustee or some person appointed by him :

Provided that (except with the leave of the court) such an investigation or audit shall not be required within twelve months after any such previous investigation or audit, and that a trustee or beneficiary shall not be appointed under this section to make an investigation or audit.

(2) The person making the investigation or audit (herein-after called the auditor) shall have a right of access to the books, accounts, and vouchers of the trustees, and to any securities and documents of title held by them on account of the trust, and may require from them such information and explanation as may be necessary for the performance of his duties, and upon the completion of the investigation and audit shall forward to the applicant and to every trustee a copy of the accounts, together with a report thereon, and a certificate signed by him to the effect that the accounts exhibit a true view of the state of the affairs of the trust and that he has had the securities of the trust fund investments produced to and verified by him or (as the case may be) that such accounts are deficient in such respects as may be specified in such certificate.

(3) Every beneficiary under the trust shall, subject to rules under this Act, be entitled at all reasonable times to inspect and take copies of the accounts, report, and certificate, and, at his own expense, to be furnished with copies thereof or extracts therefrom.

(4) The auditor may be removed by order of the court, and, if any auditor is removed, or resigns, or dies, or becomes bankrupt or incapable of acting before the investigation and audit is completed, a new auditor may be appointed in his place in like manner as the original auditor.

Section 13.

(5) The remuneration of the auditor and the other expenses of the investigation and audit shall be such as may be prescribed by rules under this Act, and shall, unless the Public Trustee otherwise directs, be borne by the estate; and, in the event of the Public Trustee so directing, he may order that such expenses be borne by the applicant or by the trustees personally or partly by them and partly by the applicant.

(6) If any person having the custody of any documents to which the auditor has a right of access under this section fails or refuses to allow him to have access thereto or in anywise obstructs the investigation or audit, the auditor may apply to the court, and thereupon the court shall make such order as it thinks just.

Definitions.

15. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires—the expression "court" means the High Court and, as respects trusts within its jurisdiction, the county court:

RAILWAY REGULATION AMENDMENT ACT, 1871.

[34 & 35 VICT. c. 78.]

Jurisdiction.]—The county court as a court has no jurisdiction under this Act but by sect. 7 the Board of Trade is empowered, when it considers that a formal investigation as to the causes and circumstances of any railway accident ought to be made to direct that such investigation shall be held (amongst other persons) by a county court judge, with the assistance of an inspector or an assessor or assessors. The said persons constitute a court, and by sect. 7, sub-s. 3, are given divers powers therein set forth. The court has to report to the Board of Trade as to the causes and circumstances attending the accident.

Inquiry into accidents and formal investigation in serious cases.

7. The Board of Trade may direct an inquiry to be made by an inspector into the cause of any accident, of which notice is for the time being required by or in pursuance of this Act to be sent to the Board of Trade; and where it appears to the Board of Trade, either before or after the commencement of any such inquiry, that a more formal investigation of the accident, and of the causes thereof, and of the circumstances attending the same, is expedient, the Board of Trade may, by order, direct such investigation to be held, and with respect to such investigation the following provisions shall have effect:

- (1) The Board of Trade may, by the same or any subsequent order, appoint any person or persons possessing legal or special knowledge to assist an inspector in holding the same, or may direct the county court judge, stipendiary magistrate, metropolitan police magistrate, or other person or persons named in the same or any subsequent order, to hold the same with the assistance of an inspector or any other assessor or assessors named in the order:
- (2) The persons holding any such formal investigation (hereinafter referred to as the court) shall hold the same in open court in such manner and under such conditions as they may think most effectual for ascertaining the causes and circumstances of the accident, and enabling them to make the report in this section mentioned :

Section 7

- (3) The court shall have for the purpose of such investigation all the powers of a court of summary jurisdiction when acting as a court in the exercise of its ordinary jurisdiction, and all the powers of an inspector under this Act, and in addition the following powers ; namely,

(a) They may enter and inspect any place or building the entry or inspection whereof appears to them requisite for the said purpose :

(b) They may by summons under their hands require the attendance of all such persons as they think fit to call before them and examine for the said purpose, and may for such purpose require answers or returns to such inquiries as they think fit to make :

(c) They may require and enforce the production of all books, papers, and documents which they consider important for the said purpose :

(d) They may administer an oath, and require any person examined to make and sign a declaration of the truth of the statements made by him in his examination :

(e) Every person so summoned not being a person engaged in the management, service, or employment of a company, or otherwise connected with a company, shall be allowed such expenses as would be allowed to a witness attending on subpoena before a court of record ; and in case of dispute as to the amount to be allowed, the same shall be referred by the court to a master of one of the superior courts, who, on request under the hands of the members of the court, shall ascertain and certify the proper amount of such expenses :

- (4) The inspector making an inquiry into any accident and the court holding an investigation of any accident shall make a report to the Board of Trade stating the causes of the accident and all the circumstances attending the same, and any observations thereon or on the evidence or on any matters arising out of the investigation which they think right to make to the Board of Trade, and the Board of Trade shall cause every such report to be made public in such manner as they think expedient.

REGISTRATION OF BUSINESS NAMES ACT, 1916.

[6 & 7 GEO. 5, c. 58.]

By this Act all firms, and persons carrying on business in names other than their own must be registered. One of the penalties of non-registration is that such firm or person cannot sue on its business contracts.

The High Court or the county court where the action is brought in the county court, may give relief against this penalty on being satisfied that the failure to register was accidental or due to inadvertence, or some other sufficient cause, or that on other grounds it is just and equitable that relief should be granted.

1. Subject to the provisions of this Act --

- (a) Every firm having a place of business in the United Kingdom

Firms and persons to be registered.

and carrying on business under a business name which does not consist of the true surnames of all partners who are individuals and the corporate names of all partners who are corporations without any addition other than the true Christian names of individual partners or initials of such Christian names (a) ;

NOTE.--(a) Similar provisions as to Directors of Companies are contained in the Companies (Particulars as to Directors) Act, 1917. See ante, p. 1874.

- (b) Every individual having a place of business in the United Kingdom and carrying on business under a business name which does not consist of his true surname without any addition other than his true Christian names or the initials thereof ;
 - (c) Every individual or firm having a place of business in the United Kingdom, who, or a member of which, has either before or after the passing of this Act changed his name, except in the case of a woman in consequence of marriage ;
- shall be registered in the manner directed by this Act :

Provided that—

- (i.) where the addition merely indicates that the business is carried on in succession to a former owner of the business, that addition shall not of itself render registration necessary ; and
- (ii.) where two or more individual partners have the same surname, the addition of an s at the end of that surname shall not of itself render registration necessary ; and
- (iii.) where the business is carried on by a trustee in bankruptcy or a receiver or manager appointed by any court, registration shall not be necessary ; and
- (iv.) a purchase or acquisition of property by two or more persons as joint tenants or tenants in common is not of itself to be deemed carrying on a business whether or not the owners share any profits arising from the sale thereof.

Penalty for default in registration.

7. If any firm or person by this Act required to furnish a statement of particulars or of any change in particulars shall without reasonable excuse make default in so doing in the manner and within the time specified by this Act, every partner in the firm or the person so in default shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding five pounds for every day during which the default continues, and the court shall order a statement of the required particulars or change in the particulars to be furnished to the registrar within such time as may be specified in the order.

See, as to penalty, Solicitor to the Board of Trade v. Ernest, (1920) 1 K. B. 816 ; 89 L. J. K. B. 766.

8.—(1) Where any firm or person by this Act required to furnish a statement of particulars or of any change in particulars shall have made default in so doing, then the rights of that defaulter under or arising out of any contract made or entered into by or on behalf of such defaulter in relation to the business in respect to the carrying on of which particulars were required to be furnished at any time while he is in default shall not be enforceable by action or other legal proceeding (a) either in the business name or otherwise.

Disability of person in default.

(a) A judgment debtor had sold the goodwill and stock-in-trade of his business to a person who carried on the business for a time in the name of the judgment debtor and afterwards in no declared name, and who did not register particulars as required by this Act. The goods were seized by the execution creditor of the vendor. Held that the claimant was not prevented by this section from succeeding in her claim to recover the goods, because, though she produced the assignment, she was not claiming "under or arising out of any contract made or entered into by or on behalf of such defaulter in relation to the business" within the meaning of this subsection (Daniel v. Rogers; Fantini, Claimant, (1918) 1 K. B. 149; 87 L. J. K. B. 259; on appeal, (1918) 87 L. J. K. B. 1149).

(a) The defaulter may apply to the court for relief against the disability imposed by this section, and the court, on being satisfied that the default was accidental, or due to inadvertence, or some other sufficient cause, or that on other grounds it is just and equitable to grant relief, may grant such relief either generally, or as respects any particular contracts on condition of the costs of the application being paid by the defaulter, unless the court otherwise orders, and on such other conditions (if any) as the court may impose, but such relief shall not be granted except on such service and such publication of notice of the application as the court may order, nor shall relief be given in respect of any contract if any party to the contract proves to the satisfaction of the court that, if this Act had been complied with, he would not have entered into the contract;

The High Court may grant relief after a writ has been issued. The disability is imposed on the defaulter only and not on his assignees (Hawkins v. Duche & Sons, (1921) 3 K. B. 226; 90 L. J. K. B. 913). Relief may even be granted at any stage of the action or after judgment (Shaen, In re, Silverman, Ex parte, (1927) 96 L. J. K. B. 282).

(b) Nothing herein contained shall prejudice the rights of any other parties as against the defaulter in respect of such contract as aforesaid;

(c) If any action or proceeding shall be commenced by any other party against the defaulter to enforce the rights of such party in respect of such contract, nothing herein contained shall preclude the defaulter from enforcing in that action or proceeding, by way of counterclaim set off or otherwise, such rights as he may have against that party in respect of such contract.

(2) In this section the expression "court" means the "High Court" or a judge thereof:

Provided that, without prejudice to the power of the High Court or a judge thereof to grant such relief as aforesaid, if any proceeding to enforce any contract is commenced by a defaulter in a county court, the county court may, as respects that contract, grant such relief as aforesaid.

A county court judge can grant this relief on any grounds just and equitable (Weller v. Denton, (1921) 3 K. B. 103; 90 L. J. K. B. 889).

REPRESENTATION OF THE PEOPLE ACT, 1918.

[8 GEO. 5, c. 64.]

By this statute the county courts are given jurisdiction on appeal from the registration officer (sect. 14).

An appeal lies from any decision of the registration officer on any claim or objection which has been considered by him under the Act, or the placing of, or refusal to place any mark against any name on the register (see Schedule I. (23)).

The county court may also be called upon to tax the expenses and accounts of the returning officer if called upon to do so by the Treasury (who now pay the expenses). See sect. 29. See Rules, Order 43, rr. 9—19, post, p. 2339.

Objection.—Any person whose name appears on the lists may object to the registration of any person whose name is included in the lists, by sending notice of objection in the prescribed form to the registration officer not later than the 15th day of February in the case of the spring register, and the 15th day of August in the case of the autumn register, and may object to the registration of any person whose name is included in the list of claimants by notice in prescribed form to the registration officer not later than the 7th day of March in the case of the spring register, and the 4th day of September in the case of the autumn register.

Subject to the Act, the procedure on appeals is to be regulated by rules of court. (These rules have been made, dated June 18th, 1918, and are set out in full, post, p. 2344. Amended by Rules dated February 3, 1919.)

No appeal is allowed where a claimant or objector has not availed himself of his opportunity, as provided in the First Schedule (see post), of being heard by the registration officer on the claim or objection, or as to the placing or refusing to place any such mark as aforesaid (sect. 14 (1)).

On any point of law there is an appeal from the county court to the Court of Appeal, the decision of which court is final (sect. 14 (2)).

A pending appeal does not prejudice the right of a person whose name is on the register to vote, and the vote once given is good whatever may be the result of the appeal (sect. 14 (3)).

The result of the appeal to the county court is sent to the registration officer in accordance with the rules, who must make the necessary alterations in the register (sect. 14 (4)).

On any appeal the registration officer is a party to the proceedings (sect. 14 (5)).

Provision is made for the appointment of assistant county court judges if the judge is unable owing to the number of the appeals under the Act to transact the business of his courts with proper despatch (sect. 14 (6)). The assistant judge may help the judge either in the hearing of the appeals or in the general business of the court (sect. 14 (6)).

A person desiring to appeal must give notice in the prescribed form (see post) to the registration officer, and to the opposite party, if any, when the decision is given, or within five days thereafter, specifying the grounds of appeal. The registration officer forwards any such notices to the county court, as provided by the rules (see post) together, in each case, with a statement of the material facts, which in his opinion have been proved, and of his decision upon the whole case, and on any point specified as a ground of appeal. He must also furnish the court with any other information required which he is able to furnish (Schedule I. (29)).

If the registration officer thinks that any notices of appeal are based on similar grounds, he must inform the county court of the fact, for the purpose of enabling the court (if it thinks fit) to consolidate the appeals, or to select a case as a test case (Schedule I. (30)).

Any claim or notice of objection to be sent under the rules in Schedule I. to the registration officer may be sent by post, addressed to him at his office; and any notice required to be sent by him under such rules to any person shall be sufficiently sent if sent by post to the address of that person as given by him for the purpose, or as appearing on the lists, or if there is no such address to his last known place of abode (Schedule I. (34)).

The court to which the appeal lies is the court in the district of which the "qualifying premises" are situate (County Court (Registration Appeals) Rules, 1918, r. 2 (1), post, p. 2344 (a)).

The "qualifying premises" are the premises in respect of which the person is entered on the electors list, or claims to be entitled to be registered; or, where such person is entered, or claims to be entitled in respect of residence in or occupation of premises in succession, the premises last resided in or occupied during the qualifying period (County Court Rules (Registration Appeals), 1918, r. 1 (2)).

The registration officer sends the appeal, within seven days of its receipt, to the registrar of the county court with the particulars required by r. 4 (1) (post).

The party appealing gives notice to the county court as well as to the registration officer and the other party (r. 6, post).

The registrar enters the appeal and the judge fixes time and place of hearing—which must be within twenty-eight days of its receipt, and five clear days' notice given to the parties—

Provided that an appeal relating to the autumn register may be fixed between 22nd September and 11th October inclusive, although it may be more than 28 days from the date on which the appeal was received by the registrar (r. 9 (1), (2), (3), post).

Rule 10 provides for the notices to be sent by the registrar to the parties interested. Copies of documents forwarded by the registration officer may be obtained at the expense of the party requiring them, and are made prima facie evidence. Other evidence may be given, but it must be oral, unless by consent, or where otherwise ordered by the judge. The judge is not to be confined to the strict rules of evidence in deciding whether a prima facie case has been established. He may send back the statement forwarded by the registration officer for further information (r. 11 (5), post).

Any party to the appeal may appear in person, or by solicitor or counsel, or by any other party authorised in writing (the judge may dispense with the written authorisation).

A general power to amend, to draw inferences of fact, and to exercise the general powers of the court is given to the judge by rr. 13, 14, and 15, post. The judge must make a note of any point of law raised as under sect. 120 of the County Courts Act, 1888, r. 16. Costs are in his discretion, but a respondent to an appeal, other than the registration officer, is not liable to pay, or entitled to receive costs, unless he appears before the court in support of the decision of the registration officer (r. 17, post).

Rule 19 provides the procedure where the hearing is to take place at another court.

Rule 20 provides the procedure where a number of appeals are consolidated, or one appeal is heard as a test case.

Rule 21 relates to service of notices and documents and proof of service of the same.

Rules 23 and 24 relate to appeals to the Court of Appeal, and the consolidation of such appeals.

Rule 25 places the approved deputy registration officer in the same position as the registration officer, for the purposes of appeals.

Non-compliance with the rules or forms is not to render the proceedings void, unless the judge so directs, but necessary amendments may be made.

The court fee on entering the appeal from the registration officer is 10s. (County Court Fees Order, 1925, Fee No. 47).

(a) If sent to the wrong court the judge may either transfer it or hear it at that court (r. 7 (2), post).

Appeals.

14.—(1) An appeal shall lie to the county court, as defined by rules of court, from any decision of the registration officer on any claim or objection which has been considered by him under this Act, or the placing of or refusal to place any mark against any name on the register, and rules of court shall be made for the purpose of determining the procedure on any such appeals and for applying and adapting thereto any enactments relating to county courts and the procedure therein :

Provided that an appeal shall not lie where a claimant or objector has not availed himself of his opportunity, as provided in the First Schedule to this Act, of being heard by the registration officer on the claim or objection, or as to the placing or refusing to place any such mark as aforesaid.

(2) An appeal shall lie on any point of law from any decision of the county court on any such appeal from the registration officer in accordance with rules of the Supreme Court to the Court of Appeal, but no appeal shall lie from the decision of the Court of Appeal.

(3) The right of voting of any person whose name is for the time being on the register shall not be prejudiced by any appeal pending under this section, and any vote given in pursuance of that right shall be as good as if no such appeal were pending, and shall not be affected by the subsequent decision of the appeal.

(4) Notice shall be sent to the registration officer in manner provided by rules of Court of the decision of the county court or of the Court of Appeal on any appeal under this section, and the registration officer shall make such alterations in the electors lists or register as may be required to give effect to the decision.

(5) On any appeal under this section the registration officer shall be deemed to be a party to the proceedings.

(6) If the Lord Chancellor is satisfied on the representation of the judge of any county court that the judge is unable, owing to the necessity of dealing with appeals under this Act, to transact the business of the court with proper despatch, the Lord Chancellor may appoint a barrister of at least seven years' standing to act as assistant judge for such time as the Lord Chancellor may direct, and subject to any conditions which he may impose.

Any assistant judge so appointed shall have all the powers and privileges and may perform any of the duties of the judge, whether under this Act or otherwise, to whom he has been appointed assistant.

An assistant judge shall be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament such remuneration and travelling allowances as may be allowed by the Treasury.

In the application of this provision to a county court district the whole of which is within the Duchy of Lancaster, the Chancellor of the Duchy shall be substituted for the Lord Chancellor.

29.—(1) The returning officer at a parliamentary election (other than a university election) shall be entitled to his reasonable charges, not exceeding the sums specified in the scale of maximum charges framed under this section, in respect of services and expenses of the several kinds mentioned in the said scale which have been properly rendered or incurred by him for the purposes of or in connexion with the election.

Payment of returning officers' expenses by Treasury.

(2) The amount of any such charges shall be charged on and paid out of the consolidated fund or the growing produce thereof (a) on an account being submitted to the Treasury in accordance with regu-

Section 29. lations made under this section; but the Treasury may, if they think fit, before payment apply to the court as defined by this section for the taxation of the account, and the court shall have jurisdiction to tax the account in such manner and at such time and place as the court thinks fit, and finally to determine the amount payable to the returning officer.

On the request of the returning officer for an advance on account of his charges, the Treasury may, if they think fit, and on such terms as they think fit, make such an advance.

(a) Words in italics substituted for former words.

(3) Where an application is made for the taxation of a returning officer's account, the returning officer may apply to the court to examine any claim made by any person against him in respect of matters charged in the account; and the court, after notice given to the claimant and after giving him an opportunity to be heard and to tender any evidence, may allow or disallow or reduce the claim objected to, with or without costs; and the determination of the court shall be final for all purposes and as against all persons.

(4) The Treasury shall prescribe a scale of maximum charges for the purposes of this section and may revise the scale as and when they think fit, and may also make regulations as to the time when and manner and form in which accounts are to be rendered to them for the purpose of the payment of the charges.

(5) The court for the purposes of this section shall be, as respects an election in the City of London, the Mayor's Court; and elsewhere in England and in Ireland the county court having jurisdiction at the place of nomination for the election to which the proceedings relate; and as regards Scotland "the court" shall mean the auditor of the Court of Session.

THE RIOT (DAMAGES) ACT, 1886.

By this Act, sect. 2, compensation out of the police rate is given for damage by riot to any house or building in a police district, or for property therein injured or stolen by persons riotously and tumultuously assembled together, but in fixing the amount regard shall be had to the conduct of the person applying for compensation; sub-s. 2 of sect. 2 allows an insurer to stand in the shoes of his assured. By sect. 3 claim for compensation is to be made to the police authority of the district in accordance with regulations published in the London Gazette (see post). By sect. 4, where a claim has been made in accordance with the said regulations, and the claimant is aggrieved by the refusal or failure of the police authority to fix compensation or by the amount of the compensation fixed he may bring an action against the police authority in respect of the matters mentioned in such claim.

The cause of action arises, not at the date of the damage done by the riot, but at the date when the claimant is aggrieved by the refusal or failure of the police to fix compensation or by the amount fixed; further, such an action is not an action for "penalties, damages, or sums of money given to the party grieved by any statute" within the meaning of the Civil Procedure Act, 1833, sect. 3, and consequently the time in the Act limited for bringing such an action is not applicable to a claim under this Act (Jarvis v. Surrey County Council, (1925) 1 K. B. 554; 94 L. J. K. B. 609).

Jurisdiction of the county court is by sect. 4, sub-s. 2, exclusive as to all claims not exceeding 100*l.* and the action shall be brought in the county court for the district in which any part of the police district is situate.

Practice.—No special practice has been indicated, so the claimant must proceed by plaint and summons (Order L. rr. 35, 36; see Part I. See Home Secretary's Regulations, post, p. 2. 67).

Costs.—Should the claimant fail to recover any compensation from the police authority or only recover an amount not exceeding that fixed by the police authority, he shall pay the costs of the police authority as between solicitor and client (sect. 4, sub-s. 1).

Appeal from the county court will be under sect. 120 of the County Courts Act, 1888.

As to liability of the police authority for damage done to vessels by persons riotously assembled, see sect. 515, Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (57 & 58 Vict. c. 60). The Public Authorities Protection Act does not apply to a claim under the Act (Kaufmann Bros. v. Liverpool Corporation, (1916) 85 L. J. K. B. 1127).

For the elements necessary to constitute a riot, see Field v. Receiver, Metropolitan Police, (1907) 2 K. B. 853; 76 L. J. K. B. 1015; Ford v. Receiver for the Metropolitan Police District, (1921) 2 K. B. 344; 90 L. J. K. B. 929; Cooper v. General Accident, Fire and Life Insurance Co., (1923) 92 L. J. K. B. P. C. 168. See also, as to what circumstances may constitute a "riot," the judgments delivered in the House of Lords in London and Lancashire Insurance Co. v. Bolands, Ltd., (1924) A. C. 836.

1. This Act may be cited as the Riot (Damages) Act, 1886.

2.—(1) Where a house, shop or building in any police district has been injured or destroyed, or the property therein has been injured, stolen or destroyed, by any persons riotously and tumultuously assembled together, such compensation as hereinafter mentioned shall be paid out of the police rate of such district to any person who has sustained loss by such injury, stealing, or destruction; but in fixing the amount of such compensation regard shall be had to the conduct of the said person, whether as respects the precautions taken by him or as respects his being a party or accessory to such riotous or tumultuous assembly, or as regards any provocation offered to the persons assembled or otherwise.

Section 2.

(2) Where any person having sustained such loss as aforesaid has received, by way of insurance or otherwise, any sum to recoup him, in whole or in part, for such loss, the compensation otherwise payable to him under this Act shall, if exceeding such sum, be reduced by the amount thereof, and in any other case shall not be paid to him, and the payer of such sum shall be entitled to compensation under this Act in respect of the sum so paid in like manner as if he had sustained the said loss, and any policy of insurance given by such payer shall continue in force as if he had made no such payment, and where such person was recouped as aforesaid otherwise than by payment of a sum, this enactment shall apply as if the value of such recoupment were a sum paid.

It is not necessary that the riotous persons should be civilians. The section applies though the damage was occasioned by riotous soldiers in a military camp and under military control (Pitchers v. Surrey County Council, (1923) 2 K. B. 57; 92 L. J. K. B. 415).

3.—(1) Claims for compensation under this Act shall be made to the police authority of the district in which the injury, stealing, or destruction took place, and such police authority shall inquire into the truth thereof, and shall, if satisfied, fix such compensation as appears to them just. (a) Mode of awarding compensation.

(2) A secretary of state may from time to time make, and when made, revoke and vary regulations respecting the time, manner, and conditions within, in, and under which claims for compensation under this Act are to be made, and all claims not made in accordance with such regulations may be excluded. . . .

(3) The said regulations shall be published in the London Gazette, and every police authority shall cause the same to be published in their police district, and copies thereof to be at all times sold to any applicant at a price not exceeding 6d. for each copy.

See Curtis & Son v. Mathews, (1919) 1 K. B. 425.

NOTE.—(a) By virtue of the Local Government Act, 1888, ss. 3 (1), (14) and 9, ss. (1), if damage by riot occurs within a police district being part of a county maintaining a separate police force the authority liable to pay the damages is the county council (Glamorgan Coal Company, Ltd v. Standing Joint Committee of the Quarter Sessions and County Council of Glamorgan, (1915) 1 K. B. 384; 84 L. J. K. B. 362).

4.—(1) Where a claim to compensation has been made in accordance with the regulations, and the claimant is aggrieved by the refusal or failure of the police authority to fix compensation upon such claim, or by the amount of compensation fixed, he may bring an action against the police authority to recover compensation in respect of all or any of the matters mentioned in such claim and to an amount not exceeding that mentioned therein, but if in such action he fails to recover any compensation or an amount exceeding that fixed by the police authority, he shall pay the costs of the police authority as between solicitor and client. Right of action to person aggrieved.

(2) If the amount of compensation for which such action is brought does not exceed 100*l.*, the action shall be brought in the county court for any district in which any part of the police district is situate.

6. This Act shall apply—

(a) (Repealed).

Application of Act to wreck of machinery.

Section 8.

- (b) in the case of the injury or destruction, by persons riotously and tumultuously assembled together, of any machinery, whether fixed or movable, prepared for or employed in any manufacture, or agriculture, or any branch thereof, or of any erection or fixture about or belonging to such machinery, or of any steam-engine or other engine for sinking, draining, or working any mine or quarry, or of any staith or erection used in conducting the business of any mine or quarry or of any bridge, waggon-way, or trunk for conveying minerals or other product from any mine or quarry; or in like manner as if such injury or destruction were an injury, stealing or destruction in respect of which compensation is payable under the foregoing provisions of this Act.

Some part of this section repealed by sect. 745 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (57 & 58 Vict. c. 60).

claimants of churches, public institutions, etc.

7. For the purposes of this Act—

- (a) where a church or chapel has been injured or destroyed, or any property therein has been injured, stolen or destroyed, the churchwardens or chapelwardens, if any, or if there are none, the persons having the management of such church or chapel, or the persons in whom the legal estate in the same is vested; and
- (b) where a school, hospital, public institution, or public building, has been injured or destroyed, or any property therein has been injured, stolen, or destroyed, the persons having the control of such school, hospital, institution, or building, or the persons in whom the legal estate in the same is vested;

shall be deemed to be the persons who have sustained loss from such injury, stealing, or destruction, and claims may be made by any one or more of such persons in relation both to the building and to the property therein, and payment to any such claimant shall discharge the liability of the police authority to pay compensation, but shall be without prejudice to the right of any person to recover the compensation from such payee.

3. All claims shall be made in the form appended to these regulations.

4. The claim shall specify the name and address of the claimant, the day and hour on which the injury, stealing, or destruction took place; and as to the premises whether they are a house, shop, or building, and where they are situated, and the nature of the claimant's interest therein.

RIVERS POLLUTION PREVENTION ACTS, 1876,

[39 & 40 VICT. C. 75; 56 & 57 VICT. C. 31; 61 & 62 VICT. C. 34.]

Jurisdiction to Restrain Offences.—The county court having jurisdiction in the place where any offence (see sects. 2 to 5 of the Act of 1876, and sect. 1 of 1893 Act) against these Acts is committed may, by summary order, require any person to abstain from the commission of such offence; and where such offence consists in default to perform a duty under the Act, may require him to perform such duty in manner in the order specified. The court may insert in any order such conditions as to time or mode of action as it may think just, and may suspend or rescind any order on such undertaking being given or condition being performed as it may think just; and generally may give such directions for carrying into effect any order as to the court seems fit. Previously to granting the order the court may, if it thinks fit, remit to skilled persons to report "on the best practicable and available means," and the nature and costs of the works and apparatus required, who must in all cases take into consideration the reasonableness of the expenses involved (sect. 10). The jurisdiction under these Acts is exclusive.

Notice of intention to proceed. Practice is by plaint and summons, and follows the ordinary practice of the court, but must not be commenced until two months after written notice of the intention to take proceedings (sect. 13 of Act of 1876), which notice cannot be given until the requisite consent of the Local Government Board to the taking of proceedings has been obtained (West Riding Rivers Board v. Robinson, (1907) 1 K. B. 431; 76 L. J. K. B. 426).

Discovery.]—The proceedings are not of a criminal or penal nature, so complainants are entitled to discovery (In re Derbyshire County Council v. Mayor, etc., of Derby, (1897) A. C. 550; 66 L. J. Q. B. 701).

In county court no special procedure is ordered, hence Order L. rr. 35, 36, apply; see Part I.

Effect of Order.]—The order is equivalent to a judgment, and estops the defendant from disputing the commission of the alleged offence or the jurisdiction of the court (River Ribble Committee v. Croston Urban District Council, (1897) 1 Q. B. 251; 66 L. J. Q. B. 384).

Appeal.]—Either party aggrieved by the decision of the court in point of law or on the merits, or in respect of the admission or rejection of any evidence, may appeal to the High Court. The appeal must be by motion in accordance with the ordinary practice (Kirkheaton Loc. Bd. v. Ainley (C. A.), (1892) 2 Q. B. 274; 61 L. J. Q. B. 812), but the appeal court may draw inferences from the facts (sect. 11, post, p. 2380; see sect. 9 for provisions as to Lee Conservancy Board).

Costs.]—The judge may certify that the proceedings involve novel or difficult points of law, or that the question was to some class or body of persons of general or public interest (sect. 119, County Courts Act. 1888). See as to costs generally Order LIII., and Part II., "Costs and Court Fees."

Removal of Plaintiff into High Court.]—Any plaintiff entered in a county court under the Act may be removed into the High Court by leave of the judge of the High Court, if it appears to such judge desirable in the interests of justice that such case should be tried in the first instance in the High Court, and not in a county court, and on such terms as to security for and payment of costs, and such other terms (if any), as such judge may think fit (sect. 11, post, p. 2380).

39 & 40 VICT. C. 75. AUG. 15, 1876.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make further provision for the prevention of the pollution of rivers, and in particular to prevent the establishment of new sources of pollution :

1. This Act may be cited for all purposes as the Rivers Pollution Prevention Act, 1876. Short title of Act.

PART I.

LAW AS TO SOLID MATTERS.

2. Every person who puts or causes to be put or to fall or Prohibition knowingly permits to be put or to fall or to be carried into any as to putting stream, so as either singly or in combination with other similar solid matters acts of the same or any other person to interfere with its due flow, into streams, or to pollute its waters, the solid refuse of any manufactory, manufacturing process or quarry, or any rubbish or cinders, or any other waste or any putrid solid matter, shall be deemed to have committed an offence against this Act.

In proving interference with the due flow of any stream, or in proving the pollution of any stream, evidence may be given of repeated acts which together cause such interference or pollution, Section 2. although each act taken by itself may not be sufficient for that purpose.

“Solid matter” has received judicial interpretation (River Ribble v. Halliwell, (1899) 2 Q. B. 385; 68 L. J. Q. B. 984).

PART II.

LAW AS TO SEWAGE POLLUTIONS.

Prohibition as to drainage into streams of sewage. 3. Every person who causes to fall or flow or knowingly permits to fall or flow or to be carried into any stream any solid or liquid sewage matter, shall (subject in this Act mentioned) be deemed to have committed an offence against this Act.

Where any sewage matter falls or flows or is carried into any stream along a channel used, constructed, or in process of construction at the date of the passing of this Act for the purpose of conveying such sewage matter, the person causing or knowingly permitting the sewage matter so to fall or flow or to be carried shall not be deemed to have committed an offence against this Act if he shows to the satisfaction of the court having cognisance of the case that he is using the best practicable and available means to render harmless the sewage matter so falling or flowing or carried into the stream.

Where the Local Government Board are satisfied after local inquiry that further time ought to be granted to any sanitary authority, which at the date of the passing of this Act is discharging sewage matter into any stream, or permitting it to be so discharged, by any such channel as aforesaid, for the purpose of enabling such authority to adopt the best practicable and available means for rendering harmless such sewage matter, the Local Government Board may by order declare that this section shall not, so far as regards the discharge of sewage matter by such channel, be in operation until the expiration of a period to be limited in the order.

Any order made under this section may be from time to time renewed by the Local Government Board, subject to such conditions, if any, as they may see fit.

A person other than a sanitary authority shall not be guilty of an offence under this section in respect of the passing of sewage matter into a stream along a drain communicating with any sewer belonging to or under the control of any sanitary authority, provided he has the sanction of the sanitary authority for so doing.

See Rivers Pollution Act, 1893, post, p. 2382, where this section is explained.

A defendant cannot rely upon an easement or prescriptive right to pollute a stream contrary to the provisions of the Act (Hulley v. Silversprings Bleaching Co., (1922) 2 Ch. 268; 91 L. J. Ch. 207).

PART III.

LAW AS TO MANUFACTURING AND MINING POLLUTIONS.

Prohibition as to drainage into streams from many factories. 4. Every person who causes to fall or flow or knowingly permits to fall or flow or to be carried into any stream any poisonous, noxious, or polluting liquid proceeding from any factory or manufacturing process shall (subject as in this Act mentioned) be deemed to have committed an offence against this Act.

Where any such poisonous, noxious, or polluting liquid as aforesaid falls or flows or is carried into any stream along a channel caused, constructed, or in process of construction at the date of the passing of this Act, or any new channel constructed in substitution thereof, and having its outfall at the same spot, for the purpose of conveying such liquid, the person causing or knowingly permitting the poisonous, noxious, or polluting liquid so to fall or flow or to be carried shall not be deemed to have committed an offence against this Act if he shows to the satisfaction of the court having cognisance of the case that he is using the best practicable and reasonably available means to render harmless the poisonous, noxious, or polluting liquid so falling or flowing or carried into the stream.

5 Every person who causes to fall or flow or knowingly permits to fall or flow or to be carried into any stream any solid matter as to drainage from any mine in such quantities as to prejudicially interfere into streams with its due flow, or any poisonous, noxious, or polluting solid from mines. or liquid matter proceeding from any mine, other than water in the same condition as that in which it has been drained or raised from such mine, shall be deemed to have committed an offence against this Act, unless in the case of poisonous, noxious, or polluting matter he shows to the satisfaction of the court having cognisance of the case that he is using the best practicable and reasonably available means to render harmless the poisonous, noxious, or polluting matter so falling or flowing or carried into the stream

6. Unless and until Parliament otherwise provides the following enactments shall take effect, proceedings shall not be taken against any person under this part of this Act save by a sanitary authority, (a) nor shall any such proceedings be taken without the consent of the Local Government Board: Provided always, that if the sanitary authority, on the application of any person interested alleging an offence to have been committed, shall refuse to take proceedings or apply for the consent by this section provided, the person so interested may apply to the Local Government Board, and if that board on inquiry is of opinion that the sanitary authority should take proceedings, they may direct the sanitary authority accordingly, who shall thereupon commence proceedings.

The said board in giving or withholding their consent shall have regard to the industrial interests involved in the case and to the circumstances and requirements of the locality.

Any person within such district as aforesaid, against whom proceedings are proposed to be taken under this part of this Act, shall, notwithstanding any consent of the Local Government Board, be at liberty to object before the sanitary authority to such proceedings being taken, and such authority shall, if required in writing by such person, afford him an opportunity of being heard against such proceedings being taken, so far as the same relate to his works or manufacturing processes. The sanitary authority shall thereupon allow such person to be heard by himself, agents, and witnesses, and after inquiry such authority shall determine, having regard to all the considerations to which the Local Government Board are by this section directed to have regard, whether such proceedings as aforesaid shall or shall not be taken; and where any such sanitary authority has taken proceedings under this Act, it shall not be competent to other sanitary authorities to take proceedings under this Act till the party against whom such proceedings are intended shall have failed in reasonable time to carry out the order of any competent court under this Act.

PART IV.

ADMINISTRATION OF LAW.

Sanitary authority to afford facilities for factories draining into sewers.

7. Every sanitary or other local authority having sewers under their control shall give facilities for enabling manufacturers within their district to carry the liquids proceeding from their factories or manufacturing processes into such sewers:

Provided that this section shall not extend to compel any sanitary or other local authority to admit into their sewers any liquid which would prejudicially affect such sewers or the disposal by sale, application to land, or otherwise, of the sewage matter conveyed along such sewers, or which would from its temperature or otherwise be injurious in a sanitary point of view:

Provided also, that no sanitary authority shall be required to give such facilities as aforesaid where the sewers of such authority are only sufficient for the requirements of their district, nor where such facilities would interfere with any order of any court of competent jurisdiction respecting the sewage of such authority.

Where these Acts provide an appropriate remedy, the High Court will not interfere by a mandamus (Peebles v. Oswaldtwistle Urban District Council, (1897) 1 Q. B. 384; 66 L. J. Q. B. 106). As to acquired rights, see Eastwood v. Honley District Council, (1900) 1 Ch. 781; 69 L. J. Ch. 470.

See also Liverpool Corporation v. H. Coghill & Son, Ltd., (1918) 1 Ch. 307.

Power of sanitary authority to enforce Act.

8. Every sanitary authority shall, subject to the restrictions in this Act contained, have power to enforce the provisions of this Act in relation to any stream being within or passing through or by any part of their district, and for that purpose to institute proceedings in respect of any offence against this Act which causes interference with the due flow within their district of any such stream, or the pollution within their district, of any such stream, against any other sanitary authority or person, whether such offence is committed within or without the district of the first-named sanitary authority.

Section 8

Any expenses incurred by a sanitary authority in the execution of this Act shall be payable as if they were expenses properly incurred by that authority in the execution of the Public Health Act, 1875.

Proceedings may also, subject to the restrictions in this Act contained, be instituted in respect of any offence against this Act by any person aggrieved by the commission of such offence.

9. The conservancy board constituted under the Lee Conservancy Act, 1868, shall, within the area of their jurisdiction, have, to the exclusion of any other authority, the powers for enforcing the provisions of this Act which sanitary authorities have under this Act. Power of Lee Conservancy Board to enforce Act.

The said conservancy board may also enforce the provisions of the Lee Conservancy Act, 1868, under the head or division "Protection of Water," by application to the county court having jurisdiction in the place in which any offence is committed against those provisions, and such court may by summary order require any person to abstain from the commission of any such offence, and the provisions of this Act with respect to summary orders of county courts and appeal therefrom shall apply accordingly.

LEGAL PROCEEDINGS. SAVING CLAUSES. DEFINITIONS.

(1) Legal Proceedings.

10. The county court having jurisdiction in the place where any offence against this Act is committed may by summary order require any person to abstain from the commission of such offence, and where such offence consists in default to perform a duty under this Act may require him to perform such duty in manner in the said order specified; the court may insert in any order such conditions as to time or mode of action as it may think just, and may suspend or rescind any order on such undertaking being given or condition being performed as it may think just, and generally may give such directions for carrying into effect any order as to the court seems meet. Previous to granting such order the court may, if it think fit, remit to skilled parties to report on the "best practicable and available means" and the nature and cost of the works and apparatus required, who shall in all cases take into consideration the reasonableness of the expense involved in their report. Offences to be restrained by summary order of county court.

Any person making default in complying with any requirement of an order of a county court made in pursuance of this section shall pay to the person complaining, or such other person as the court may direct, such sum, not exceeding fifty pounds a day for every day during which he is in default, as the court may order; and such penalty shall be enforced in the same manner as any debt adjudged to be due by the court; moreover, if any person so in default persists in disobeying any requirement of any such order for a period of not less than a month or such other period less than a month as may be prescribed by such order, the court may in addition to any penalty it may impose appoint any person or persons to carry into effect such order, and all expenses incurred by any such person or persons to such amount as may be allowed by the county court shall be deemed to be a debt due from the person in default to the person or persons executing such order, and may be recovered accordingly in the county court.

See Staffordshire County Council v. Seisdon Rural District Council, (1907) 96 L. T. 328, as to test to be applied by county court judge when exercising his discretion.

Appeal from county court, and removal of case into High Court of Justice.

11. If either party in any proceedings before the county court under this Act feels aggrieved by the decision of the court in point of law or on the merits, or in respect of the admission or rejection of any evidence, he may appeal from that decision to the High Court of Justice.

[The appeal shall be in the form of a special case to be agreed upon by both parties or their attorneys, and, if they cannot agree, to be settled by the judge of the county court upon the application of the parties or their attorneys.]

Now obsolete. The appeal must be by motion (Kirkheaton Local Board v. Ainley (C. A.), (1892) 2 Q. B. 274; 61 L. J. Q. B. 812).

The Court of Appeal may draw any inferences from the facts stated in the case that a jury might draw from facts stated by witnesses.

Subject to the provisions of this section, all the enactments, rules, and orders relating to proceedings in actions in county courts, and to enforcing judgments in county courts and appeals from decisions of the county court judges, and to the conditions of such appeals, and to the power of the superior courts on such appeals, shall apply to all proceedings under this Act, and to an appeal from such action, in the same manner as if such action and appeal related to a matter within the ordinary jurisdiction of the court.

Any plaint entered in a county court under this Act may be removed into the High Court of Justice by leave of any judge to the said High Court, if it appears to such judge desirable in the interests of justice that such case should be tried in the first instance in the High Court of Justice and not in a county court, and on such terms as to security for and payment of costs, and such other terms (if any) as such judge may think fit.

Certificate of inspector of Local Government Board as to best practicable means.

12. A certificate granted by an inspector of proper qualifications appointed for the purposes of this Act by the Local Government Board to the effect that the means used for rendering harmless any sewage matter or poisonous, noxious, or polluting solid or liquid matter falling or flowing or carried into any stream, are the best or only practicable and available means under the circumstances of the particular case, shall in all courts and in all proceedings under this Act be conclusive evidence of the fact; such certificate shall continue in force for a period to be named therein, not exceeding two years, and at the expiration of that period may be renewed for the like or any less period.

All expenses incurred in or about obtaining a certificate under this section shall be paid by the applicant for the same.

Any person aggrieved by the grant or withholding of a certificate under this section may appeal to the Local Government Board against the decision of the inspector; and the board may either confirm, reverse, or modify his decision, and may make such order as to the party or parties by whom the costs of the appeal are to be borne as to the said board may appear just. Section 12.

13. . . . Nor shall proceedings in any case be taken under this Act for any offence against this Act until the expiration of two months after written notice of the intention to take such proceedings has been given to the offender, nor shall proceedings under this Act be taken for any offence against this Act while other proceedings in relation to such offence are pending. Restriction on proceedings for offences.

The first part of this section was repealed by the S.L.R. Act, 1883.

This section does not apply to an order to enforce penalties for non-compliance with an existing order which had been made against defendants (Yorkshire (West Riding) Rivers Board v. Heckmondwike Urban District Council (1914) W. N. 147).

Sects. 14 and 15 have no relation to county courts.

(2) Saving Clauses.

16. The powers given by this Act shall not be deemed to prejudice or affect any other rights or powers now existing or vested in any person or persons by Act of Parliament, law, or custom, and such other rights or powers may be exercised in the same manner as if this Act had not passed; and nothing in this Act shall legalise any act or default which would but for this Act be deemed to be a nuisance or otherwise contrary to law: Provided nevertheless, that in any proceedings for enforcing against any person such rights or powers the court before which such proceedings are pending shall take into consideration any certificate granted to such person under this Act. Powers of Act cumulative.

17. This Act shall not apply to affect the lawful exercise of any rights of impounding or diverting water. Saving of rights of impounding and diverting water.

See River Ribble Joint Committee v. Halliwell, (1899) 1 Q. B. 27; 68 L. J. Q. B. 20.

18. Nothing in or done under this Act shall extend to interfere with, take away, abridge, or prejudicially affect any right, power, authority, jurisdiction, or privilege given by The Thames Conservancy Acts, 1857 and 1864, or by The Thames Navigation Act, 1866, or by the Lee Conservancy Act, 1868, or by any Act or Acts extending or amending the said Acts or either of them, or affect any outfall or other works of the Metropolitan Board of Works (although beyond the metropolis) executed under the Metropolitan Management Act, 1855, and the Acts amending or extending the same, or take away, abridge, or prejudicially affect any right, power, authority, jurisdiction, or privilege of the Metropolitan Board of Works. Saving of certain conservancy Acts.

19. Where any local authority or any urban or rural sanitary authority has been empowered or required by any Act of Parliament to carry any sewage into the sea or any tidal waters, nothing done by such authority in pursuance of such enactment shall be deemed to be an offence against this Act. Saving of works of certain local authorities.

THE SALE OF EXHAUSTED PARISH LANDS ACT, 1876.

[39 & 40 VICT. C. 62.]

Provision is by this Act made for the sale and disposal by order of the Local Government Board of parish lands such as exhausted gravel pits. Before issuing their order for sale the Local Government Board shall hear and decide upon every objection and claim made in writing by any one claiming an interest in the land.

Jurisdiction is given under sect. 3, where there is any disputed claim, or where the person entitled to any interest therein is under legal disability, if the amount of the value in question does not exceed 50*l.*, for the county court to settle such dispute or make an order as to the proper disposal of such amount where there is no dispute; for matters in excess of 50*l.* parties must go to the High Court.

Practice is governed by Order L. r. 10 (post, p. 2385). The proceedings are to be, in case of a dispute, by action commenced by plaint and summons in the ordinary way against the person or authority in whom the land is vested, or in whose hands the purchase-money may be. No provision is made as to what county court has jurisdiction, hence sect. 74 of the County Courts Act of 1888, which regulates the court by the residence of the defendant, or the place where the land is situate, should be followed. In the case of a person under legal disability, by petition, asking for directions of the court as to disposal of purchase-money. The petition should be served on the person or authority holding the money.

Appeal from the county court will be as provided by sect. 120 of the County Courts Act, 1888. See Part I.

COUNTY COURT RULE. ORDER L. RULE 10.

Rule 10.

10. Where the Local Government Board directs that proceedings may be taken under sect. 3 of the Sale of Exhausted Parish Lands Act, 1876, such proceedings may be taken as follows :—

Proceedings
under 39 &
40 Vict. c. 62,
s. 3.

- (a) If there are disputed claims to any interest in any land or the purchase money of any land, any person claiming any such interest may take proceedings by action commenced by plaint and summons in the ordinary way against the other persons claiming any interest, and the person or authority in whom such land is vested, or in whose hands such purchase money may be. Particulars of demand shall be filed in such action, stating concisely the relief or order which the plaintiff claims. The person or authority in whose hands such purchase money may be may at any time after service of the summons pay such purchase money into court, and thereupon further proceedings against such person or authority shall be stayed. The judge at the trial of the action shall decide upon the rights of the several persons claiming any interest in the land or purchase money, and shall make such order for the purpose of giving effect to such rights, and as to costs, as may be just.
- (b) If any person entitled to any interest in the purchase money of any land, where there is no dispute, is under legal disability, then

- (ii.) a petition may be filed on behalf of the person under disability, asking for the directions of the court as to disposal of such purchase money. If such petition is filed, it shall be served on the person or authority in whose hands such purchase money may be, and the same procedure shall be followed and costs allowed as on any other petition to the court. The person or authority served with such petition may, at any time after service, pay the purchase money into court, and thereupon further proceedings against such person or authority will be stayed.

SALE OF GOODS ACT, 1893.

[56 & 57 VICT. c. 71. 20TH FEBRUARY, 1894.]

NOTE.—Inserted for general convenience of county court practitioners, though the statute is a general one, and the county court has no special jurisdiction in relation to it.

PART I.

FORMATION OF THE CONTRACT.

Contract of Sale.

Sale and agreement to sell.

1.—(1) A contract of sale of goods is a contract whereby the seller transfers or agrees to transfer the property in goods to the buyer for a money consideration, called the price. There may be a contract of sale between one part owner and another.

(2) A contract of sale may be absolute or conditional.

(3) Where under a contract of sale the property in the goods is transferred from the seller to the buyer the contract is called a sale; but where the transfer of the property in the goods is to take place at a future time or subject to some condition thereafter to be fulfilled the contract is called an agreement to sell.

(4) An agreement to sell becomes a sale when the time elapses or the conditions are fulfilled subject to which the property in the goods is to be transferred.

Hiring Agreements.—As to goods obtained under agreement to purchase—"hire purchase agreements"—and when the person in possession of such goods under such an agreement, can or cannot give a title to the same, see Lee v. Butler, (1893) 2 Q. B. 318; McEntire v. Crossley Bros., (1895) A. C. 457; Helby v. Matthews, (1895) A. C. 471; Belsize Motor Supply Co. v. Cox, (1914) 1 K. B. 244; Whiteley, Ltd. v. Hilt, (1918) 2 K. B. 808; 87 L. J. K. B. 1058. See also Lewis v. Thomas, (1919) 1 K. B. 319.

buy and sell.

2. Capacity to buy and sell is regulated by the general law concerning capacity to contract, and to transfer and acquire property.

Provided that where necessities are sold and delivered to an infant, or minor, or to a person who by reason of mental incapacity or drunkenness is incompetent to contract, he must pay a reasonable price therefor.

Necessaries in this section mean goods suitable to the condition in life of such infant or minor or other person, and to his actual requirements at the time of the sale and delivery.

"Necessaries."—Ryder v. Wombwell, (1868) 4 Ex. 32; Ex. Ch. 38; Nash v. Inman, (1908) 2 K. B. 1; Re Rhodes, (1890) 44 C. D. 94.

Formalities of the Contract.

Contract of sale, how made.

3. Subject to the provisions of this Act and of any statute in that behalf, a contract of sale may be made in writing (either with without seal), or by word of mouth, or partly in writing and partly by word of mouth, or may be implied from the conduct of the parties.

Provided that nothing in this section shall affect the law relating to corporations.

“Implied.”]—Brogden v. Metropolitan Rail. Co., (1877) 2 A. C. 666.

4.—(1) A contract for the sale of any goods of the value of ten pounds or upwards shall not be enforceable by action unless the buyer shall accept part of the goods so sold, and actually receive the same, or give something in earnest to bind the contract, or in part payment (a), or unless some note or memorandum in writing of the contract be made and signed by the party to be charged or his agent in that behalf.

Contract of sale for ten pounds and upwards.

NOTE.—(a) “Part payment.” See Parker v. Crisp & Co., (1919) 1 K. B. 31; 88 L. J. K. B. 775. Thirkell v. Cambi, (1919) 2 K. B. 590; (1920) 89 L. J. K. B. 1; Norton v. Davison, (1899) 1 Q. B. 401; 68 L. J. Q. B. 265. Cohen v. Roche, (1926) 1 K. B. 169; 95 L. J. K. B. 945; Farr Smith & Co. v. Messers, (1928) 1 K. B. 397; 97 L. J. K. B. 126.

(2) The provisions of this section apply to every such contract, notwithstanding that the goods may be intended to be delivered at some future time, or may not at the time of such contract be actually made, procured, or provided, or fit or ready for delivery, or some act may be requisite for the making or completing thereof or rendering the same fit for delivery.

(3) There is an acceptance of goods within the meaning of this section when the buyer does any act in relation to the goods which recognises a pre-existing contract of sale whether there be an acceptance in performance of the contract or not.

(4) The provisions of this section do not apply to Scotland.

As to this section, which was formerly in substance sect. 17 (really sect. 16) of the Statute of Frauds (29 Chas. II., c. 3), see Chalmers, “Sale of Goods Act, 1893,” 7th edit., pp. 18—25.

An agreement under this section is merely not enforceable by law if not in writing. It is not invalid for all purposes, and the law as declared with reference to the corresponding section (sect. 17 of the Statute of Frauds) is altered to this extent. Though such a contract when in writing cannot be varied by parol, yet parol evidence is admissible to prove the abandonment or rescission of the same (see Morris v. Barron & Co., (1918) A. C. 1; 87 L. J. K. B. 145). The defence of absence of writing must be pleaded (see Roe v. R. A. Naylor, Ltd., (1918) 87 L. J. K. B. 958).

If where the contract is in writing the time of delivery of the goods is extended by verbal arrangement between the parties, this amounts to “forbearance” only. Such an arrangement is not a verbal variation of the written contract, and the defendant when sued for non-acceptance of the goods cannot rely upon the fact that the agreement for forbearance was not in writing (Levey & Co. v. Goldberg, (1922) 1 K. B. 688; 91 L. J. K. B. 551). A ship may be goods within this section (Behnke v. Bede Shipping Co., (1927) 1 K. B. 649; 96 L. J. K. B. 325).

Section 5.

Subject matter of Contract.

Existing or future goods.

5.—(1) The goods which form the subject of a contract of sale may be either existing goods, owned or possessed by the seller, or goods to be manufactured or acquired by the seller after the making of the contract of sale, in this Act called "future goods."

(2) There may be a contract for the sale of goods, the acquisition of which by the seller depends upon a contingency which may or may not happen.

"Contingency."—Hale v. Rawson, (1858) 27 L. J. C. P. 189; Barnett v. Javeri & Co., (1916) 85 L. J. K. B. 1703.

(3) Where by a contract of sale the seller purports to effect a present sale of future goods, the contract operates as an agreement to sell the goods.

"Future Goods."—See Watts v. Friend, (1830) 10 B. & C. 446; Ajello v. Worsley, (1898) 1 Ch. 274; Holroyd v. Marshall, (1862) 10 H. L. C. 191; Collyer v. Isaacs, (1881) 50 L. J. Ch. 707.

Goods which have perished.

6. Where there is a contract for the sale of specific goods, and the goods without the knowledge of the seller have perished at the time when the contract is made, the contract is void.

See Couturier v. Hastie, (1856) 5 H. L. C. 673; 25 L. J. Ex. 253; Smith v. Myers, (1870) L. R. 5 Q. B. 429; L. R. 7 Q. B. 139.

Goods perishing before sale but after agreement
to sell.

7. Where there is an agreement to sell specific goods, and subsequently the goods, without any fault on the part of the seller or buyer, perish before the risk passes to the buyer, the agreement is thereby avoided.

See Howell v. Coupland, (1874) L. R. 9 Q. B. 462; (1876) 1 Q. B. D. 258; Elphick v. Barnes, (1880) 5 C. P. D. 821.

The Price.

Ascertain-

8.—(1) The price in a contract of sale may be fixed by the contract, or may be left to be fixed in manner thereby agreed, or may be determined by the course of dealing between the parties.

(2) Where the price is not determined in accordance with the foregoing provisions the buyer must pay a reasonable price. What is a reasonable price is a question of fact dependent on the circumstances of each particular case.

"Reasonable Price."—Acebal v. Levy, (1834) 10 Bing. 376; Valpy v. Gibson, (1847) 4 C. B. 837.

Deposit.—Money paid as a deposit in the absence of an agreement is forfeited if the sale goes off through the buyer's fault (Soper v. Arnold, (1889) 14 A. C. 435).

Agreement to sell at valuation.

9.—(1) Where there is an agreement to sell goods on the terms that the price is to be fixed by the valuation of a third party, and such third party cannot or does not make such valuation, the agreement is avoided; provided that if the goods or any part thereof have been delivered to and appropriated by the buyer he must pay a reasonable price therefor. Section 9.

(2) Where such third party is prevented from making the valuation by the fault of the seller or buyer, the party not in fault may maintain an action for damages against the party in fault.

See Vickers v. Vickers, (1867) L. R. 4 Eq. 529; Clarke v. Westrope, (1856) L. J. C. P. 287.

Conditions and Warranties.

10.—(1) Unless a different intention appears from the terms of the contract, stipulations as to time of payment are not deemed to be of the essence of a contract of sale. Whether any other stipulation as to time is of the essence of the contract or not depends on the terms of the contract. Stipulations as to time.

(2) In a contract of sale "month" means primâ facie calendar month.

"Essence of Contract."—See Martindale v. Smith, (1841) 1 Q. B. 389; Mersey Steel and Iron Co. v. Naylor, (1884) 9 A. C. 434; Hartley v. Hymans, (1920) 3 K. B. 475; (1921) 90 L. J. K. B. 14.

11.—(1) In England or Ireland—

(a) Where a contract of sale is subject to any condition to be fulfilled by the seller, the buyer may waive the condition, or may elect to treat the breach of such condition as a breach of warranty, and not as a ground for treating the contract as repudiated (a). When condition to be treated as warranty.

(b) Whether a stipulation in a contract of sale is a condition, the breach of which may give rise to a right to treat the contract as repudiated, or a warranty, the breach of which may give rise to a claim for damages but not to a right to reject the goods and treat the contract as repudiated, depends in each case on the construction of the contract. A stipulation may be a condition, though called a warranty in the contract (b):

(c) Where a contract of sale is not severable, and the buyer has accepted the goods, or part thereof, or where the contract is for specific goods, the property in which has passed to the buyer, the breach of any condition to be fulfilled by the seller can only be treated as a breach of warranty, and not as a ground for rejecting the goods and treating the contract as repudiated (c), unless there be a term of the contract, express or implied, to that effect.

(2) In Scotland, failure by the seller to perform any material part of a contract of sale is a breach of contract, which entitles the buyer either within a reasonable time after delivery to reject the goods and treat the contract as repudiated, or to retain the goods

Section 11. and treat the failure to perform such material part as a breach which may give rise to a claim for compensation or damages.

(3) Nothing in this section shall affect the case of any condition or warranty, fulfilment of which is excused by law by reason of impossibility or otherwise.

NOTE.—(a) See notes to Pasley v. Freeman, Smith's L. C., 12th edit., 87. For careful examination by the House of Lords as to what constitutes a warranty, see Heilbut, Symons & Co. v. Buckleton, (1913) 82 L. J. K. B. 245.

NOTE.—(b) "Depends in each case on the construction of the contract."—See Walter v. Pratt and Hughes, (1910) 2 K. B. 1003.

NOTE.—(c) See Heilbutt v. Hickson, (1872) L. R. 7 C. P. 450; Wallis, Son & Wells v. Pratt & Haynes, (1911) 80 L. J. K. B. 1058; (1911) A. C. 390; Benabu v. The Produce Brokers Co., (1921) 37 T. L. R. 609; Sanderson v. Armour, (1922) 91 L. J. P. C. 167.

Implied
undertaking
as to title, &c.

12. In a contract of sale, unless the circumstances of the contract are such as to show a different intention, there is—

- (1) An implied condition on the part of the seller that in the case of a sale he has a right to sell the goods, and that in the case of an agreement to sell he will have a right to sell the goods at the time when the property is to pass :
- (2) An implied warranty that the buyer shall have and enjoy quiet possession of the goods :
- (3) An implied warranty that the goods shall be free from any charge or encumbrance in favour of any third party, not declared or known to the buyer before or at the time when the contract is made.

See Eichholz v. Bannister, (1864) 34 L. J. C. P. 105.

There is a breach of this section where, without the knowledge either of the buyer or seller the goods sold were labelled in such a way that they could not be resold by the buyer without infringing a trade mark belonging to a third party (Niblett, Ltd. v. Confectioners' Materials Co., (1921) 3 K. B. 387; 90 L. J. K. B. 984; Rowland v. Divall, (1923) 2 K. B. 500; 92 L. J. K. B. 1041).

description.

13. Where there is a contract for the sale of goods by description, there is an implied condition that the goods shall correspond with the description ; and if the sale be by sample, as well as by description, it is not sufficient that the bulk of the goods corresponds with the sample if the goods do not also correspond with the description (a).

NOTE.—(a) "Description."—See Randall v. Newson, (1877) 2 Q. B. D. 109; Bowes v. Shand, (1877) 2 A. C. 455; Varley v. Whipp, (1900) 1 Q. B. 513; Re North Western Rubber Co., (1908) 2 K. B. 907.

In buying from a firm of good reputation a customer is justified in trusting to the label as to quantity in a package, and is not guilty of contributory negligence in not discovering that a mistake has been made in this respect (British South African Co. v. Lennon, Ltd., (1916) 85 L. J. P. C. 111; Moore v. Landauer, (1921) 2 K. B. 519; 90 L. J. K. B. 731).

Implied conditions as to quality or fitness.

14. Subject to the provisions of this Act and of any statute in that behalf (a), there is no implied warranty or condition as to the quality or fitness for any particular purpose of goods supplied under a contract of sale, except as follows (b) :— Section 14.

(1) Where the buyer, expressly or by implication, makes known to the seller the particular purpose for which the goods are required, so as to show that the buyer relies on the seller's skill or judgment, and the goods are of a description which it is in the course of the seller's business to supply (whether he be the manufacturer or not), there is an implied condition that the goods shall be reasonably fit for such purpose (c), provided that in the case of a contract for the sale of a specified article under its patent or other trade name, there is no implied condition as to its fitness for any particular purpose (d) :

(2) Where goods are bought by description from a seller who deals in goods of that description (whether he be the manufacturer or not), there is an implied condition that the goods shall be of merchantable quality (e) ; provided that if the buyer has examined the goods, there shall be no implied condition as regards defects which such examination ought to have revealed :

NOTE.—As to what is a sufficient "examination" to satisfy this sub-section, see Thornett & Fehr v. Beers & Son, (1919) 1 K. B. 486 ; 88 L. J. K. B. 684.

(3) An implied warranty or condition as to quality or fitness for a particular purpose may be annexed by the usage of trade.

(4) An express warranty or condition does not negative a warranty or condition implied by this Act unless inconsistent therewith.

See Niblett, Ltd. v. Confectioners' Materials Co., ante, p. 2390 ; and compare Umner, Permain & Co. v. Webb & Co., (1922) 1 K. B. 55 ; 91 L. J. K. B. 28.

NOTE.—(e) See Jones v. Just (supra) ; Jones v. Padgett, (1890) 24 B. D. 650.

A defence, to an action for the price of goods, of breach of warranty, is not a statutory defence, and need not be specially pleaded (Bright v. Rogers, 917) 1 K. B. 917 ; 86 L. J. K. B. 804).

Sale by Sample.

15.—(1) A contract of sale is a contract for sale by sample where there is a term in the contract, express or implied, to that effect. sample.

(2) In the case of a contract for sale by sample—

Section 15.

- (a) There is an implied condition that the bulk shall correspond with the sample in quality (a) :
- (b) There is an implied condition that the buyer shall have a reasonable opportunity of comparing the bulk with the sample (b) :
- (c) There is an implied condition that the goods shall be free from any defect, rendering them unmerchantable, which would not be apparent on reasonable examination of the sample.

NOTE.—(a) “Correspond with the Sample in Quality.”—See Walkers v. Shaw, (1904) 2 K. B. 152.

NOTE.—(b) See Lorymer v. Smith, (1822) 1 B. & C. 1; Heyworth v. Hutchinson, (1867) 2 Q. B. D. 447.

PART II.

EFFECTS OF THE CONTRACT.

Transfer of Property as between Seller and Buyer.

Goods must be ascertained.

16. Where there is a contract for the sale of unascertained goods no property in the goods is transferred to the buyer unless and until the goods are ascertained.

See Dixon v. Yates, (1833) 5 B. & Ad. 340; Campbell v. Mersey Docks, (1863) 14 C. B. N. S. 412; Jenner v. Smith, (1869) L. R. 4 C. P. 276; Badische Anilin Fabrik v. Hickson, (1906) A. C. 419.

Property passes when intended to pass.

- 17.—(1) Where there is a contract for the sale of specific or ascertained goods the property in them is transferred to the buyer at such time as the parties to the contract intend it to be transferred.

(2) For the purpose of ascertaining the intention of the parties regard shall be had to the terms of the contract, the conduct of the parties, and the circumstances of the case.

See Reid v. Macbeth, (1904) A. C. 223; Sir J. Laing v. Barclay & Co., (1908) A. C. 35; Hamer v. London City and Midland Bank, (1918) 87 L. J. K. B. 973; Sterns, Ltd. v. Vickers, Ltd., (1923) 1 K. B. 78; 92 L. J. K. B. 332; Kursell v. Timber Operators and Contractors, Ltd., (1927) 1 K. B. 298.

Rules for ascertaining intention.

18. Unless a different intention appears, the following are rules for ascertaining the intention of the parties as to the time at which the property in the goods is to pass to the buyer.

Rule 1.—Where there is an unconditional contract for the sale of specific goods, in a deliverable state, the property in the goods passes to the buyer when the contract is made, and it is immaterial whether the time of payment or the time of delivery, or both, be postponed (a).

See Kursell v. Timber Operatives &c., (1926) 95 L. J. K. B. 569.

Rule 2.—Where there is a contract for the sale of specific goods and the seller is bound to do something to the goods, for the purpose of putting them into a deliverable state, the property does not pass until such thing be done (b), and the buyer has notice thereof.

Rule 3.—Where there is a contract for the sale of specific goods in a deliverable state, but the seller is bound to weigh, measure, test, or do some other act or thing with reference to the goods for the purpose of ascertaining the price, the property does not pass until such act or thing be done, and the buyer has notice thereof (c). Section 18

Rule 4.—When goods are delivered to the buyer on approval or “on sale or return” or other similar terms the property therein passes to the buyer:—

- (a) When he signifies his approval or acceptance to the seller or does any other act adopting the transaction:
- (b) If he does not signify his approval or acceptance to the seller but retains the goods without giving notice of rejection, then, if a time has been fixed for the return of the goods, on the expiration of such time; and, if no time has been fixed, on the expiration of a reasonable time. What is a reasonable time is a question of fact.

See Kempler v. Bravingtons, (1925) 133 L. T. 680.

Rule 5.—(1) Where there is a contract for the sale of unascertained or future goods by description, and goods of that description and in a deliverable state are unconditionally appropriated to the contract (d), either by the seller with the assent of the buyer, or by the buyer with the assent of the seller, the property in the goods thereupon passes to the buyer. Such assent may be express or implied, and may be given either before or after the appropriation is made (e):

(2) Where, in pursuance of the contract, the seller delivers the goods to the buyer or to a carrier or other bailee or custodian (whether named by the buyer or not) for the purpose of transmission to the buyer, and does not reserve the right of disposal, he is deemed to have unconditionally appropriated the goods to the contract.

(a) “Postponed.”—See Tarling v. Barter, (1827) 6 B. & C. 360; Barr v. Gibson, (1838) 3 M. & W. 390; Seath v. Moore, (1886) 11 A. C. 350. Followed in Blyth Shipbuilding Co., Foster v. The Co., (1926) 95 L. J. Ch. 350.

(b) See Anderson v. Morice, (1875) A. C. 713; Seath v. Moore (supra).

(c) Furley v. Bates, (1863) 33 L. J. Ex. 43.

(d) See Healy v. Howlett & Sons, (1917) 1 K. B. 337; 86 L. J. K. B. 252; Denny v. Skelton, (1917) 86 L. J. K. B. 280.

(e) See Groom, Ltd. v. Barber, (1915) 84 L. J. K. B. 318; Pritchett & Co. v. Currie, (1916) 85 L. J. Ch. 753.

As to when the property passes on a sale of fixtures to be severed from freehold by vendor, see Underwood, Ltd. v. Burgh Castle Brick and Cement Co., (1922) 1 K. B. 343; 91 L. J. K. B. 355.

19.—(1) Where there is a contract for the sale of specific goods or where goods are subsequently appropriated to the contract, the seller may, by the terms of the contract or appropriation, reserve Reservation of right of disposal.

Section 19. the right of disposal of the goods until certain conditions are fulfilled. In such case, notwithstanding the delivery of the goods to the buyer, or to a carrier or other bailee or custodier for the purpose of transmission to the buyer, the property in the goods does not pass to the buyer until the conditions imposed by the seller are fulfilled.

(2) Where goods are shipped, and by the bill of lading the goods are deliverable to the order of the seller or his agent, the seller is primâ facie deemed to reserve the right of disposal.

(3) Where the seller of goods draws on the buyer for the price, and transmits the bill of exchange and bill of lading to the buyer together to secure acceptance or payment of the bill of exchange, the buyer is bound to return the bill of lading if he does not honour the bill of exchange, and if he wrongfully retains the bill of lading the property in the goods does not pass to him.

See Mirabita v. Imperial Ottoman Bank, (1878) 3 Ex. Div. 164; Shepherd v. Harrison, (1871) L. R. 5 H. L. 116.

Risk primâ facie passes with property.

20. Unless otherwise agreed, the goods remain at the seller's risk until the property therein is transferred to the buyer, but when the property therein is transferred to the buyer, the goods are at the buyer's risk whether delivery has been made or not.

Provided that where delivery has been delayed through the fault of either buyer or seller the goods are at the risk of the party in fault as regards any loss which might not have occurred but for such fault.

Provided also that nothing in this section shall affect the duties or liabilities of either seller or buyer as a bailee or custodier of the goods of the other party.

Sale by person not the owner.

21.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, where goods are sold by a person who is not the owner thereof, and who does not sell them under the authority or with the consent of the owner, the buyer acquires no better title to the goods than the seller had, unless the owner of the goods is by his conduct precluded from denying the seller's authority to sell (a).

(2) Provided also that nothing in this Act shall affect—

(a) The provisions of the Factors Acts, or any enactment enabling the apparent owner of goods to dispose of them as if he were the true owner thereof;

(b) The validity of any contract of sale under any special common law or statutory power of sale or under the order of a court of competent jurisdiction. Section 21.

NOTE.—(a) See Colonial Bank v. Whinney, (1886) 11 A. C. 426; Hollins v. Fowler, (1875) L. R. 7 H. L. 757; Cundy v. Lindsay, (1878) 3 A. C. 459; Helby v. Matthews, (1895) A. C. 471; Pickard v. Sears, (1837) 6 A. & E. 469; Weiner v. Gill, (1906) 2 K. B. 582; Farquharson v. King, (1902) A. C. 325; Heap v. Motorists' Advisory Agency, (1923) 1 K. B. 577; 92 L. J. K. B. 553.

22.—(1) Where goods are sold in market overt, according to the usage of the market, the buyer acquires a good title to the goods, provided he buys them in good faith and without notice of any defect or want of title on the part of the seller. Market overt.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the law relating to the sale of horses.

(3) The provisions of this section do not apply to Scotland.

See Crane v. London Dock Co., (1864) 33 L. J. Q. B. 224; Hargreave v. Spink, (1892) 1 Q. B. 25; Clayton v. Le Roy, (1911) 81 L. J. K. B. 49.

23. When the seller of goods has a voidable title thereto, but this title has not been avoided at the time of the sale, the buyer acquires a good title to the goods, provided he buys them in good faith and without notice of the seller's defect of title. Sale under voidable title.

See Cundy v. Lindsay, (1878) 3 A. C. 459; Croft v. Lumley, (1856) 6 H. L. 705; 27 L. J. Q. B. 321.

24.—(1) Where goods have been stolen and the offender is prosecuted to conviction, the property in the goods so stolen reverts in the person who was the owner of the goods, or his personal representative, notwithstanding any intermediate dealing with them, whether by sale in market overt or otherwise (a). Revesting of property in stolen goods on conviction of offender.

(2) Notwithstanding any enactment to the contrary, where goods have been obtained by fraud or other wrongful means not amounting to larceny, the property in such goods shall not revert in the person who was the owner of the goods, or his personal representative, by reason only of the conviction of the offender (b).

(3) The provisions of this section do not apply to Scotland.

NOTE.—(a) “Market overt or otherwise.”—See Scattergood v. Sylvester, (1850) 19 L. J. K. B. 447; Clayton v. Le Roy (supra).

(b) “Conviction.”—See Larceny Act, 1916 (6 & 7 Geo. V. c. 50, s. 45), also Criminal Appeal Act, 1907 (7 Edw. VII. c. 23, s. 6); Oppenheimer v. Frazer, (1907) 2 K. B. 50.

25.—(1) Where a person having sold goods continues or is in possession of the goods, or of the documents of title to the goods, the delivery or transfer by that person, or by a mercantile agent acting for him, of the goods or documents of title under any sale, pledge, or other disposition thereof, to any person receiving the same in good faith and without notice of the previous sale, shall have the same effect as if the person making the delivery or transfer were expressly authorised by the owner of the goods to make the same. Seller or buyer in possession after sale.

Section 25.

(2) Where a person having bought or agreed to buy goods obtains, with the consent of the seller, possession of the goods or the documents of title to the goods, the delivery or transfer by that person, or by a mercantile agent acting for him, of the goods or documents of title, under any sale, pledge, or other disposition thereof, to any person receiving the same in good faith and without notice of any lien or other right of the original seller in respect of the goods, shall have the same effect as if the person making the delivery or transfer were a mercantile agent in possession of the goods or documents of title with the consent of the owner.

(3) In this section the term "mercantile agent" has the same meaning as in the Factors Acts.

See Lee v. Butler, (1893) 2 Q. B. 318; Helby v. Matthews, (1895) A. C. 471. "Agreed to buy," see Martin v. Whale, (1917), 2 K. B. 480; 86 L. J. K. B. 1305.

execution.

26.—(1) A writ of fiery facias or other writ of execution against goods shall bind the property in the goods of the execution debtor as from the time when the writ is delivered to the sheriff to be executed; and, for the better manifestation of such time, it shall be the duty of the sheriff, without fee, upon the receipt of any such writ to endorse upon the back thereof the hour, day, month, and year when he received the same.

Provided that no such writ shall prejudice the title to such goods acquired by any person in good faith and for valuable consideration, unless such person had at the time when he acquired his title notice that such writ or any other writ by virtue of which the goods of the execution debtor might be seized or attached had been delivered to and remained unexecuted in the hands of the sheriff.

(2) In this section the term "sheriff" includes any officer charged with the enforcement of a writ of execution.

(3) The provisions of this section do not apply to Scotland.

PART III.

PERFORMANCE OF THE CONTRACT.

Duties of seller and buyer.

27. It is the duty of the seller to deliver the goods, and of the buyer to accept and pay for them, in accordance with the terms of the contract of sale.

See Buddle v. Green, (1857) 27 L. J. Ex. 33; Woolfe v. Horne, (1877) 2 Q. B. D. 355; Dunlop v. Lambert, (1839) 6 Cl. & Fin. 603; Calcutta Co. v. De Mattos, (1863) 32 L. J. Q. B. 322.

28. Unless otherwise agreed, delivery of the goods and payment of the price are concurrent conditions, that is to say, the seller must be ready and willing to give possession of the goods to the buyer in exchange for the price, and the buyer must be ready and willing to pay the price in exchange for possession of the goods.

Section 28.
Payment and delivery are concurrent conditions.

See Bloxam v. Saunders, (1825) 4 B. & C. 941; Chinery v. Viall, (1860) 29 L. J. Ex. 183; Pickford v. Grand Junction Rail. Co., (1841) 8 M. & W. 378; Paynter v. James, (1867) L. R. 2 C. P. 348; Baker v. Firminger, (1859) 28 L. J. Ex. 130.

29.—(1) Whether it is for the buyer to take possession of the goods or for the seller to send them to the buyer is a question depending in each case on the contract, express or implied, between the parties. Apart from any such contract, express or implied, the place of delivery is the seller's place of business, if he have one, and if not, his residence: Provided that, if the contract be for the sale of specific goods, which to the knowledge of the parties when the contract is made are in some other place, then that place is the place of delivery.

Rules as to delivery.

(2) Where under the contract of sale the seller is bound to send the goods to the buyer, but no time for sending them is fixed, the seller is bound to send them within a reasonable time (a).

(3) Where the goods at the time of sale are in the possession of a third person, there is no delivery by seller to buyer unless and until such third person acknowledges to the buyer that he holds the goods on his behalf (b); provided that nothing in this section shall affect the operation of the issue or transfer of any document of title to goods.

(4) Demand or tender of delivery may be treated as ineffectual unless made at a reasonable hour. What is a reasonable hour is a question of fact.

(5) Unless otherwise agreed, the expenses of and incidental to putting the goods into a deliverable state must be borne by the seller.

NOTE.—(a) “Reasonable time.”—Ellis v. Thompson, (1838) 3 M. & W. 445; Jones v. Gibbons, (1853) 8 Ex. 920; Pearl Mill Co. v. Ivy Tannery Co., Ltd., (1919) 1 K. B. 78; 88 L. J. K. B. 134, explaining Jones v. Gibbons, supra.

NOTE.—(b) “Holds the goods on his behalf.”—See Farina v. Home, (1846) 16 M. & W. 119; Godts v. Rose, (1855) 17 C. B. 229; Buddle v. Green, (1857) 27 L. J. Ex. 33.

Delivery to a person on the premises apparently authorised to receive them is a good delivery (Galbraith v. Block, (1922) 91 L. J. K. B. 649).

30.—(1) Where the seller delivers to the buyer a quantity of goods less than he contracted to sell, the buyer may reject them, but if the buyer accepts the goods so delivered he must pay for them at the contract rate.

Delivery of wrong quantity.

(2) Where the seller delivers to the buyer a quantity of goods

Section 30.

larger than he contracted to sell, the buyer may accept the goods included in the contract and reject the rest, or he may reject the whole. If the buyer accepts the whole of the goods so delivered he must pay for them at the contract rate (c).

NOTE.—(c) Where the contract was for the “remainder” of a cargo of goods, and an estimate given as to the amount, the whole of the remainder of the cargo passed under the contract, though it turned out to be considerably in excess of the estimate (Harrison v. Micks, Lambert & Co., (1917) 86 L. J. K. B. 573; Bekrend v. Produce Brokers Co., (1920) 3 K. B. 530).

(3) Where the seller delivers to the buyer the goods he contracted to sell mixed with goods of a different description not included in the contract, the buyer may accept the goods which are in accordance with the contract and reject the rest, or he may reject the whole.

(4) The provisions of this section are subject to any usage of trade, special agreement, or course of dealing between the parties.

See Oxendale v. Wetherell, (1829) 4 M. & Ry. 429; Colonial Ins. Co. v. Adelaide Ins. Co., (1886) 12 A. C. 138; Moore & Co. v. Landauer & Co., (1921) 90 L. J. K. B. 731.

Instalment deliveries.

31.—(1) Unless otherwise agreed, the buyer of goods is not bound to accept delivery thereof by instalments.

(2) Where there is a contract for the sale of goods to be delivered by stated instalments, which are to be separately paid for, and the seller makes defective deliveries in respect of one or more instalments, or the buyer neglects or refuses to take delivery of or pay for one or more instalments, it is a question in each case depending on the terms of the contract and the circumstances of the case, whether the breach of contract is a repudiation of the whole contract or whether it is a severable breach giving rise to a claim for compensation but not to a right to treat the whole contract as repudiated.

See Reuter v. Sala, (1879) 4 C. P. D. 239; Mersey Steel and Iron Co. v. Naylor, (1884) 9 A. C. 434; Dominion Coal Co. v. Dominion Iron and Steel Co., (1909) A. C. (P. C.) 293; Ebbw Vale Steel Co. v. Blaina Iron Co., (1901) 6 C. C. 33; Braithwaite v. Foreign Hardware Co., (1905) 2 K. B. 543.

Delivery to carrier

32.—(1) Where, in pursuance of a contract of sale, the seller is authorised or required to send the goods to the buyer, delivery of the goods to a carrier, whether named by the buyer or not, for the purpose of transmission to the buyer is primâ facie deemed to be a delivery of the goods to the buyer (a).

(2) Unless otherwise authorised by the buyer, the seller must make such contract with the carrier on behalf of the buyer as may be reasonable having regard to the nature of the goods and the other circumstances of the case. If the seller omit so to do, and the goods are lost or damaged in course of transit, the buyer may decline to treat the delivery to the carrier as a delivery to himself (b), or may hold the seller responsible in damages.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed, where goods are sent by the seller to the buyer by a route involving sea transit, under circumstances in which it is usual to insure, the seller must give such notice to the buyer as may enable him to insure them during their sea transit, and, if the seller fails to do so, the goods shall be deemed to be at his risk during such sea transit (c). Section 32.

(a) "Delivery of goods to buyer."—See Wait v. Baker, (1848) 2 Ex. 1; Dunlop v. Lambert, (1839) 6 Cl. & Fin. 600; Badische Anilin Fabrik v. Basle Chemical Works, (1897) A. C. 203; Clemens Horst & Co. v. Biddell, (1912) A. C. 18.

(b) "Delivery to himself."—Clarke v. Hutchins, (1811) 14 East, 475; Buckman v. Levi, (1813) 3 Camp. 414; Norman v. Phillips, (1845) 14 M. & W. 277.

(c) Law and Bonar, Ltd. v. British America Tobacco Co., Ltd., (1916) 2 K. B. 605; 85 L. J. K. B. 1714.

33. Where the seller of goods agrees to deliver them at his own risk at a place other than that where they are when sold, the buyer must, nevertheless, unless otherwise agreed, take any risk of deterioration in the goods necessarily incident to the course of transit. Risk where goods are delivered at distant place

See Bull v. Robinson, (1854) 10 Ex. 342; Beer v. Walker, (1877) 46 L. J. C. P. 677.

34.—(1) Where goods are delivered to the buyer, which he has not previously examined, he is not deemed to have accepted them unless and until he has had a reasonable opportunity of examining them for the purpose of ascertaining whether they are in conformity with the contract (a). Buyer's right of examining the goods.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed, when the seller tenders delivery of goods to the buyer, he is bound, on request, to afford the buyer a reasonable opportunity of examining the goods for the purpose of ascertaining whether they are in conformity with the contract.

NOTE.—(a) "In conformity with the contract."—See Lorymer v. Smith, (1822) 1 B. & C. 1; Heilbutt v. Hickson, (1872) L. R. 7 C. P. 438; Khan v. Duché, (1905) 10 Com. Ca. 87; Boks & Co. v. Rayner, (1921) 37 T. L. R. 519.

35. The buyer is deemed to have accepted the goods when he intimates to the seller that he has accepted them, or when the goods have been delivered to him, and he does any act in relation to them which is inconsistent with the ownership of the seller, or when after the lapse of a reasonable time, he retains the goods without intimating to the seller that he has rejected them. Acceptance.

See Parker v. Palmer, (1821) 4 B. & A. 387; Chapman v. Morton, (1843) 11 M. & W. 534; Taylor v. Great Eastern Rail. Co., (1911) 1 K. B. 774; Heilbutt v. Hickson (supra).

Reselling part of the goods, although they have not been examined is an "act inconsistent with the ownership of the seller" (E. Hardy & Co. v. Hillerns and Fowler, (1923) 1 K. B. 658; 2 K. B. 490).

Section 36.

Buyer not bound to return rejected
goods.

36. Unless otherwise agreed, where goods are delivered to the buyer, and he refuses to accept them, having the right so to do, he is not bound to return them to the seller, but it is sufficient if he intimates to the seller that he refuses to accept them.

See Grimoldby v. Wells, (1875) L. R. 10 C. P. 391.

buyer for neglecting or refusing delivery of goods.

37. When the seller is ready and willing to deliver the goods, and requests the buyer to take delivery, and the buyer does not within a reasonable time after such request take delivery of the goods, he is liable to the seller for any loss occasioned by his neglect or refusal to take delivery, and also for a reasonable charge for the care and custody of the goods. Provided that nothing in this section shall affect the rights of the seller where the neglect or refusal of the buyer to take delivery amounts to a repudiation of the contract.

See Bloxam v. Saunders, (1825) 4 B. & C. 941; Mersey Steel Co. v. Naylor, (1884) 9 A. C. 434; Braithwaite v. Foreign Hardware Co., (1905) 2 K. B. 543.

PART IV.

RIGHTS OF UNPAID SELLER AGAINST THE GOODS.

Unpaid seller defined.

38.—(1) The seller of goods is deemed to be an “unpaid seller” within the meaning of this Act—

- (a) When the whole of the price has not been paid or tendered ;
- (b) When a bill of exchange or other negotiable instrument has been received as conditional payment, and the condition on which it was received has not been fulfilled by reason of the dishonour of the instrument or otherwise (a).

(2) In this part of this Act the term “seller” includes any person who is in the position of a seller, as, for instance, an agent of the seller to whom the bill of lading has been endorsed, or a consignor or agent who has himself paid, or is directly responsible for, the price.

NOTE.—(a) “Dishonour of the instrument or otherwise.”]—See Griffith v. Perry, (1859) 28 L. J. Q. B. 204; Gunn v. Bolckow, Vaughan & Co., (1875) L. R. 10 Ch. App. 491; Goldshede v. Cottrell, (1836) 2 M. & W. 20; Imperial Bank v. London and S. Katherine Docks Co., (1877) 5 Ch. D. 195.

seller's rights.

39.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, and of any statute in that behalf, notwithstanding that the property in the goods may have passed to the buyer, the unpaid seller of goods, as such, has by implication of law—

- (a) A lien on the goods or right to retain them for the price while he is in possession of them ;

(b) In case of the insolvency of the buyer, a right of stopping the goods in transitu after he has parted with the possession of them ;

(c) A right of re-sale as limited by this Act.

(2) Where the property in goods has not passed to the buyer the unpaid seller has, in addition to his other remedies, a right of withholding delivery similar to and co-extensive with his rights of lien and stoppage in transitu where the property has passed to the buyer.

See Kendal v. Marshall, Stevens & Co., (1883) 11 Q. B. D. 368; Cassaboglou v. Gibb, (1883) 11 Q. B. D. at p. 804; Kemp v. Falk, (1882) 7 A. C. 590; Merchant Banking Co. v. Phoenix Co., (1877) 5 C. D. 205.

The purchaser of goods who has rejected them has no lien upon them though he has paid for them (Lyons & Co. v. May & Baker, (1923) 1 K. B. 685; 92 L. J. K. B. 675).

40. In Scotland a seller of goods may attach the same while in his own hands or possession by arrestment or pouding; and such arrestment or pouding shall have the same operation and effect in a competition or otherwise as an arrestment or pouding by a third party.

Attachment
by seller in Scotland.

Unpaid Seller's Lien.

41.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the unpaid seller of goods who is in possession of them is entitled to retain possession of them until payment or tender of the price in the following cases, namely :—

(a) Where the goods have been sold without any stipulation as to credit ;

(b) Where the goods have been sold on credit, but the term of credit has expired (a) ;

(c) Where the buyer becomes insolvent (b).

(2) The seller may exercise his right of lien notwithstanding that he is in possession of the goods as agent or bailee or custodian for the buyer (c).

NOTE.—(a) “Credit has expired.”]—See Martindale v. Smith, (1841) 8 Q. B. 395.

NOTE.—(b) “Insolvent.”]—Bloxam v. Morley, (1825) 4 B. & C. 951; Gunn v. Bolckow, Vaughan & Co., (1875) L. R. 10 Ch. App. 501.

“Lien.”]—Is for the unpaid price of goods, not for custody of same, see Somes v. British Empire Shipping Co., (1859) 30 L. J. Q. B. 229.

42. Where an unpaid seller has made part delivery of the goods, he may exercise his right of lien or retention on the remainder, unless such part delivery has been made under such circumstances as to show an agreement to waive the lien or right of retention.

Part delivery.

See Kemp v. Falk, (1882) 7 A. C. 573; Ex parte Chalmers (1873), L. R. 8 Ch. App. 289; Merchant Banking Co. v. Phoenix Co., (1877) 5 C. D. 205.

Section 43. 43.—(1) The unpaid seller of goods loses his lien or right of retention thereon—Termination of lien.

- (a) When he delivers the goods to a carrier or other bailee or custodier for the purpose of transmission to the buyer without reserving the right of disposal of the goods (a);
- (b) When the buyer or his agent lawfully obtains possession of the goods (b);
- (c) By waiver thereof.

(2) The unpaid seller of goods, having a lien or right of retention thereon, does not lose his lien or right of retention by reason only that he has obtained judgment or decree for the price of the goods.

Stoppage in transitu.

Right of stoppage in transitu.

44. Subject to the provisions of this Act, when the buyer of goods becomes insolvent, the unpaid seller who has parted with the possession of the goods has the right of stopping them in transitu, that is to say, he may resume possession of the goods as long as they are in course of transit, and may retain them until payment or tender of the price.

Duration of transit.

45.—(1) Goods are deemed to be in course of transit from the time when they are delivered to a carrier by land or water, or other bailee or custodier for the purpose of transmission to the buyer, until the buyer, or his agent in that behalf, takes delivery of them from such carrier or other bailee or custodier.

(2) If the buyer or his agent in that behalf obtains delivery of the goods before their arrival at the appointed destination, the transit is at an end.

(3) If, after the arrival of the goods at the appointed destination, the carrier or other bailee or custodier acknowledges to the buyer, or his agent, that he holds the goods on his behalf and continues in possession of them as bailee or custodier for the buyer, or his agent, the transit is at an end, and it is immaterial that a further destination for the goods may have been indicated by the buyer.

Section 45.

(4) If the goods are rejected by the buyer, and the carrier or other bailee or custodier continues in possession of them, the transit is not deemed to be at an end, even if the seller has refused to receive them back.

(5) When goods are delivered to a ship chartered by the buyer it is a question depending on the circumstances of the particular case, whether they are in the possession of the master as a carrier, or as agent to the buyer.

(6) Where the carrier or other bailee or custodier wrongfully refuses to deliver the goods to the buyer, or his agent in that behalf, the transit is deemed to be at an end.

(7) Where part delivery of the goods has been made to the buyer, or his agent in that behalf, the remainder of the goods may be stopped in transitu, unless such part delivery has been made under such circumstances as to show an agreement to give up possession of the whole of the goods.

See Valpy v. Gibson, (1847) 4 C. B. 887; Schotsmans v. Lancashire and Yorkshire Rail. Co. (supra); Ex parte Barrow, (1877) 6 C. D. 783; Lyons v. Hoffnung (supra); Kendall v. Marshall, Stevens & Co. (supra); Ex parte Miles (supra); Bolton v. Lancashire and Yorkshire Rail. Co., (1866) L. R. 11 O. P. 431; Ex parte Rosevear China Clay Co., (1879) 11 C. D. 560; Kemp v. Falk, (1882) 7 A. C. 588.

46.—(1) The unpaid seller may exercise his right of stoppage in transitu either by taking actual possession of the goods, or by giving notice of his claim to the carrier or other bailee or custodier in whose possession the goods are. Such notice may be given either to the person in actual possession of the goods or to his principal. In the latter case the notice, to be effectual, must be given at such time and under such circumstances that the principal, by the exercise of reasonable diligence, may communicate it to his servant or agent in time to prevent a delivery to the buyer.

How stoppage in transitu is effected.

(2) When notice of stoppage in transitu is given by the seller to the carrier, or other bailee or custodier in possession of the goods, he must re-deliver the goods to, or according to the directions of, the seller. The expenses of such re-delivery must be borne by the seller.

See Whitehead v. Anderson, (1842) 9 M. & W. 518; McTigress, (1863) 32 L. J. Adm. 97; Booth Steamship Co. v. Cargo Fleet Iron Co., (1916) 2 K. B. 570; 85 L. J. K. B. 1577.

Re-sale by Buyer or Seller.

47. Subject to the provisions of this Act, the unpaid seller's right of lien or retention or stoppage in transitu is not affected by any sale, or other disposition of the goods which the buyer may have made, unless the seller has assented thereto (a).

Effect of sub-sale or pledge by buyer.

Section 47. Provided that where a document of title to goods has been lawfully transferred to any person as buyer or owner of the goods and that person transfers the document to a person who takes the document in good faith and for valuable consideration, then, if such last-mentioned transfer was by way of sale the unpaid seller's right of lien or retention or stoppage in transitu is defeated, and if such last-mentioned transfer was by way of pledge or other disposition for value, the unpaid seller's right of lien or retention or stoppage in transitu can only be exercised subject to the rights of the transferee (b).

NOTE.—(a) “Seller has assented thereto.”—Stoveld v. Hughes, (1811) 14 East, 308; Woodley v. Coventry, (1863) 32 L. J. Ex. 185; Merchant Banking Co. v. Phoenix Steel Co., (1877) 5 C. D. 205.

NOTE.—(b) See notes to Lickbarrow v. Mason, (1793) 6 East, 21, in Smith's L. C., 12th edit., 772; Leask v. Scott, (1877) 2 Q. B. D. 376; Kemp v. Falk (supra); Sewell v. Burdick, (1884) 10 A. C. 74.

Sale not generally rescinded by lien or stoppage in transitu.

48.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this section, a contract of sale is not rescinded by the mere exercise by an unpaid seller of his right of lien or retention or stoppage in transitu.

(2) Where an unpaid seller who has exercised his right of lien or retention or stoppage in transitu re-sells the goods, the buyer acquires a good title thereto as against the original buyer.

(3) Where the goods are of a perishable nature, or where the unpaid seller gives notice to the buyer of his intention to re-sell, and the buyer does not within a reasonable time pay or tender the price, the unpaid seller may re-sell the goods and recover from the original buyer damages for any loss occasioned by his breach of contract.

(4) Where the seller expressly reserves a right of re-sale in case the buyer should make default, and on the buyer making default, re-sells the goods, the original contract of sale is thereby rescinded, but without prejudice to any claim the seller may have for damages.

See Kemp v. Falk, supra; notes to Lickbarrow v. Mason, supra; Lord v. Price, (1874) L. R. 9 Ex. 55; Ex parte Stapleton, (1879) 10 C. D. 586; Lamond v. Davall, (1847) 9 Q. B. 1030; Johnson v. Credit Lyonnais, (1877) 3 C. P. D. 32.

PART V.

ACTIONS FOR BREACH OF THE CONTRACT.

Remedies of the Seller.

Action for price.

49.—(1) Where, under a contract of sale, the property in the goods has passed to the buyer, and the buyer wrongfully neglects or refuses to pay for the goods according to the terms of the contract, the seller may maintain an action against him for the price of the goods.

Section 49.

(2) Where, under a contract of sale, the price is payable on a day certain irrespective of delivery (a), and the buyer wrongfully neglects or refuses to pay such price, the seller may maintain an action for the price, although the property in the goods has not passed, and the goods have not been appropriated to the contract.

(3) Nothing in this section shall prejudice the right of the seller in Scotland to recover interest on the price from the date of tender of the goods, or from the date on which the price was payable, as the case may be (b).

NOTE.—(a) As to the meaning of these words see Stein Forbes & Co. v. County Tailoring Co., (1917) 86 L. J. K. B. 448; also Colley v. Overseas Exporters, (1921) 90 L. J. K. B. 1301.

NOTE.—(b) See Dunlop v. Grote, (1845) 2 C. & R. 153; Fessard v. Mugnier, (1865) 34 L. J. C. P. 126; Calcutta Co. v. De Mattos, (1863) 32 L. J. Q. B. 328.

50.—(1) Where the buyer wrongfully neglects or refuses to accept and pay for the goods, the seller may maintain an action against him for damages for non-acceptance (a). Damage for non-acceptance.

(2) The measure of damages is the estimated loss directly and naturally resulting, in the ordinary course of events, from the buyer's breach of contract.

(3) Where there is an available market (b) for the goods in question the measure of damages is primâ facie to be ascertained by the difference between the contract price and the market or current price at the time or times when the goods ought to have been accepted, or, if no time was fixed for acceptance, then at the time of the refusal to accept (c).

NOTE.—(a) “Non-acceptance.”—Graves v. Legg, (1854) 9 Ex. 709.

NOTE.—(b) “Available market.”—Dunkirk Colliery v. Lever, (1878) 9 C. D. 25; Brown v. Muller, (1872) L. R. 7 Ex. 319; Roper v. Johnson, (1873) L. R. 8 C. P. 167; *Diestal v. NOTE.—(c) If on a breach of contract to accept shares the seller retains the shares, he is entitled to recover the difference in the value of the shares at the time of the breach, though the value of the shares may afterwards rise (A. K. A. S. Jamal v. Moolla Dawood, Sons & Co., (1916) L. R. P. C. 175).

Remedies of the Buyer.

51.—(1) Where the seller wrongfully neglects or refuses to deliver the goods to the buyer, the buyer may maintain an action against the seller for damages for non-delivery. Damages for non-delivery.

(2) The measure of damages is the estimated loss directly and naturally resulting, in the ordinary course of events, from the seller's breach of contract.

Showell*, (1918) 87 L. J. K. B. 1106; Melachrino v. Nicholl, (1920) 1 K. B. 693.

Measure of damages.—Where there is no market in which the goods can be bought the plaintiff is entitled as damages for the breach of contract to deliver, to the full amount of damages he has actually sustained, subject to the general principle that the damage must have been within the contemplation of the parties (Montevideo Gas Co. v. Clan Line Steamers, (1921) 37 T. L. R. 544).

"If no time fixed then at the time of refusal to deliver."—This rule does not apply to a case where the breach is an anticipatory breach (Millett v. Van Heek & Co., (1921) 2 K. B. 369; 90 L. J. K. B. 671). Quære whether a contract to deliver goods within a reasonable time is a contract to deliver at a fixed time within the meaning of the sub-section (ibid.).

Specific performance.

52. In any action for breach of contract to deliver specific or ascertained goods the court may, if it thinks fit, on the application of the plaintiff, by its judgment or decree direct that the contract shall be performed specifically, without giving the defendant the option of retaining the goods on payment of damages. The judgment or decree may be unconditional, or upon such terms and conditions as to damages, payment of the price, and otherwise, as to the court may seem just, and the application by the plaintiff may be made at any time before judgment or decree (a).

The provisions of this section shall be deemed to be supplementary to, and not in derogation of, the right of specific implement in Scotland.

NOTE.—(a) This section substantially reproduces sect. 2 of the Mercantile Law Amendment Act, 1856 (19 & 20 Vict. c. 97). See, as to specific delivery of goods in action in the county court, County Court Rules, Order XXV., r. 69. Remedy for breach of warranty.

53.—(1) Where there is a breach of warranty by the seller, or where the buyer elects, or is compelled, to treat any breach of a condition on the part of the seller as a breach of warranty, the buyer is not by reason only of such breach of warranty entitled to reject the goods; but he may

Section 53.

(a) set up against the seller the breach of warranty in diminution or extinction of the price; or

(b) maintain an action against the seller for damages for the breach of warranty.

(2) The measure of damages for breach of warranty is the estimated loss directly and naturally resulting, in the ordinary course of events, from the breach of warranty.

See Slater v. Hoyle and Smith, (1920) 2 K. B. 11; Taylor & Sons v. Bank of Athens, (1922) 91 L. J. K. B. 776.

(3) In the case of breach of warranty of quality such loss is prima facie the difference between the value of the goods at the time of delivery to the buyer and the value they would have had if they had answered to the warranty.

See Slater v. Hoyle and Smith, supra.

(4) The fact that the buyer has set up the breach of warranty as a diminution or extinction of the price does not prevent him from maintaining an action for the same breach of warranty if he has suffered further damage.

(5) Nothing in this section shall prejudice or affect the buyer's right of rejection in Scotland as declared by this Act.

As to what amounts to a warranty see judgments of House of Lords in Heilbut, Symons & Co. v. Buckleton, (1912) 82 L. J. K. B. 245. A defence of breach of warranty is not a defence which need be specially pleaded (Bright v. Rogers, (1917) 86 L. J. K. B. 804).

Harrison, Ltd. v. Knowles & Foster*, (1918) 87 L. J. K. B. 680.

54. Nothing in this Act shall affect the right of the buyer or the seller to recover interest or special damages in any case where by law interest or special damages may be recoverable, or to recover money paid where the consideration for the payment of it has failed.

Exclusion of implied terms and conditions.

55. Where any right, duty, or liability would arise under a contract of sale by implication of law, it may be negatived or varied by express agreement or by the course of dealing between the parties, or by usage (a), if the usage be such as to bind both parties to the contract.

57. Where any right, duty, or liability is declared by this Act, it may, unless otherwise by this Act provided, be enforced by action.

58. In the case of a sale by auction—

- (1) Where goods are put up for sale by auction in lots, each lot is primâ facie deemed to be the subject of a separate contract of sale :
- (2) A sale by auction is complete when the auctioneer announces its completion by the fall of the hammer, or in other customary manner. Until such announcement is made any bidder may retract his bid (a) :
- (3) Where a sale by auction is not notified to be subject to a right to bid on behalf of the seller, it shall not be lawful for the seller to bid himself or to employ any person to bid at such sale, or for the auctioneer knowingly to take any bid from the seller or any such person (b) : Any sale contravening this rule may be treated as fraudulent by the buyer :
- (4) A sale by auction may be notified to be subject to a reserved or upset price, and a right to bid may also be reserved expressly by or on behalf of the seller (c).

Where a right to bid is expressly reserved, but not otherwise, the seller, or any one person on his behalf, may bid at the auction.

[15 GEO. V. c. 18.]

All the Settled Land Acts have been repealed by the Settled Land Act, 1925 (15 Geo. V. c. 18). The new Act extends to one hundred and twenty sections and five schedules. Those sections giving special powers to the court are printed below.

Jurisdiction is given to the county court by sect. 113 (3), as regards land not exceeding in value 500*l.*, or in annual rateable value 30*l.*; as regards capital money and securities in which the same is invested, not exceeding 500*l.*; and as regards personal chattels settled or to be settled, 500*l.*

Practice.—The proceedings should be commenced by petition (see Order XXXVIII. (ante, Part I.), by which the practice is regulated). If, during the course of the trial, the excess of jurisdiction appears on the evidence given, the judge ought not to strike the action or matter out, but he should do so if the want of jurisdiction appears on the petition itself (Birks v. Silverwood, (1871) L. R. 14 Eq. 101; 41 L. J. Ch. 638; Thomson v. Flinn, (1881) L. R. 17 Eq. 415; 43 L. J. Ch. 256; sed quære if the other party consents (see sect. 114 of the County Courts Act, 1888)); the action or matter may be transferred to the High Court (see Rule 5 of Order XXXIII., and Form 331).

Costs.—Even where the subject-matter of proceedings does not exceed 20*l.*, the judge may order costs to be taxed under column B (Order LIII. c. 12).

Appeal.—Any appeal from the county court under this Act is to a divisional court of the Chancery Division of the High Court. See R. S. C. Order 54D, r. 5. For practice on appeal, see ibid., rr. 8—12.

9.—(2) As soon as practicable after a settlement, or an instrument which for the purposes of this Act is deemed to be a trust instrument, takes effect as such, the trustees of the settlement may, and on the request of the tenant for life or statutory owner shall, execute a principal vesting deed, containing the proper statements and particulars, declaring that the legal estate in the settled land shall vest or is vested in the person or persons therein named, being the tenant for life or statutory owner, and including themselves if they are the statutory owners, and such deed shall, unless the legal estate is already so vested, operate to convey or vest the legal estate in the settled land to or in the person or persons aforesaid and, if more than one, as joint tenants.

(3) If there are no trustees of the settlement, then (in default of a person able and willing to appoint such trustees) an application under this Act shall be made to the court for the appointment of such trustees.

12.—(1) If—

(a) any person who is bound under this Part of this Act to execute a conveyance, vesting deed or vesting assent or in whom settled land is wrongly vested refuses or neglects to execute the requisite conveyance, vesting deed or vesting assent within one month after demand in writing; or

(b) any such person is outside the United Kingdom, or cannot be found, or it is not known whether he is alive or dead; or Procedure in the case of settlements and of instruments deemed to be trust instruments.

Power to make vesting orders as to settled land.

Section 12. (c) for any reason the court is satisfied that the conveyance, vesting deed or vesting assent cannot be executed, or cannot be executed without undue delay or expense ;

the court may, on the application of any person interested, make an order vesting the settled land in the tenant for life or statutory owner or person, if any, of full age absolutely entitled (whether beneficially or as personal representative or trustee for sale or otherwise), and, if the land remains settled land, the provisions of this Act relating to a principal vesting deed or a subsidiary vesting deed, as the case may be, shall apply to any order so made and every such order shall contain the like statements and particulars.

(2) No stamp duty shall be payable in respect of a vesting order made in place of a vesting or other assent.

Enforcement of equitable interest and powers against estate owner.

16.—(6) If a question arises or a doubt is entertained whether any and what legal estate ought to be transferred or created pursuant to this section, an application may be made to the court for directions as hereinafter provided.

(7) If an estate owner refuses or neglects for one month after demand in writing to transfer or create any such legal estate, or if by reason of his being outside the United Kingdom, or being unable to be found, or by reason of the dissolution of a corporation, or for any other reason, the court is satisfied that the transaction cannot otherwise be effected, or cannot be effected without undue delay or expense, the court may, on the application of any person interested, make a vesting order transferring or creating the requisite legal estate.

Deed of Discharge on termination of settlement.

17.—(2) If, in the circumstances mentioned in sub-section (1) of this section and when the conditions therein mentioned have been complied with, the trustees of a settlement on being requested to execute a deed of discharge—

- (a) by the estate owner ; or
- (b) by a person interested under, or by the trustees of, a derivative settlement ; or
- (c) by the trustees of a conveyance on trust for sale ;

refuse to do so, or if for any reason the discharge cannot be effected without undue delay or expense, the estate owner, person interested, or trustees may apply to the court for an order discharging the first mentioned trustees as respects the whole or any part of the settled land, and the court may make such order as it may think fit.

Absolute owners subject to certain interests to have the powers of tenant for life.

21.—(1) Where a person of full age is beneficially entitled in possession to a legal estate subject to any equitable interests or powers, then, for the purpose of overreaching such interests or powers, he may, notwithstanding any stipulation to the contrary, by deed (which shall have effect as a principal vesting deed within the meaning of this Act) declare that the legal estate is vested in him on trust to give effect to all equitable interests and powers affecting the legal estate, and that deed shall be executed by two or more individuals approved or appointed by the court or a trust corporation, who shall be stated to be the trustees of the settlement for the purposes of this Act.

24.—(1) If it is shown to the satisfaction of the court that a tenant for life, who has by reason of bankruptcy, assignment, incumbrance, or otherwise ceased in the opinion of the court to have a substantial interest in his estate or interest in the settled land or any part thereof, has unreasonably refused to exercise any of the powers conferred on him by this Act, or consents to an order under this section, the court may, on the application of any person interested in the settled land or the part thereof affected, make an order authorising the trustees of the settlement, to exercise in the name and on behalf of the tenant for life, any of the powers of a tenant for life under this Act, in relation to the settled land or the part thereof affected, either generally and in such manner and for such period as the court may think fit, or in a particular instance, and the court may by the order direct that any documents of title in the possession of the tenant for life relating to the settled land be delivered to the trustees of the settlement.

Section 24.

As to a tenant for life who has parted with his interest.

(2) While any such order is in force, the tenant for life shall not, in relation to the settled land or the part thereof affected, exercise any of the powers thereby authorised to be exercised in his name and on his behalf, but no person dealing with the tenant for life shall be affected by any such order, unless the order is for the time being registered as an order affecting land.

(3) An order may be made under this section at any time after the estate or interest of the tenant for life under the settlement has taken effect in possession, and notwithstanding that he disposed thereof when it was an estate or interest in remainder or reversion.

34.—(1) If at any time there are no trustees of a settlement, or where in any other case it is expedient, for the purposes of this Act, that new trustees of a settlement be appointed, the court may, if it thinks fit, on the application of the tenant for life, statutory owner, or of any other person having, under the settlement, an estate or interest in the settled land, in possession, remainder or otherwise, or, in the case of an infant, of his testamentary or other guardian or next friend, appoint fit persons to be trustees of the settlement.

Appointment of trustees by court.

(2) The persons so appointed, and the survivors and survivor of them, while continuing to be trustees or trustee, and, until the appointment of new trustees, the personal representatives or representative for the time being of the last surviving or continuing trustee, shall become and be the trustees or trustee of the settlement.

Provisions as to Undivided Shares.

36.—(1) If and when, after the commencement of this Act, settled land is held in trust for persons entitled in possession under a trust instrument in undivided shares, the trustees of the settlement (if the settled land is not already vested in them) may require the estate owner in whom the settled land is vested (but in the case of a personal representative subject to his rights and powers for purposes of administration), at the cost of the trust estate, to convey the land to them, or assent to the land vesting in them as joint tenants, and in the meantime the land shall be

Undivided shares to take effect behind a trust for sale of the land.

Section 36. held on the same trusts as would have been applicable thereto if it had been so conveyed to or vested in the trustees.

(2) If and when the settled land so held in trust in undivided shares is or becomes vested in the trustees of the settlement, the land shall be held by them (subject to any incumbrances affecting the settled land which are secured by a legal mortgage, but freed from any incumbrances affecting the undivided shares or not secured as aforesaid, and from any interests, powers and charges subsisting under the trust instrument which have priority to the trust for the persons entitled to the undivided shares) upon the statutory trusts.

(3) If the estate owner refuses or neglects for one month after demand in writing to convey the settled land so held in trust in undivided shares in manner aforesaid, or if by reason of his being outside the United Kingdom or being unable to be found, or by reason of the dissolution of a corporation, or for any other reason, the court is satisfied that the conveyance cannot otherwise be made, or cannot be made without undue delay or expense, the court may, on the application of the trustees of the settlement, make an order vesting the settled land in them on the statutory trusts.

Variation of building or mining lease according to circumstances of district.

46.—(1) Where it is shown to the court with respect to the district in which any settled land is situate, either—

- (i) that it is the custom for land therein to be leased for building or mining purposes for a longer term or on other conditions than the term or conditions specified in that behalf in this Act; or
- (ii) that it is difficult to make leases for building or mining purposes of land therein, except for a longer term or on other conditions than the term and conditions specified in that behalf in this Act;

the court may, if it thinks fit, authorise generally the tenant for life or statutory owner to make from time to time leases of or affecting the settled land in that district, or parts thereof for any term or on any conditions as in the order of the court expressed, or may, if it thinks fit, authorise the tenant for life or statutory owner to make any such lease in any particular case.

(2) Thereupon the tenant for life or statutory owner, and, subject to any direction in the order of the court to the contrary, each of his successors in title being a tenant for life or statutory owner, may make in any case, or in the particular case, a lease of the settled land, or part thereof, in conformity with the order.

Power on dispositions to impose restrictions and make reservations and stipulations.

49.—(3) Where on a sale the consideration attributable to any timber or fixtures is by mistake paid to a tenant for life or other person not entitled to receive it, then, if such person or the purchaser or the persons deriving title under either of them subsequently pay the aforesaid consideration, with such interest, if any, thereon as the court may direct, to the trustees of the settlement or other persons entitled thereto or into court, the court may, on the application of the purchaser or the persons deriving title under him, declare that the disposition is to take effect as if the whole of the consideration had at the date thereof been duly paid to the trustees of the settlement or other persons entitled to receive the same.

The person, not entitled to receive the same, to whom the consideration is paid, and his estate and effects shall remain liable to make good any loss attributable to the mistake.

Section 49.

64.—(1) Any transaction affecting or concerning the settled land, or any part thereof, or any other land (not being a transaction otherwise authorised by this Act, or by the settlement) which in the opinion of the court would be for the benefit of the settled land, or any part thereof, or the persons interested under the settlement, may, under an order of the court, be effected by a tenant for life, if it is one which could have been validly effected by an absolute owner.

General power for the tenant for life to effect any transaction under an order of the court.

(2) In this section "transaction" includes any sale, extinguishment of manorial incidents, exchange, assurance, grant, lease, surrender, reconveyance, release, reservation, or other disposition, and any purchase or other acquisition, and any covenant, contract, or option, and any application of capital money (except as herein-after mentioned), and any compromise or other dealing, or arrangement; but does not include an application of capital money in payment for any improvement not authorised by this Act, or by the settlement; and "effected" has the meaning appropriate to the particular transaction; and the references to land include references to restrictions and burdens affecting land.

67.—(1) Where personal chattels are settled so as to devolve with settled land, or to devolve therewith as nearly as may be in accordance with the law or practice in force at the date of the settlement, or are settled together with land, or upon trusts declared by reference to the trusts affecting land, a tenant for life of the land may sell the chattels or any of them.

Sale and purchase of heirlooms under order of court.

(2) The money arising by the sale shall be capital money arising under this Act, and shall be paid, invested, or applied and otherwise dealt with in like manner in all respects as by this Act directed with respect to other capital money arising under this Act, or may be invested in the purchase of other chattels of the same or any other nature, which, when purchased, shall be settled and held on the same trusts, and shall devolve in the same manner as the chattels sold.

(3) A sale or purchase of chattels under this section shall not be made without an order of the court.

(4) Any reference in any enactment to personal chattels settled as heirlooms shall extend to any chattels to which this section applies.

87. The court may, in any case where it appears proper, make an order directing or authorising capital money to be applied in or towards payment for any improvement authorised by the Settled Land Acts, 1882 to 1890, or this Act, notwithstanding that a scheme was not, before the execution of the improvement, submitted for approval, as required by the Settled Land Act, 1882, to the trustees of the settlement or to the court, and notwithstanding that no capital money is immediately available for the purpose.

Court may order payment for improvements executed.

92. The court may, if it thinks fit, approve of any action, defence, petition to Parliament, parliamentary opposition, or other proceeding taken or proposed to be taken for the protection

Proceedings for protection or recovery of land

SMALL DWELLINGS ACQUISITION ACT, 1899.

[62 & 63 VICT. c. 44.]

This Act empowers the local authority for any area to advance money as specified in the Act to a resident in any house within the area to acquire the same (sect. 1, sub-s. 1). The local authority has power in certain events to take possession or without taking possession to order a sale of the house (sect. 3). Where the local authority takes possession, they are to pay either an agreed sum or a sum equal to the value of the owner's interest in the house after deducting the amount of the advance unpaid and interest (sect. 5).

Jurisdiction.—The above-mentioned value, in the absence of a sale or in default of agreement, is to be settled by a county court judge as arbitrator, or if the Lord Chancellor so authorises, by a single arbitrator appointed by the county court judge (sect. 5 (2) (b)). Where the local authority may take possession of a house, possession may be recovered (whatever the value of the house) under sects. 138—145 of the County Courts Act, 1888, or under the Small Tenements Recovery Act, 1838 (sect. 5 (5)).

Practice.]—To any arbitration before the county court judge, or before an arbitrator appointed by him, the Arbitration Act, 1889, is to apply. In cases where possession is claimed, the local authority may recover as if it were the landlord and the proprietor of the house the tenant (see as to recovery of tenements, County Courts Act, 1888, sects. 138, 139).

3.—(1) Where the ownership of a house has been acquired by means of an advance under this Act, the house shall, until such advance with interest has been fully paid, or the local authority have taken possession or ordered a sale under this Act, be held subject to the following conditions (in this Act referred to as the statutory conditions), that is to say :—

- (a) Every sum for the time being due in respect of principal or of interest of the advance shall be punctually paid :
- (b) The proprietor of the house shall reside in the house :
- (c) The house shall be kept insured against fire to the satisfaction of the local authority, and the receipts for the premiums produced when required by them :
- (d) The house shall be kept in good sanitary condition and good repair :
- (e) The house shall not be used for the sale of intoxicating liquors, or in such a manner as to be a nuisance to adjacent houses :
- (f) The local authority shall have power to enter the house by any person, authorised by them in writing for the purpose, at all reasonable times for the purpose of ascertaining whether the statutory conditions are complied with.

(2) The proprietor of the house may with the permission of the local authority (which shall not be unreasonably withheld) at any time transfer his interest in the house, but any such transfer shall be made subject to the statutory conditions.

(3) Where default is made in complying with the statutory condition as to residence, the local authority may take possession of the house, and where default is made in complying with any of the other statutory conditions, whether the statutory condition as to residence has or has not been complied with, the local authority may either take possession of the house, or order the sale of the house without taking possession.

(4) In the case of the breach of any condition other than that of punctual payment of the principal and interest of the advance, the authority shall, previously to taking possession or ordering a sale, by notice in writing delivered at the house and addressed to the proprietor, call on the proprietor to comply with the condition, and if the proprietor—

- (a) within fourteen days after the delivery of the notice gives an undertaking in writing to the authority to comply with the notice ; and
- (b) within two months after the delivery of the notice complies therewith, shall not take possession or order a sale, as the case may be.

(5) In the case of the bankruptcy of the proprietor of the house, or in the case of a deceased proprietor's estate being administered in bankruptcy under section one hundred and twenty-five of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, the local authority may either take possession of the house or order the sale of the house without taking possession and shall do so except in pursuance of some arrangement to the contrary with the trustee in bankruptcy.

5.—(1) Where a local authority take possession of a house, all the estate, right, interest, and claim of the proprietor in or to the house shall, subject as in this section mentioned, vest in and become the property of the local authority, and that authority may either retain the house under their own management or sell or otherwise dispose of it as they think expedient.

(2) Where a local authority take possession of a house, they shall, save as hereinafter mentioned, pay to the proprietor either—

(a) such sum as may be agreed upon; or

(b) a sum equal to the value of the interest in the house at the disposal of the local authority, after deducting therefrom the amount of the advance then remaining unpaid and any sum due for interest; and the said value, in the absence of a sale and in default of agreement, shall be settled by a county court judge as arbitrator, or if the Lord Chancellor so authorises, by a single arbitrator appointed by the county court judge, and the Arbitration Act, 1889, shall apply to any such arbitration.

52 & 53 Vict.
c. 49.

(3) The sum so payable to the proprietor if not paid within three months after the date of taking possession shall carry interest at the rate of three per cent. per annum from the date of taking possession.

(4) All costs of or incidental to the taking possession, sale, or other disposal of the house (including the costs of the arbitration, if any) incurred by the local authority, before the amount payable to the proprietor has been settled either by agreement or arbitration, shall be deducted from the amount otherwise payable to the proprietor.

(5) Where the local authority are entitled under this Act to take possession of a house, possession may be recovered (whatever may be the value of the house) by or on behalf of the local authority either under sections one hundred and thirty-eight to one hundred and forty-five of the County Courts Act, 1888, or under the Small Tenements Recovery Act, 1838, as in the cases therein provided for, and in either case may be recovered as if the local authority were the landlord and the proprietor of the house were the tenant.

c. 43;
1 & 2 Vict.
c. 74.

Procedure to ordering sale.

6.—(1) Where a local authority order the sale of a house without taking possession, they shall cause it to be put up for sale by auction, and out of the proceeds of sale retain any sum due to them on account of the interest or principal of the advance, and all costs, charges, and expenses properly incurred by them in or about the sale of the house, and pay over the balance (if any) to the proprietor.

(2) If the local authority are unable at the auction to sell the house for such a sum as will allow of the payment out of the proceeds of sale of the interest and principal of the advance then due to the authority, and the costs, charges, and expenses aforesaid, they may take possession of the house in manner provided by this Act, but shall not be liable to pay any sum to the proprietor.

Suspension of condition as to residence

7.—(1) An advance may be made to an applicant who intends to reside in a house, as if he were resident, if he undertakes to begin his residence therein within such period not exceeding six months from the date of the advance, as the local authority may fix, and in that case the statutory condition requiring residence shall be suspended during that period.

(2) The local authority may allow a proprietor to permit, by letting or otherwise, a house to be occupied as a furnished house by some other person during a period not exceeding four months in the whole in any twelve months, or during absence from the house in the performance of any duty arising from or incidental to any office, service, or employment held or undertaken by him, and the condition requiring residence shall be suspended while the permission continues.

(3) Where the proprietor of a house subject to statutory conditions dies, the condition requiring residence shall be suspended until the expiration of twelve months from the death, or any earlier date at which the personal representatives transfer the ownership or interest of the proprietor in the course of administration; and where the proprietor of any such house becomes bankrupt, or his estate is administered in bankruptcy under section one hundred and twenty-five of the Bankruptcy Act, 1883, and in either case an arrangement under this Act is made with the trustee in bankruptcy, the condition as to residence shall, if the local authority think fit, be suspended during the continuance of the arrangement.

Section 7.

SMALL HOLDINGS AND ALLOTMENTS ACT, 1926.

[16 & 17 GEO. 5, c. 52.]

By sect. 7 (5) of this Act, passed to amend the Small Holdings and Allotments Acts, 1908 to 1919, jurisdiction is given to the county court, on application by the county council, to make an order for possession under sects. 138 to 145 of the County Courts Act, 1888, in cases where the council are entitled to take possession of a small holding under the Act. Such order may be made whatever may be the value of the holding, and as if the county council were the landlord and the owner of the holding were the tenant. Procedure is by plaint and summons.

SOLICITORS ACT, 1860.

By this Act (sect. 26) the penalty of 50*l.* incurred by any person who acts as an attorney or solicitor without being legally qualified can be recovered in a county court.

The county court has also jurisdiction to enforce a solicitor's lien upon property recovered or preserved by proceedings taken in such court.

Practice.—No special procedure.

26. Every person who acts as an attorney or solicitor contrary to the enactment in section 2 of 6 & 7 Vict. c. 73, or who in his own name or in the name of any other person, in anywise acts as a proctor in or with respect to any proceeding in the court of probate or the court for divorce and matrimonial causes, without being duly qualified so to act, shall be deemed guilty of a contempt of the court in which the action, suit, cause, matter, or proceeding in relation to which he so acts is brought, had, or taken, and may be punished accordingly (a), and shall be incapable of maintaining any action or suit for any fee or reward for or in respect of anything done or any disbursement made by him in the course of so acting, and shall, in addition to any other penalty or forfeiture and to any disability to which he may be subject, forfeit and pay for every such offence the sum of 50*l.*, to be recovered, with full costs of suit, by action brought with the sanction of Her Majesty's Attorney-General, in the name of the incorporated law society, in any of the superior courts of law at Westminster, or in any county court, and such penalty shall be applied in like manner as fines imposed for practising without a stamped certificate are now by law applicable.

court of justice to charge property recovered with payment of costs.

28. In every case in which an attorney or solicitor shall be employed to prosecute or defend any suit, matter, or proceeding in any court of justice, it shall be lawful for the court or judge before whom any such suit, matter or proceeding has been heard, or shall be depending, to declare such attorney or solicitor entitled to a charge upon the property recovered or preserved, and upon such declaration being made such attorney or solicitor shall have a charge upon and against and a right to payment out of the property, of whatsoever nature, tenure, or kind the same may be, which shall have been recovered or preserved through the instrumentality of any such attorney or solicitor, for the taxed costs, charges, and expenses of or in reference to such suit, matter, or proceeding; and it shall be lawful for such court or judge to make such order or orders for taxation of and for raising and payment of such costs, charges, and expenses out of the said property as to such court or judge shall appear just and proper; and all conveyances and acts done to defeat, or which shall operate to defeat, such charge or right, shall, unless made to a bonâ fide purchaser for value without notice, be absolutely void and of no effect as against such charge or right: Provided always, that no such order shall be made by any such court or judge in any case in which the right to recover payment of such costs, charges, and expenses is barred by the Statute of Limitations.

No solicitor's lien exists on property or things recovered by mere negotiation and without litigation (Meguerditchian v. Lightbound and Others, (1917) 1 K. B. 297; 86 L. J. K. B. 94. On appeal, (1917) 2 K. B. 298; 86 L. J. K. B. 889; see also Watkins v. Eden, (1920) 2 K. B. 333; (1921) 90 L. J. K. B. 188).

By this Act solicitors are enabled to make binding agreements in writing with their clients for remuneration for their services, either by payment of a gross sum or by commission or percentage, or by salary, or otherwise; but if the agreement is made in respect of litigious business, the amount is not recoverable until the agreement has been examined and allowed by the taxing-officer of a court having power to enforce the agreement.

Jurisdiction as to work done in a county court to whatever amount, is exclusive; and as to work done otherwise than in a county court is exclusive up to 50*l.* (sect. 8).

Disputes as to Agreements for Remuneration.]—No action may be brought upon any such agreement; but every question respecting its validity or effect may be examined and determined, and the agreement enforced or set aside without action, on motion or petition of any person, or the representative of any person, or party to such agreement, being or alleged to be liable to pay, or claiming to be entitled to be paid, the costs, fees, charges, or disbursements in respect of which the agreement is made, by the court in which the business, or any part thereof, was done, or a judge thereof, or if the business was not done in any court, then where the amount payable under the agreement exceeds 50*l.*, by the High Court, and where such amount does not exceed 50*l.*, by the county court which would have jurisdiction in an action upon the agreement (sect. 8).

Practice.]—An application under either sect. 8 or 10 must be by petition entitled in the matter of the Act and of the agreement; the same procedure shall be followed and costs allowed as in any other petition (see Order L. 4, post, p. 2424). As to procedure on petition, see Order XXXVIII., Part I.

3. In the construction of this Act, unless where the context Interpretation-otherwise requires, the words following have the significations of terms. hereinafter respectively assigned to them: that is to say,

The words "attorney or solicitor" mean an attorney, solicitor, or proctor, qualified according to the provisions of the Acts for the time being in force, relating to the admission and qualification of attorneys, solicitors, or proctors:

"Person" includes a corporation:

"Client" includes any person who, as a principal or on behalf of another person, retains or employs, or is about to retain or employ, an attorney or solicitor, and any person who is or may be liable to pay the bill of an attorney or solicitor for any services, fees, costs, charges, or disbursements.

The Act does not apply to accounts between country solicitors and their London agents (Ward v. Eyre, (1880) 15 Ch. D. 130; 49 L. J. Ch. 657).

PART I.

AGREEMENTS BETWEEN ATTORNEYS OR SOLICITORS AND THEIR CLIENTS.

4. An attorney or solicitor may make an agreement in writing with his client respecting the amount and manner of payment for the whole or any part of any past or future services, fees, charges, or disbursements in respect of business done or to be done by such attorney or solicitor, whether as an attorney or solicitor or as an advocate or conveyancer, either by a gross sum, or by commission or percentage, or by salary or otherwise, and either at the same or at a greater or at a less rate as or than the rate at which he would otherwise be entitled to be remunerated, subject to the provisions and conditions in this part of this Act contained: Provided always, that when any such agreement shall be made in respect of business done or to be done in any action at law or suit in equity, the amount payable under the agreement shall not be received by the attorney or solicitor until the agreement has been examined and allowed by a taxing officer of a court having power to enforce the agreement; and if it shall appear to such taxing officer that the agreement is not fair and reasonable he may require the opinion of a court or a judge to be taken thereon by motion or petition, and such court or judge shall have power either to reduce the amount payable under the agreement or to order the agreement to be cancelled and the costs, fees, charges, and disbursements in

The remuneration of attorneys and solicitors may be fixed by agreement.

Amount payable under agreement not to be paid until allowed by taxing officer.

Section 4. respect of the business done to be taxed in the same manner as if no such agreement had been made.

An agreement as to a solicitor's costs in a police court or at quarter sessions may be examined and set aside (In re Jones, (C. A.) (1896) 1 Ch. 222; 65 L. J. Ch. 191); an agreement is binding though signed only by the client (In re Thompson, Ex parte Baylis, (1894) 1 Q. B. 462; 63 L. J. Q. B. 187). An agreement not to charge anything for costs is not within the Act and may be made by parol (Jennings v. Johnson, (1873) L. R. 8 C. P. 425); but an agreement not in writing by a client to pay a lump sum in discharge of past costs is not binding (In re Russell, (1885) 30 Ch. D. 114; 54 L. J. Ch. 948). A formal agreement is not necessary, but the document relied on must be an agreement, not a mere casual letter (Pontifex v. Farnham, (1892) 62 L. J. Q. B. 344). An agreement by which the solicitor is to receive what is equivalent to a tenth part of the property recovered is clearly void (In re Attorney and Solicitors Act, 1870, (1875) 1 Ch. D. 573; 45 L. J. Ch. 45; see also In re A Solicitor, (1912) 1 K. B. 302; 81 L. J. K. B. 245).

6. Such an agreement shall be deemed to exclude any further claim of the attorney or solicitor beyond the terms of the agreement in respect of any services, fees, charges or disbursements in relation to the conduct and completion of the business in reference to which the agreement is made, except such services, fees, charges, or disbursements, if any, as are expressly excepted by the agreement.

Reservation of responsibility for negligence.

7. A provision in any such agreement that the attorney or solicitor shall not be liable for negligence, or that he shall be relieved from any responsibility to which he would otherwise be subject as such attorney or solicitor, shall be wholly void.

Examination and enforcement of agreements.

8. No action or suit shall be brought or instituted upon any such agreement; but every question respecting the validity or effect of any such agreement may be examined and determined, and the agreement may be enforced or set aside, without suit or action, on motion or petition of any person, or the representative of any person, a party to such agreement, or being or alleged to be liable to pay, or being or claiming to be entitled to be paid, the costs, fees, charges, or disbursements in respect of which the agreement is made, by the court in which the business, or any part thereof, was done, or a judge thereof, or if the business was not done in any court, then where the amount payable under the agreement exceeds fifty pounds, by any superior court of law or equity or a judge thereof, and where such amount does not exceed fifty pounds, by the judge of a county court which would have jurisdiction in an action upon the agreement.

Sect. 8 does not apply to an action for damages for refusing to allow the solicitor to do the work, and earn the remuneration (Rees v. Williams, (1875) L. R. 10 Ex. 200; 44 L. J. Ex. 116). An appeal lies to a Divisional Court from the decision of a judge at chambers and not direct to the Court of Appeal, the matter not being one of "practice and procedure" within the meaning of the Supreme Court of Judicature (Consolidation) Act, 1925 (15 & 16 Geo. V. c. 49, s. 31 (3)) (In re Jackson, (1915) 1 K. B. 371; 84 L. J. K. B. 548).

Improper agreements may be set aside.

9. Upon any such motion or petition as aforesaid, if it shall appear to the court or judge that such agreement is in all respects fair and reasonable between the parties, the same may be enforced by such court or judge by rule or order in such manner and subject to such conditions, if any, as to the costs of such motion or petition such court or judge may think fit; but if the terms of such agreement shall not be deemed by the court or judge to be fair and reasonable, the same may be declared void, and the court or judge shall thereupon have power to order such agreement to be given up to be cancelled, and may direct the costs, fees, charges, and disbursements incurred or chargeable in respect of the matters included therein to be taxed in the same manner and according to the same rules as if such agreement had not been made; and the court or judge may also make such order as to the costs of and relating to such motion or petition, and the proceedings thereon, as to the said court or judge may seem fit.

Section 9.

The agreement must be not only fair in the sense that it was understood by the client, but must also be reasonable in amount, having regard to the work done (In re Stuart, Ex parte Cathcart, (1893) 2 Q. B. 201; 63 L. J. Q. B. 623).

10. When the amount agreed for under any such agreement has been paid by or on behalf of the client, or by any person chargeable with or entitled to pay the same, any court or judge having jurisdiction to examine and enforce such an agreement may, upon application by the person who has paid such amount, within twelve months after the payment thereof, if it appears to such court or judge that the special circumstances of the case require the agreement to be re-opened, re-open the same, and order the costs, fees, charges, and disbursements to be taxed, and the whole or any portion of the amount received by the attorney or solicitor to be repaid by him on such terms and conditions as to the court or judge may seem just.

Agreements may be re-opened after payment in special cases.

Where any such agreement is made by the client in the capacity of guardian, or of trustee under a deed or will, or of committee of any person or persons whose estate or property will be chargeable with the amount payable under such agreement, or with any part of such amount, the agreement shall before payment be laid before the taxing officer of a court having jurisdiction to enforce the agreement, and such officer shall examine the same, and may disallow any part thereof, or may require the direction of the court or a judge to be taken thereon by motion or petition; and if in any such case the client pay the whole or any part of the amount payable under the agreement, without the previous allowance of such officer or court or judge as aforesaid, he shall be liable at any time to account to the person whose estate or property is charged with the amount paid, or with any part thereof for the amount so charged; and if in any such case the attorney or solicitor accept payment without such allowance, any court which would have had jurisdiction to enforce the agreement may, if it think fit, order him to refund the amount so received by him under the agreement.

11. Nothing in this Act contained shall be construed to give Prohibition validity to any purchase by an attorney or solicitor of the interest, of certain or any part of the interest, of his client in any suit, action, or other stipulations. contentious proceeding to be brought or maintained, or to give validity to any agreement by which an attorney or solicitor retained or employed to prosecute any suit or action, stipulates for payment only in the event of success in such suit, action, or proceeding.

12. Nothing in this Act contained shall give validity to any disposition, contract, settlement, conveyance, delivery, dealing, Not to give validity to contracts,

Section 12.

&c., which may be void in bankruptcy.

Provision in case of death or incapacity of the attorney.

or transfer which may be void or invalid against a trustee or creditor in bankruptcy, arrangement, or composition, under the provisions of the laws relating to bankruptcy.

13. Where an attorney or solicitor has made an agreement with his client in pursuance of the provisions of this Act, and anything has been done by such attorney or solicitor under the agreement, and before the agreement has been completely performed by him, such attorney or solicitor dies or becomes incapable to act, an application may be made to any court which would have jurisdiction to examine and enforce the agreement by any party thereto, or by the representatives of any such party, and such court shall thereupon have the same power to enforce or set aside such agreement, so far as the same may have been acted upon, as if such death or incapacity had not happened; and such court, if it shall deem the agreement to be in all respects fair and reasonable, may order the amount due in respect of the past performance of the agreement to be ascertained by taxation, and the taxing officer in ascertaining such amount shall have regard so far as may be to the terms of the agreement, and payment of the amount found to be due may be enforced in the same manner as if the agreement had been completely performed by the attorney or solicitor.

As to change of attorney after agreement.

14. If, after any such agreement as aforesaid shall have been made, the client shall change his attorney or solicitor before the conclusion of the business to which such agreement shall relate (which he shall be at liberty to do notwithstanding such agreement), the attorney or solicitor, party to such agreement, shall be deemed to have become incapable to act under the same within the meaning of section thirteen of this Act; and upon any order being made for taxation of the amount due to such attorney or solicitor in respect of the past performance of such agreement, the court shall direct the taxing master to have regard to the circumstance under which such change of attorney or solicitor has taken place; and, upon such taxation, the attorney or solicitor shall not be deemed entitled to the full amount of the remuneration agreed to be paid to him unless it shall appear that there has been no default, negligence, improper delay, or other conduct on his part affording reasonable ground to the client for such change of attorney or solicitor.

Agreements shall be exempt from taxation.

15. Except as in this part of this Act provided, the bill of an attorney or solicitor for the amount due under an agreement made in pursuance of the provisions of this Act shall not be subject to any taxation, nor to the provisions of the Act of the sixth and seventh Victoria, chapter seventy-three, and the Acts amending the same respecting the signing and delivery of the bill of an attorney or solicitor.

COUNTY COURT RULES. ORDER L. RULE 4.

THE SOLICITORS ACT, 1870.

Applications under 33 & 34 Vict. c. 23, ss 8, 10.

An application to the court under the Solicitors Act, 1870, shall be made by petition intituled in the matter of the Act and of the agreement, and the same procedure shall be followed and costs allowed as on any other petition to the court, regard being had to the amount of the subject-matter of the petition.

THE STAMP ACT, 1891.

Section 14.

14.—(1) Upon the production of an instrument chargeable with any duty as evidence in any court of civil judicature in any part of the United Kingdom . . . notice shall be taken by the judge . . . of any omission or insufficiency of the stamp thereon, and if the instrument is one which may legally be stamped after the execution thereof, it may, on payment to the officer of the court whose duty it is to read the instrument . . . of the amount of the unpaid duty, and the penalty payable on stamping the same, and of a further sum of one pound, be received in evidence, saving all just exceptions on other grounds.

(2) The officer . . . receiving the duty and penalty shall give a receipt for the same and make an entry in a book kept for that purpose of the payment and of the amount thereof, and shall communicate to the commissioners the name or title of the proceeding in which, and of the party from whom, he received the duty and penalty, and the date and description of the instrument, and shall pay over to such person as the commissioners may appoint the money received by him for the duty and penalty.

(3) On production to the commissioners of any instrument in respect of which any duty or penalty has been paid, together with the receipt, the payment of the duty and penalty shall be denoted on the instrument.

Unstamped Document.—Where an unstamped or insufficiently stamped document is tendered in evidence, the judge should notice the defect. If the document may be legally stamped after execution, upon the receipt of the registrar for the unpaid duty, the penalty, and a further sum of 1*l.* being produced, it may be admitted, but otherwise if it cannot be legally stamped after execution. No appeal lies from the ruling of a county court judge holding that the stamp on a document is sufficient (Mander v. Ridgway, (1898) 1 Q. B. 501; 67 L. J. Q. B. 335); nor from the admission of an unstamped document without exacting a penalty (Lowe v. Dorling, (C. A.), (1906) 2 K. B. 772; 75 L. J. K. B. 1019). The penalty, or part thereof, is sometimes remitted upon petition to the proper authority.

STANNARIES COURT (ABOLITION) ACT, 1896.

[59 & 60 VICT. c. 45.]

Transfer of Jurisdiction of Stannaries Court.—By sect. 1 of this Act it is provided that the stannaries court is to cease to exist, except for the purpose of continuing and concluding pending proceedings, and that all the jurisdiction and powers of the court are (except as aforesaid) to be transferred to and vested in such of the county courts as the Lord Chancellor may by order direct, and are to be exercised subject to and in accordance with rules of court regulating the procedure in county courts (sub-s. 1).

County Court having Jurisdiction.—By order of the Lord Chancellor the jurisdiction and powers have been transferred to the county courts of Cornwall; subject to special appointment the place of sitting of the judge is to be at Truro, of the registrar, at the court where proceedings may be commenced; pending proceedings were transferred to Truro (see Order, December 16th, 1896). References in any unrepealed statute to mines subject to the jurisdiction of the court of the vice-warden of the stannaries or within his cognizance are to be construed as applying to mines which would have been subject to the jurisdiction of that court if it had not been abolished (sect. 3).

Reference of Disputes to Arbitration.—In the event of any dispute arising between (a) any two or more mining companies, or (b) any mining company and His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales and Duke of Cornwall or any person having any estate or interest in the mine worked by or leased to that company, a judge of a county court exercising the jurisdiction of the stannaries court may, on the application of any party to the dispute, order the matter to be tried before himself, or before an arbitrator agreed upon by the parties, or an officer of the court; the Arbitration Act, 1889, is to apply to any such reference (sect. 4). The repeal effected by the schedule does not affect any proceedings pending in the court or any appeal from it pending at the commencement of the Act (sect. 5).

Nature of Jurisdiction.—With respect to the jurisdiction so transferred, it is sufficient to say that the stannaries court exercised jurisdiction both in equity and at common law. Until comparatively recent years, its equity jurisdiction was confined to questions relating to tin mines, and its common law jurisdiction to suits between tin-miners, but by divers statutory enactments this jurisdiction was extended over all mines or setts of metallic minerals and also over mines or setts in which non-metallic, as well as metallic, minerals are worked for in the same mine (see Acts 1836 and 1855).

Equity Jurisdiction.—The original equity jurisdiction of the court, though not strictly coterminous with the powers of the High Court, is believed to be an exclusive jurisdiction, and has been generally exercised for the purpose of enforcing the custom of cost-book; this jurisdiction has been at various times enlarged by statute. Hitherto, the county courts held within the district of the stannaries court have had no concurrent jurisdiction in equity cases within the jurisdiction of the latter court.

Common Law Jurisdiction.—The common law jurisdiction of the court in personal actions is substantially concurrent with that of the ordinary courts of law, except that under various royal charters confirming its common law jurisdiction the court appears to have had exclusive jurisdiction over tanners actually working in the mines; otherwise the stannaries court and the county court have hitherto exercised concurrent jurisdiction in common law matters.

For information as to the stannaries court and its jurisdiction, see Batten on the Stannaries Act, 1869.

Practice is governed by Order LI. (post, p. 2429), which deals separately with matters within the limits of county court jurisdiction and actions and matters beyond such limits.

Winding-up.—The stannaries court in the matter of a company for working mines within the stannaries, and not shown to be actually working mines, or to be engaged in any other undertaking beyond those limits, has no limit to its jurisdiction in winding-up matters (see Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, ss. 130 (4), 280). In Dunbar v. Harvey, C. A., (1913) 2 Ch. 530; 82 L. J. Ch. 452; 109 L. T. 285, a partnership of two formed to work metalliferous mines in Cornwall held a company, and that the county courts of Cornwall now have exclusive jurisdiction to wind up such a company. So even though the memorandum did not limit the company to working in Cornwall (Radium Ore Mines, Ltd., C. A., (1913) 110 L. T. 57; 109 L. T. 707).

Jurisdiction.—By sect. 4 of this Act, should any difference arise between the Postmaster-General and the authority having the control over streets and public roads, the difference must be referred to the police or stipendiary magistrate having jurisdiction within the district, and if there be no such magistrate, to the judge of the county court for the district.

Practice is governed by Order L. r. 11 (post, p. 2436), which points out how the application to the judge is to be initiated, and how it is to be prosecuted.

Appeal from the award of the judge lies to the Railway Commissioners; either party to the reference, if dissatisfied with the award, may within twenty-one days, require that the difference be referred to the said Commissioners (sect. 4). Postmaster-General v. Hutchings, (1916) 85 L. J. K. B. 1008.

In the National Telephone Co. v. Tunbridge Wells Corporation, (1901) 48 W. R. 686; 83 L. T. 525; (C. A.), 85 L. T. 368, it was held that a licensee from the Postmaster-General cannot exercise any powers under sect. 4 of the 1878 Act without the consent in London of the county council, and in any urban sanitary district outside London, of the urban sanitary authority and elsewhere of the county council, and that the licensee is subject to any terms and conditions which such authority may attach to its consent without appeal; and that prohibition will lie against a judge attempting to act as referee.

Note. By the Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919 (9 & 10 Geo. 5, c. 100), s. 21, the consent of the local authority is not required for the erection of overhead wires of an electric line, if the Board of Trade has given consent to such erection, but the Board of Trade before giving consent must give the local authority an opportunity of being heard.

Costs to be taxed under column B, unless the judge otherwise directs.

Provided always, that in case either the Postmaster-General or the body or person between whom the difference has arisen shall be dissatisfied with the award or decision of such magistrate, judge, or sheriff, the party so dissatisfied may within twenty-one days after such award or decision, require, by a notice in writing given to the other party, that the difference shall be referred to the Railway Commissioners.

(3) The applicant shall deliver to the registrar with the application, particulars, and affidavit, a copy thereof for the judge, and a copy for each respondent to be served.

(4) On the filing of the application the registrar shall fix the hearing thereof before the judge for any court appointed to be held within twenty-eight days from the date of the application, but the date of hearing shall be so fixed as to allow the copies of the application, particulars, and affidavit to be served on the respondents ten clear days at least before the date so fixed.

(5) If there is no such court available, the registrar shall send notice of the application to the judge, who shall, as soon as conveniently may be, appoint a day for the hearing of the application. Such day shall be so fixed as to allow the copies of the application, particulars, and affidavit to be served on the respondents ten clear days at least before the date so fixed.

(6) On the day for the hearing of the application being fixed, the registrar shall give or send by post notice in writing to the applicant, stating the place at which and the day and hour on and at which the application will be heard, and shall issue the copies of the application, particulars, and affidavit, under the seal of the court, for service on the respondents, together with notices signed by the registrar himself and under the seal of the court, stating the place at which and the day and hour on and at which the application will be heard, and that if the respondents do not attend in person or by their solicitors such order will be made and proceedings taken as the judge may think just and expedient.

(7) The copies and notices mentioned in the last preceding paragraph shall be served on each respondent ten clear days at least before the day fixed for the hearing, unless such respondent, or his solicitor on his behalf, agrees to accept shorter service.

(8) Such copies and notices may be served—

- (a) by a bailiff of a court ;
- or, at the request of the applicant or his solicitor,
- (b) by the applicant, or some clerk or servant in his permanent and exclusive employ ; or
- (c) by the applicant's solicitor, or a solicitor acting as agent for such solicitor, or some person in the employ of either of them.

(9) Service may be effected either in accordance with the rules as to service of default summonses, or by registered post.

(10) Where service is effected otherwise than by a bailiff, a copy of the document served, with the date and mode of service indorsed thereon, shall within three clear days next after the date of service, or such further time as may be allowed by the registrar of the court issuing such document, be delivered or transmitted to such registrar by the applicant or his solicitor. The applicant or his solicitor shall also deliver or transmit to the registrar an affidavit of the service of such document, according to the form in the Appendix, with such variations as the circumstances of the case may require.

(11) Any affidavit intended to be used by any respondent on the hearing of the application shall be filed, and a copy thereof

Rule 11. — shall be served on the applicant four clear days at least before the hearing of the application, or, if short service of the notice of the application has been accepted, in such reasonable time before the hearing as the date of service will allow.

Attendance for cross-examination. (12) A deponent to an affidavit shall on notice from the other side attend the hearing for cross-examination, and witnesses may be orally examined on hearing of the application in the same manner as on the hearing of an action.

Procedure on application. (13) Subject to the provisions of sect. 4 of the Telegraph Act, 1878, and the enactments therein referred to, the procedure on an application shall be the same as the procedure in an action commenced in the court by plaint and summons in the ordinary way, and determined by the judge without a jury; and the statutory provisions and rules for the time being in force relating to such actions shall, with the necessary modifications, apply to such application accordingly; and in the application of such provisions and rules the application shall be deemed to be a summons with particulars annexed, the day fixed for proceeding with the application shall be deemed to be the return day, and the applicant and respondent shall be deemed to be plaintiff and defendant respectively.

Award. (14) The award of the judge shall be prepared by the registrar and signed by the judge, and shall be sealed, filed, and served on all persons affected thereby, and shall be enforceable in the same manner as a judgment or order of the court.

(15) The judge shall have power at any time to correct any clerical mistake or error in such award arising from any accidental slip or omission.

Costs. (16) Costs awarded by the judge shall be taxed on such scale as the judge shall direct, and in default of such direction shall be taxed under column B.

THE TITHE ACT, 1891.

[54 & 55 VICT. c. 8.]

THE TITHE RENTCHARGE (RATES) ACT, 1899.

[62 & 63 VICT. c. 17.]

Jurisdiction Exclusive.]—Payment of tithe rentcharge can be enforced against the owner by proceedings in the county court, and in no other manner (sect. 2, sub-s. 1; R. v. Paterson, (1895) 1 Q. B. 31; 64 L. J. Q. B. 20). The court having jurisdiction is the court of the district in which the lands, or any part thereof, out of which the tithe rentcharge issues, are situate (ib.).

To be paid by the Owner.]—By virtue of this Act tithe rentcharge is in all cases to be paid by the owner of the lands (sect. 1, sub-s. 1), if it becomes payable after the passing of the Act (sect. 10, sub-s. 1).

The Act imposes no personal liability on occupier or owner in respect of tithe, and can only be enforced by distress or the appointment of a receiver (see post, p. 2440). No judgment summons can issue for non-payment of tithe. See sect. 2 (9).

Contracts made after the Act for payment of tithe rentcharge by the occupier are void, as are contracts to reimburse the landlord money paid by him for tithe rentcharge (sect. 1, sub-s. 1; Ludlow v. Pike, (1904) 1 K. B. 531; 73 L. J. K. B. 274, followed in Tuff v. Guild of Drapers, (1913) 1

K. B. 40; 82 L. J. K. B. 174); subsisting contracts bind to this extent, that the occupier will be bound to repay to the owner the amount which he properly pays. The owner may in such case enforce the repayment by distress in accordance with the Tithe Act, 1836 (sect. 1, sub-s. 3).

Time for taking Proceedings.]—Proceedings must be commenced within two years from the date on which the tithe rentcharge becomes payable (sect. 10 (2)), but not until it has been in arrear for not less than three months (sect. 2 (1)).

As tithe rentcharge is payable half-yearly, on the 1st day of April and the 1st day of October in each year (Tithe Act, 1925, sect. 2), any application for the recovery of two years' arrears must therefore be filed during the second three months of the current half-year.

A payment made to the tithe-owner under a mistake of fact may be recovered after two years, notwithstanding that the tithe-owner meanwhile has lost his remedy (Durrant v. Ecclesiastical Commissioners, (1880) 6 Q. B. D. 234).

Practice.]—To enforce payment the procedure is special, and is governed by the Act and rules. The tithe-owner must apply to the registrar, and file with him a notice of application with as many copies as there are persons to be served (Rule 2; Forms 1, 2, 3). If he has several applications to make, they should be filed at the same time (Rule 52). The registrar must fix a day for the hearing, and cause one of the above copies and a prescribed notice to be served on the owner (Rule 4, Form 4). Service may apparently be made in one of the modes prescribed by Rules 44 to 50; and must be made at least ten clear days before the day appointed for the hearing (Rules 4, 54).

When Occupier liable to repay Owner.]—When the occupier is liable to repay the owner, in the cases before mentioned, the landowner is bound to give notice of such liability to the tithe-owner. If he fails to do so he cannot afterwards recover from the occupier without a special certificate from the court (sect. 2, sub-s. 6; Rules 36, 37, 38; Forms 28, 29, 30; see Hughes v. Rimmer, (1893) 2 Q. B. 314). If the occupier's liability notice has been served on the tithe-owner before he applies to the county court, he must file with his notice of application a copy of the occupier's liability notice (Rule 3).

The registrar must then cause the occupier to be served in the same manner as the landowner with the notice of application, and also with the prescribed notice (Form 4).

If the tithe-owner is served with the occupier's liability notice after filing his application, he must file a copy with the registrar, who must then cause notices as aforesaid to be served on the occupier (Rule 6). If filed too late for ten days' notice to be given to the occupier, the registrar must appoint another day for the hearing, and give notice to the tithe-owner and the landowner (Rule 7; Form 7).

Limitation of Time.—Tithe rent charge is apparently "rent" within the meaning of the Real Property Limitation Act, 1833 (3 & 4 Wm. IV. c. 27) (Asplen v. Pullin, (1917) 1 K. B. 187; 86 L. J. K. B. 237). Its recovery is barred if unpaid for sixty years (Ib. sect. 29).

When Owner of Lands Unknown.]—Where the tithe-owner states in his notice of application that he does not know the landowner, or if service cannot be effected by post on the person named as landowner, proceedings may be taken without naming him (sect. 2, sub-s. 7; Rule 13).

Additional Service.]—If the tithe-owner states in his notice of application that additional service is required, it may be made as prescribed (Rules 14, 48).

Applications by Agents.]—The agent of the tithe-owner may apply on his behalf although not a solicitor. If required, he must prove his authority (sect. 5, sub-s. 1; Rule 12).

Notice of Opposition.—Order by Default.]—A respondent intending to oppose must, five clear days, at least, before the hearing, file a notice with the registrar, who must send notice to the applicant on the same day (Rules

5, 54; Forms 5, 6). If no notice is given, neither the attendance of the applicant or evidence will be required, and the court may make an order as hereinafter mentioned forthwith (Rules 8, 56); this order may, under the general or special directions of the judge, be made by the registrar (Rule 56).

If the respondent appears and desires to oppose, although he has filed no notice of opposition, the court may on terms fix another day for the hearing to allow the notice of opposition to be given (Rule 8).

Leave to Oppose.—If the respondent files notice of opposition too late, but before an order has been made, the court may, on terms, give him leave to oppose, and fix another day for the hearing, notice of which must be given to all parties (Rule 9).

Hearing.—When no Appearance.—Where notice of opposition has been given but the respondent does not appear, the application may be granted without proof of applicant's title, with costs (Rule 10).

When Respondent Appears.—If the respondent appears, the case will be heard in the ordinary way, and such evidence must be called and taken as is necessary (Rule 57). The proceeding not being commenced by plaint is a "matter," and the evidence ought, it is believed, to be given viva voce.

Grounds of Opposition.—Grounds of opposition not mentioned in the notice of opposition will not be entertained, except on such terms as to adjournment, payment into court, costs or otherwise as the court thinks fit (Rule 11).

Order.—Where Land not Occupied by Owner.—If the lands are not occupied by the owner, the order must find the amount due, and appoint a receiver of the rents and profits (sect. 2, sub-ss. 1, 3; Form 8).

If it appears that the lands are held at one rent together with lands in another parish, the court must apportion it. Notice must be given by the registrar, and then objections to the apportionment may be made to and heard by the court (Rules 25, 26, 27, 28; Forms 18 to 21).

The person appointed receiver must, in the absence of special reason to the contrary, be the person, if any, named by the applicant in his notice of application. If none is named, or the court does not appoint him, the court must appoint a fit and proper person (Rule 17).

When Lands Occupied by Owner.—If the lands, i.e., the whole of the lands (Ecclesiastical Commissioners v. Uppjohn, (1913) 1 K. B. 501; 82 L. J. K. B. 435) are occupied by the owner, the court, instead of appointing a receiver, must appoint an officer of the court to distrain in accordance with sect. 85 of the Tithe Act, 1836 (sect. 2, sub-s. 2; Form 9). If he finds that there is not sufficient distress, he must report to the applicant and to the court. The applicant's remedy will then be to obtain possession of the lands under sect. 82 of the Tithe Act, 1836 (sect. 2, sub-s. 2; Rule 24; Form 17). An order for sale cannot be made (Bailey v. Badham, (1888) 30 Ch. D. 84).

When the fact that the owner is occupier is discovered by a receiver after appointment he must report the fact to the court (Form 12). The court may then appoint an officer to distrain as above. The receiver must be appointed, unless for special reason the court otherwise orders. The order must be suspended for at least ten days (Rule 23; Form 13).

Notice of the order must be given to the alleged owner, and he may, by notice filed with the registrar within the period of suspension, object to the order. The registrar must then fix a day for the hearing of the objection, and give notice to the owner. He must also suspend the order until the hearing (Rule 23; Forms 14, 15, 16).

When Lands let at Insufficient Rent.—If the receiver discovers that the lands are let at such a rent as will not enable him to recover the requisite sum from the occupier, he must make a report to the court (Rule 29). The court, if satisfied that there is a prima facie case, may give notices to owner and occupier to appear in not less than ten clear days (Rule 30).

On the return-day the court may appoint an officer to distrain. The receiver must be appointed in the absence of any special reasons (Rule 31).

Receivers.—Security.]—Any receiver, not a permanent officer of the court, must give such security, if any, as the court directs (Rule 17). Subject to the special rules, the court will have the same power over receivers as in ordinary cases, but the court may not order a sale of land (sect. 2, sub-s. 4).

Moneys received by the receiver must be paid into court after certain deductions (Rule 21), and the registrar must pay them out to the applicant until his claim is satisfied (Rule 22).

The receiver must give notice to the occupier of his appointment, and if the occupier refuses to attorn to him, may obtain an order from the court authorising him to distrain in the name of the owner (Rule 18; Forms 10, 11).

Remission of Tithe.]—Where the court is satisfied that if the sum claimed for tithe is paid, the total amount paid for twelve months will exceed two-thirds of the annual value of the lands, it must order the remission of the excess, and it will not then be recoverable. This provision applies only to lands used solely for agricultural or pastoral purposes, or for the growth of timber or underwood (sect. 8; Forms 26, 27).

Recovery of Rates on Tithes.]—If the ordinary methods of recovery of rates on tithes fail, the collector may apply to the court for an order for payment by the owner of the land out of the tithe payable by him. The order may be enforced by appointment of a receiver or of an officer to distrain, as the case may be (sect. 6; Rules 40, 41; Form 35).

Redemption Money.]—Sect. 10, sub-s. 4, of the Act applies to redemption money, and therefore the county court has, under sect. 2, jurisdiction to make an order for the recovery of the consideration money and expenses incident on the redemption of tithes (Reg. v. Paterson, (1895) 1 Q. B. 31; 64 L. J. Q. B. 20).

Appeal.]—An appeal lies to the High Court in the same manner as in other cases for error in point of law or equity, or in the admission or rejection of evidence. The right of appeal is not limited by any condition as to amount, and is conferred upon "any party in any action or matter under the Act," who is aggrieved (see sect. 120, County Courts Act, 1888, and sect. 7 of Tithe Act, 1891, post, p. 2445).

Costs and Fees.]—No costs of solicitor or witness will be allowed where the amount claimed is paid without further proceedings (sect. 5 (2)). As to costs, see sect. 5, sub-s. 2; Rules 42, 43, 52; fees may not exceed those named in the schedule to the Act (post, p. 2447); fees, charges, and expenses incidental to any distress under the Act are the same as are payable under the Law of Distress Amendment Act, 1888 (ante, p. 1999) (sect. 2 (8)).

All costs must be paid by or apportioned between the parties as the court thinks just (Rule 42); costs must be taxed by the registrar, and subject to the Act and rules, the ordinary scales as well as allowances to witnesses will have effect (Rule 43).

54 & 55 VICT. c. 8.

1.—(1) Tithe rentcharge as defined by this Act issuing out of any lands shall be payable by the owner of the lands, notwithstanding any contract between him and the occupier of such lands, and any contract made between an occupier and owner of lands, after the passing of this Act, for the payment of the tithe rentcharge by the occupier shall be void.

(2) Where the occupier is liable under any contract made before the passing of this Act to pay the tithe rentcharge, then he shall cease to be bound by that part of his contract, but he shall be liable to pay to the owner such sum as the owner has properly paid on account of the tithe rentcharge which such occupier is liable under his said contract to pay, exclusive of any costs incurred or paid by the owner in respect of such tithe rentcharge, and every receipt given for such sum shall state expressly that the sum paid is in respect of that tithe rentcharge: Provided that Liability of owner to pay tithe rentcharge, and modification of contracts with tenants.

Section 1. where the lands, out of which any tithe rentcharge issues, are occupied by several occupiers who have contracted to pay the tithe rentcharge, any of such occupiers shall be liable only to pay such proportion of the sum paid by the owner of the lands on account of that tithe rentcharge as the rateable value of the lands occupied by him bears to the rateable value of the whole of the lands occupied by such occupiers.

(3) Such sum shall be recoverable from the occupier by distress in like manner as is provided by sections eighty-one and eighty-five of the Act of the session of the sixth and seventh years of the reign of King William the Fourth, chapter seventy-one, and the enactments amending those sections, and not otherwise.

Recovery of tithe rent-charge
county court.

2.—(1) Where any sum due on account of tithe rentcharge issuing out of any lands is in arrear for not less than three months, the person entitled to such sum may, whatever is the amount, apply to the county court of the district in which the lands or any part thereof are situate, and the county court, after such service on the owner of the lands as may be prescribed, and after hearing such owner if he appears and desires to be heard, may order that the said sum, or such part thereof as appears to the court to be due, be, together with the costs, recovered in manner provided by this Act, and tithe rentcharge as defined by this Act shall not be recovered in any other manner.

(2) Where it is shown to the court that the lands are occupied by the owner thereof, the order shall be executed by the appointment by the court of an officer who, subject to the direction of the court, shall have the like powers of distraint for the recovery of the sum ordered to be paid as are conferred by the Tithe Acts on the owner of a tithe rentcharge for the recovery of arrears of tithe rentcharge, and no greater or other powers; and if there is no sufficient distress the person entitled to the sum ordered to be recovered may proceed to obtain possession of the lands under section eighty-two of the Tithe Act, 1836.

6 & 7 Will. IV.
c. 71.

This sub-section applies only when the owner is in occupation of the whole of the lands (Ecclesiastical Commissioners v. Uppjohn, (1913) 1 K. B. 501; 82 L. J. K. B. 435). Compare Peed v. King. (1894) 11 T. L. R. 18.

(3) In any other case the order shall be executed by the appointment by the court of a receiver of the rents and profits of the lands, and of any other lands which would be liable to be distrained upon for the tithe rentcharge to which the order refers under the provisions of section eighty-five of the Tithe Act, 1836, and where any of such lands are held at one rent together with other lands in another parish, the court shall apportion the rent between the said lands and the lands in the other parish in proportion to their rateable value, in which case the payment of such apportioned rent by the occupier to the receiver shall in every respect, as between the occupier and the owner of the lands, be deemed to be a payment on account of the total rent payable to the owner of such lands.

(4) Subject to the prescribed regulations, the county court shall have the same powers over receivers as in any other case, and may confer on the person appointed receiver any powers which the court can confer upon persons appointed receivers, but the court shall not have power to order the sale of lands.

(5) Any sum ordered by the court under this section to be recovered shall be payable by a trustee in bankruptcy, sheriff, or officer of a court who is in possession of the lands, in like manner as if it were tithe rentcharge recoverable under the Tithe Acts.

Section 2.

(6) Where the occupier of the lands out of which the tithe rentcharge issues is liable under any contract made before the passing of this Act to pay the tithe rentcharge, and is consequently liable by virtue of this Act to pay the amount thereof to the owner of the lands, the owner of the lands shall serve notice of such liability on the owner of the tithe rentcharge, and thereupon, before an order under this section is made, there shall be such service on the occupier in addition to the owner as may be prescribed, and a hearing of such occupier if he appears and desires to be heard. Any owner of the lands who fails to serve such notice as aforesaid on the owner of the tithe rentcharge, shall not be entitled to recover from the occupier any sum which he has paid on account of tithe rentcharge as aforesaid, unless and until he has, after notice to the occupier of his application for the same, obtained from the county court a certificate that there was good and sufficient cause for the failure to give such notice, and that the occupier has not been prejudiced thereby.

(7) Rules under this Act may regulate the procedure, practice and costs under this Act in county courts, and may direct what service shall be good service for the purposes of this Act on the owner or occupier of any lands or the owner of any tithe rentcharge, and may provide that, if the owner of any lands is not known, any proceeding under this Act may be taken against the owner of the lands without naming the person who is the owner.

(8) The fees payable on the proceedings under this section shall not exceed those set forth in the schedule to this Act, and the fees, charges, and expenses in or incidental to any distress under this Act shall be the same as are for the time being payable under the Law of Distress Amendment Act, 1888.

c. 21.

(9) Nothing in this Act shall impose or constitute any personal liability upon any occupier or owner of lands for the payment of any tithe rentcharge, or any other sum recoverable or payable under this Act, and the court shall not, by virtue of this Act, or of the County Courts Act, 1888, have any power to imprison any such occupier or owner by reason only of the non-payment of such tithe rentcharge or other sum, and shall in any other case have no other or greater powers of fine or imprisonment than are conferred by the County Courts Act, 1888.

51 & 52 Vict.

c. 43.

3.—(1) The Lord Chancellor may, after consultation with the rule committee of county court judges, make rules for carrying this Act into effect, and for regulating, providing, and prescribing any matter authorised by this Act to be regulated, provided, or prescribed by rules under this Act. In framing such rules regard shall be had to making the procedure as simple and inexpensive as is practicable.

(2) Every rule under this Act shall be laid before each House of Parliament within forty days next after it is made, if Parliament is then sitting, or, if not, within forty days after the commencement of the then next ensuing session, and if an address is presented to Her Majesty by either House of Parliament within the next subsequent forty days on which the said House shall have sat,

Section 3. — praying that any such rule may be annulled, Her Majesty may thereupon, by Order in Council, annul the same; and the rule so annulled shall thenceforth become void and of no effect, but without prejudice to the validity of any proceedings which may in the meantime have been taken under the same.

Lands occupied rent free, etc.

4. Where a receiver appointed under this Act of the rents and profits of any lands satisfies the county court that the lands are let on such terms as not to reserve a rent sufficient to enable the receiver to recover from the owner thereof the sum ordered to be recovered, the court, after such service on the owner and occupier of the lands as may be prescribed, and after hearing such owner and occupier if they appear and desire to be heard, may direct that the order for such recovery shall be executed as if the occupier were the owner of the lands: Provided that any such occupier shall be entitled in addition to any other remedy, unless he would have been liable to pay the tithe rentcharge under any contract made before the passing of this Act, to deduct from any sums at any time becoming due from him to the landlord under whom he holds, any amount which shall have been recovered from him under this section in respect of tithe rentcharge or costs, with interest thereon at the rate of four per centum per annum: Provided further, that such occupier shall be entitled, notwithstanding anything in this Act, to recover from such landlord by action at law any such amount which shall have been recovered from him under this section as aforesaid as money paid on the account of such landlord.

Restrictions
as to costs.

5.—(1) An application to a county court for an order under this Act may be made on behalf of the tithe-owner by his agent, although not a solicitor.

(2) On any application to a county court for an order under this Act, no costs either of a solicitor or of a witness shall be allowed in any case where the amount claimed is paid without further proceedings, nor where notice of intention to apply for time to pay the tithe-owner's claim has been given (except in cases where costs could be allowed by the court on a judgment summons), and when notice of opposition has been given within the prescribed time, the costs of a solicitor shall only be allowed for work done subsequent to the notice.

owner of
charge.

6.—(1) Any rate to which tithe rentcharge is subject shall be assessed on and may be recovered from the owner of the tithe rentcharge, in the like manner and by the like process as on and from any occupying ratepayer; and so much of any Act as authorises any rate on tithe rentcharge to be assessed on or recovered from the occupier of any lands out of which the tithe rentcharge issues is hereby repealed (a).

(2) If the collector of the rate satisfies the county court that he is unable to recover in manner aforesaid any rate assessed on the owner of any tithe rentcharge, the court may, after such service on the owners of the tithe rentcharge, and of the lands

(a) By the Tithe Rentcharge (Rates) Act, 1899 (62 & 63 Vict. c. 17), s. 1, the owner of tithe rentcharge attached to a benefice is liable to pay only one half of any rate to which the Act applies, which is assessed on him as owner of that tithe rentcharge, the other half to be paid by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue.

Section 6.

out of which the tithe rentcharge issues, as may be prescribed, and after hearing such owners, if they appear and desire to be heard, order the owner of the lands to pay such tithe rentcharge to the collector until the amount of the rate, and any costs allowed by the court, are fully paid; and the order may be executed as if it were an order under this Act for the payment of a sum due on account of the tithe rentcharge.

(3) The court may, if satisfied that the circumstances justify it, make such order as aforesaid in respect of any future rate, either generally or during the time limited by the order.

(4) The expression "rate" in this section means a poor rate, highway rate, general district rate, borough rate, and every other rate assessed on an owner of tithe rentcharge by a public authority for public purposes; and the expression "collector" means the overseer, surveyor of highways, rate-collector, or other person authorised, for the time being, to collect the rate.

7. If any party in any action or matter under this Act shall be dissatisfied with the determination or direction of the judge of the county court in point of law or equity, or upon the admission or rejection of any evidence, the party aggrieved by the judgment, direction, decision, or order of the judge may appeal from the same to the High Court, in such manner and subject to such conditions as may be for the time being provided by the rules of the Supreme Court regulating the procedure on appeals from inferior courts to the High Court. Power of appeal.

8.—(1) Where a sum is claimed on account of tithe rentcharge issuing out of any lands, and the county court is satisfied that, if the sum claimed is paid, the total amount paid on account of the tithe rentcharge for the period of twelve months next preceding the day on which the sum claimed became payable, will exceed two-thirds of the annual value of the lands as ascertained and entered in the assessment for the purpose of Schedule B. to the Income Tax Act, 1853, or as certified as herein-after mentioned, the court shall order the remission of so much, whether the whole or part of the sum claimed, as is equal to the excess, and the amount so ordered to be remitted shall not be recoverable; and if the court is satisfied that neither such remission, nor the liability thereto, has been taken into account in estimating the rateable value of the tithe rentcharge, the court may remit such amount of any then current rate assessed on the owner of the tithe rentcharge as appears to the court to be proportionate to the amount of the remission of tithe rentcharge. Remission of tithe rentcharge when exceeding two-thirds annual value of land.
16 & 17 Vict c. 34.

(2) Where the lands out of which any tithe rentcharge issues are assessed for the purposes of the said Schedule B. together with other lands, the surveyor of taxes for the parish in which the lands are so assessed, on the application of the owner or occupier of the lands, shall divide the annual value in such assessment between the lands out of which any tithe rentcharge issues and the other lands, and give notice of the annual value of the lands as determined on such division to the applicant and to the owner of the tithe rentcharge; and if either of them is dissatisfied with the annual value so determined, he may appeal to the general commissioners of income tax for the division in which the lands are assessed, and those commissioners, after due notice to and hearing the parties or their agents if any of them wishes to be so heard,

Section 8. shall finally determine the proper division of the annual value; and the annual value of lands so determined as aforesaid shall, for the purposes of this section, be the annual value of the lands as ascertained for the purpose of the said Schedule B.

(3) For the purposes of this section the owner of tithe rentcharge shall have the same right of appeal as the owner of lands, whether under the enactments relating to the said assessment or under this section.

(4) If in any case the annual value of any lands is not ascertained and entered in the assessment for the purpose of the said Schedule B., the general commissioners of income tax for the division in which the lands are situate shall, on the application of the owner or occupier of the lands, ascertain the annual value of the lands for the purpose of the said Schedule B., and inform the applicant of the same.

(5) The commissioners of taxes shall on demand and payment of one shilling give a certificate of the amount of the annual value of any lands under this section.

6 & 7 Will. IV.
c. 71.

(6) Where it appears from any award that a special apportionment has been made in pursuance of section fifty-eight of the Tithe Act, 1836, whereby tithe rentcharge has been charged specially upon certain closes of land in different proportions, and to the exclusion of certain of them, the court shall not grant a remission under this section unless satisfied that the applicant would have been entitled to such remission if no such special apportionment had been made.

COSTS.

42. Subject to the provisions of the Act and these rules, all costs of and incident to any application to the court or any proceeding under the Act or these rules shall be paid by or apportioned between the parties to the application in such manner as the court thinks just, and, in the absence of any special direction, shall abide the event of the application.

Substituted service by order of court.

48. Where service is required under these rules to be made on an owner of lands through the occupier or through the person receiving the rents and profits of the lands for or on behalf of the owner, the registrar shall send a copy of the document to be served by registered letter through the post to that occupier or person, having previously endorsed on the copy a request to that occupier or person to send the same to the person to whom he pays rent or for whom he receives rent, as the case may be.

TRADE UNION ACT, 1913.

[2 & 3 GEO. 5, c. 30.]

Sect. 3, sub-s. 1, places restrictions on any trade union (defined by sect. 2) from applying the funds of the union to certain political purposes; also provides for making rules, to be approved by the Registrar of Friendly Societies, with that object. Sect. 3, sub-s. 2, provides for any complaint of a breach of these rules being heard and remedied by an order of the Registrar of Friendly Societies, final as between the parties to the dispute, and which order on being recorded in the county court can be enforced as an order of that Court.

Practice is governed by Order XLII, post, p. 2476.

Registrar's duties are defined by m. 3—6.

Judge's duty is confined to a discretion as to the costs of the proceedings for enforcement of the order.

Section 3.

Restriction on application of funds for certain political purposes.

- (a) That any payments in the furtherance of those objects are to be made out of a separate fund (in this Act referred to as the political fund of the union); and
- (b) That a member who is exempt from the obligation to contribute to the political fund of the union shall not be excluded from any benefits of the union, or placed in any respect either directly or indirectly under any disability or at any disadvantage as compared with other members of the union (except in relation to the control or management of the political fund) by reason of his being so exempt, and that contribution to the political fund of the union shall not be made a condition for admission to the union.

(2) If any member of a trade union alleges that he is aggrieved by a breach of any rule made in pursuance of this section, he may complain to the Registrar of Friendly Societies, and the Registrar of Friendly Societies, after giving the complainant and any representative of the union an opportunity of being heard, may, if he considers that such a breach has been committed, make such order for remedying the breach as he thinks just under the circumstances; and any such order of the Registrar shall be binding and conclusive on all parties without appeal and shall not be removable into any court of law or restrainable by injunction, and on being recorded in the county court, may be enforced as if it had been an order of the county court. In the application of this provision to Scotland the sheriff court shall be substituted for the county court, and "interdict" shall be substituted for "injunction."

(3) [Sets out the political objects to which this section applies.]

[15 GEO. V. c. 19.]

Jurisdiction.—By sect. 67 of the County Courts Act, 1888, jurisdiction was conferred on county courts under the Trustee and Trustees Relief Acts then in force, in cases in which the trust estate or fund to which the action or matter relates did not exceed in amount or value 500*l*. The Trustee Act, 1893, practically repealed the whole of those Acts, but this Act is now repealed by the Trustee Act, 1925, which consolidates the law relating to trustees. Sect. 67 (1) of the new Act provides that “the court” in the Act means the High Court, and also the Chancery Courts of the County Palatine of Lancaster and Durham, or the county court, where those courts respectively have jurisdiction. The effect of these two sections, assisted by sect. 38 of the Interpretation Act, 1889, is that county courts can exercise all the powers of the court under the Trustee Act, 1925, where the trust estate or fund does not exceed 500*l*. in amount or value.

Practice.—The court in which to take proceedings is determined by sect. 75 of the County Courts Act, 1888, to be that within the district of which the persons making the application or any of them reside; the proceedings are governed by Order XXXVIII., ante, Part I. All matters, except those under sect. 63 of the 1925 Act, shall be commenced by filing a petition (Rule 1): but in those under sect. 63 an affidavit containing particulars mentioned in Rule 9 shall be filed with the registrar.

Costs.—In proceedings under sects. 67 and 70 of the County Courts Act, 1888, or under the equitable jurisdiction of the court, the judge may order the costs to be taxed under column B, where the subject-matter does not exceed 20*l*. See Ord. LIII., r. 12.

Appeal for error in point of law or equity lies under sect. 120 of the County Courts Act, 1888.

POWERS OF THE COURT.

Appointment of New Trustees.

Power of court to appoint new trustees.

41.—(1) The court may, whenever it is expedient to appoint a new trustee or new trustees, and it is found inexpedient difficult or impracticable so to do without the assistance of the court, make an order appointing a new trustee or new trustees either in substitution for or in addition to any existing trustee or trustees, or although there is no existing trustee.

In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing provision, the court may make an order appointing a new trustee in substitution for a trustee who is convicted of felony, or is a lunatic or a defective, or is a bankrupt, or is a corporation which is in liquidation or has been dissolved.

4 & 5 Geo. 5,
c. 47.

(2) The power conferred by this section may, in the case of a deed of arrangement within the meaning of the Deeds of Arrangement Act, 1914, be exercised either by the High Court or by the court having jurisdiction in bankruptcy in the district in which the debtor resided or carried on business at the date of the execution of the deed.

(3) An order under this section, and any consequential vesting order or conveyance, shall not operate further or otherwise as a discharge to any former or continuing trustee than an appointment of new trustees under any power for that purpose contained in any instrument would have operated.

- (4) Nothing in this section gives power to appoint an executor or administrator. Section 41.

NOTE.—But where an executor or administrator has paid all debts and has cleared the estate and only holds the balance for the persons in law entitled to the same, he becomes a trustee and the court has power under this section to appoint a new trustee jointly with the executor or administrator (Eaton v. Danes, (1894) 29 L. J. N. C. 146; Ponder v. Ponder, (1921) 90 L. J. Ch. 426).

42. Where the court appoints a corporation, other than the Public Trustee, to be a trustee either solely or jointly with another person, the court may authorise the corporation to charge such remuneration for its services as trustee as the court may think fit. Power to authorise remuneration.

43. Every trustee appointed by a court of competent jurisdiction shall, as well before as after the trust property becomes by law, or by assurance, or otherwise, vested in him, have the same powers, authorities, and discretions, and may in all respects act as if he had been originally appointed a trustee by the instrument, if any, creating the trust. Powers of new trustee appointed by the court.

Vesting Orders.

44. In any of the following cases, namely :—

- (i.) Where the court appoints or has appointed a trustee, or where a trustee has been appointed out of court under any statutory or express power ; Vesting orders of land.
- (ii.) Where a trustee entitled to or possessed of any land or interest therein, whether by way of mortgage or otherwise, or entitled to a contingent right therein, either solely or jointly with any other person—
- (a) is under disability ; or
 - (b) is out of the jurisdiction of the High Court ; or
 - (c) cannot be found, or, being a corporation, has been dissolved ;
- (iii.) Where it is uncertain who was the survivor of two or more trustees jointly entitled to or possessed of any interest in land ;
- (iv.) Where it is uncertain whether the last trustee known to have been entitled to or possessed of any interest in land is living or dead ;
- (v.) Where there is no personal representative of a deceased trustee who was entitled to or possessed of any interest in land, or where it is uncertain who is the personal representative of a deceased trustee who was entitled to or possessed of any interest in land ;
- (vi.) Where a trustee jointly or solely entitled to or possessed of any interest in land, or entitled to a contingent right therein, has been required, by or on behalf of a person entitled to require a conveyance of the land or interest or a release of the right, to convey the land or interest or to release the right, and has wilfully refused or neglected to convey the land or interest or release the right for twenty-eight days after the date of the requirement ;
- (vii.) Where land or any interest therein is vested in a trustee whether by way of mortgage or otherwise, and it appears to the court to be expedient ;

Section 44. the court may make an order (in this Act called a vesting order) vesting the land or interest therein in any such person in any such manner and for any such estate or interest as the court may direct, or releasing or disposing of the contingent right to such person as the court may direct :

Provided that—

- (a) Where the order is consequential on the appointment of a trustee the land or interest therein shall be vested for such estate as the court may direct in the persons who on the appointment are the trustees ; and
- (b) Where the order relates to a trustee entitled or formerly entitled jointly with another person, and such trustee is under disability or out of the jurisdiction of the High Court or cannot be found, or being a corporation has been dissolved, the land interest or right shall be vested in such other person who remains entitled, either alone or with any other person the court may appoint.

Orders as to contingent rights of
persons.

45. Where any interest in land is subject to a contingent right in an unborn person or class of unborn persons who, on coming into existence would, in respect thereof, become entitled to or possessed of that interest on any trust, the court may make an order releasing the land or interest therein from the contingent right, or may make an order vesting in any person the estate or interest to or of which the unborn person or class of unborn persons would, on coming into existence, be entitled or possessed in the land.

Vesting order in place of conveyance by infant mortgagee.

46. Where any person entitled to or possessed of any interest in land, or entitled to a contingent right in land, by way of security for money, is an infant, the court may make an order vesting or releasing or disposing of the interest in the land or the right in like manner as in the case of a trustee under disability.

Vesting order consequential on order for sale or mortgage of land.

47. Where any court gives a judgment or makes an order directing the sale or mortgage of any land, every person who is entitled to or possessed of any interest in the land, or entitled to a contingent right therein, and is a party to the action or proceeding in which the judgment or order is given or made or is otherwise bound by the judgment or order, shall be deemed to be so entitled or possessed, as the case may be, as a trustee for the purposes of this Act, and the court may, if it thinks expedient, make an order vesting the land or any part thereof for such estate or interest as that court thinks fit in the purchaser or mortgagee or in any other person :

Provided that, in the case of a legal mortgage, the estate to be vested in the mortgagee shall be a term of years absolute.

Vesting order consequential on judgment for specific performance,
&c.

48. Where a judgment is given for the specific performance of a contract concerning any interest in land, or for sale or exchange of any interest in land, or generally where any judgment is given for the conveyance of any interest in land either in cases arising out of the doctrine of election or otherwise, the court may declare—

- (a) that any of the parties to the action are trustees of any interest in the land or any part thereof within the meaning of this Act ; or
- (b) that the interests of unborn persons who might claim under any party to the action, or under the will or voluntary settlement of any deceased person who was during his lifetime a party to the contract or transaction concerning which the judgment is given, are the interests of persons who, on coming into existence, would be trustees within the meaning of this Act ; and thereupon the court may make a vesting order relating to the rights of those persons, born and unborn, as if they had been trustees.

Section 48.

49. A vesting order under any of the foregoing provisions shall in the case of a vesting order consequential on the appointment of a trustee, have the same effect—

Effect of vesting order.

(a) as if the persons who before the appointment were the trustees, if any, had duly executed all proper conveyances of the land for such estate or interest as the court directs ; or

(b) if there is no such person, or no such person of full capacity, as if such person had existed and been of full capacity and had duly executed all proper conveyances of the land for such estate or interest as the court directs ;

and shall in every other case have the same effect as if the trustee or other person or description or class of persons to whose rights or supposed rights the said provisions respectively relate had been an ascertained and existing person of full capacity, and had executed a conveyance or release to the effect intended by the order.

50. In all cases where a vesting order can be made under any of the foregoing provisions, the court may, if it is more convenient, appoint a person to convey the land or any interest therein or release the contingent right, and a conveyance or release by that person in conformity with the order shall have the same effect as an order under the appropriate provision.

Power to appoint person to convey.

54. Where the High Court has power under this Part of this Act to make orders in relation to lunatics and defectives who are trustees, the Judge or Master in Lunacy shall, save as provided in this section, have no power to make such an order : Jurisdiction of the High Court in regard to lunatics.
Provided that where—

- (a) a lunatic or defective has become a trustee of mortgaged property merely by reason of the mortgage having been paid off ;
- (b) an order in lunacy is made authorising the exercise of a power to appoint a trustee ;
- (c) an order in lunacy is made for giving effect to a contract made before the lunatic or defective was under disability ;
- (d) a lunatic or defective is beneficially entitled to some interest in the property but holds the property or some interest therein under an express, implied or constructive trust ;

the High Court and the Judge or Master in Lunacy shall, in accordance with rules to be made by the Lord Chancellor, have concurrent jurisdiction.

55. Where a vesting order is made as to any land under this Act or under the Lunacy Act, 1890, as amended by any subsequent enactment, or under any Act relating to lunacy in Northern Ireland, founded on an allegation of any of the following matters namely— Orders made upon certain allegations to be conclusive evidence.

- (a) the personal incapacity of a trustee or mortgagee ; or
- (b) that a trustee or mortgagee or the personal representative of or other person deriving title under a trustee or mortgagee is out of the jurisdiction of the High Court or cannot be found, or being a corporation has been dissolved ; or
- (c) that it is uncertain which of two or more trustees, or which of two or more persons interested in a mortgage, was the survivor ; or
- (d) that it is uncertain whether the last trustee or the personal representative of or other person deriving title under a trustee or mortgagee, or the last surviving person interested in a mortgage is living or dead ; or
- (e) that any trustee or mortgagee has died intestate without leaving a person beneficially interested under the intestacy or has died and it is not known who is his personal representative or the person interested ;

the fact that the order has been so made shall be conclusive evidence of the matter so alleged in any court upon any question as to the validity of the order ; but this section does not prevent the court from directing a reconveyance or surrender or the payment of costs occasioned by any such order if improperly obtained.

56. The powers of the court to make vesting orders under this Act shall extend to all property in any part of His Majesty's dominions except Scotland. Application of vesting order to property out of Scotland.

Section 57.Jurisdiction to make other Orders.

Power of court to authorise dealings with trust property.

57.—(1) Where in the management or administration of any property vested in trustees, any sale, lease, mortgage, surrender, release, or other disposition, or any purchase, investment, acquisition, expenditure, or other transaction, is in the opinion of the court expedient, but the same cannot be effected by reason of the absence of any power for that purpose vested in the trustees by the trust instrument, if any, or by law, the court may by order confer upon the trustees, either generally or in any particular instance, the necessary power for the purpose, on such terms, and subject to such provisions and conditions, if any, as the court may think fit and may direct in what manner any money authorised to be expended, and the costs of any transaction, are to be paid or borne as between capital and income.

(2) The court may, from time to time, rescind or vary any order made under this section, or may make any new or further order.

(3) An application to the court under this section may be made by the trustees, or by any of them, or by any person beneficially interested under the trust.

(4) This section does not apply to trustees of a settlement for the purposes of the Settled Land Act, 1925.

Persons entitled to apply for orders.

58.—(1) An order under this Act for the appointment of a new trustee or concerning any interest in land, stock, or thing in action subject to a trust, may be made on the application of any person beneficially interested in the land, stock, or thing in action, whether under disability or not, or on the application of any person duly appointed trustee thereof.

(2) An order under this Act concerning any interest in land, stock, or thing in action subject to a mortgage may be made on the application of any person beneficially interested in the equity of redemption, whether under disability or not, or of any person interested in the money secured by the mortgage.

Power to give judgment in absence of a trustee.

59. Where in any action the court is satisfied that diligent search has been made for any person who, in the character of trustee, is made a defendant in any action, to serve him with a process of the court, and that he cannot be found, the court may hear and determine the action and give judgment therein against that person in his character of a trustee as if he had been duly served, or had entered an appearance in the action, and had also appeared by his counsel and solicitor at the hearing, but without prejudice to any interest he may have in the matters in question in the action in any other character.

Power to charge costs on trust estate.

60. The court may order the costs and expenses of and incident to any application for an order appointing a new trustee, or for a vesting order, or of and incident to any such order, or any conveyance or transfer in pursuance thereof, to be raised and paid out of the property in respect whereof the same is made, or out of the income thereof, or to be borne and paid in such manner and by such persons as to the court may seem just.

Power to relieve trustee from personal liability.

61. If it appears to the court that a trustee, whether appointed by the court or otherwise, is or may be personally liable for any breach of trust, whether the transaction alleged to be a breach of trust occurred before or after the commencement of this Act, but has acted honestly and reasonably, and ought fairly to be excused for the breach of trust and for omitting to obtain the directions of the court in the matter in which he committed such breach, then the court may relieve him either wholly or partly from personal liability for the same.

Section 61.

NOTE.—To claim relief under this section a trustee must act both honestly and reasonably (In re Grindley (C. A.), (1898) 2 Ch. 593; 67 L. J. Ch. 624; Perrins v. Bellamy (C. A.), (1899) 1 Ch. 797; 68 L. J. Ch. 397; In re Mackay, (1911) 1 Ch. 300; 80 L. J. Ch. 237; Palmer v. Emerson, (1911) 2 Ch. 758; 80 L. J. Ch. 418). Provided the trustee acts reasonably and honestly, relief is not confined to executive or administrative blunders but extends to payments to a person not entitled (In re Allsop, (1914) 1 Ch. 1; 83 L. J. Ch. 42). The section applies to actions for an account as well as to breaches of trust (In re Kay, (1897) 2 Ch. 518; 66 L. J. Ch. 759).

A claim for relief under this section need not be pleaded (In re Pawsons' Settlements Trusts, (1917) 86 L. J. Ch. 380).

62.—(1) Where a trustee commits a breach of trust at the instigation or request or with the consent in writing of a beneficiary, the court may, if it thinks fit, and notwithstanding that the beneficiary may be a married woman restrained from anticipation, make such order as to the court seems just, for impounding all or any part of the interest of the beneficiary in the trust estate by way of indemnity to the trustee or persons claiming through him.

Power to make beneficiary indemnify for breach of trust.

(2) This section applies to breaches of trust committed as well before as after the commencement of this Act.

Payment into Court.

63.—(1) Trustees, or the majority of trustees, having in their hands or under their control money or securities belonging to a trust, may pay the same into court; and the same shall, subject to rules of court, be dealt with according to the orders of the court.

Payment into court by trustees.

(2) The receipt or certificate of the proper officer shall be a sufficient discharge to trustees for the money or securities so paid into court.

(3) Where money or securities are vested in any persons as trustees, and the majority are desirous of paying the same into court, but the concurrence of the other or others cannot be obtained, the court may order the payment into court to be made by the majority without the concurrence of the other or others.

(4) Where any such money or securities are deposited with any banker, broker, or other depositary, the court may order payment or delivery of the money or securities to the majority of the trustees for the purpose of payment into court.

(5) Every transfer payment and delivery made in pursuance of any such order shall be valid and take effect as if the same had been made on the authority or by the act of all the persons entitled to the money and securities so transferred, paid, or delivered.

This will not prevent the attachment of the quarterly salary of a secretary to a company (Gordon v. Jennings, (1882) 9 Q. B. D. 45; 51 L. J. Q. B. 417), nor of a superannuation allowance (*Booth v. EMERGENCY LEGISLATION.

GENERAL NOTE AS TO EFFECT OF EMERGENCY LEGISLATION.

To deal with the many difficulties arising during the period of the war, various statutes and orders were, from time to time, passed, with the view of obviating or relieving them. These statutes are not improperly described as "Emergency Legislation."

During the progress of the war and since the suspension of hostilities many of these have been repealed.

The most important of these statutes were the Courts (Emergency Powers) Acts of 1914, with the amending and amplifying Acts of 1916, 1917 and 1919 (repealed), and the Increase of Rent and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions) Acts, consolidated in the Increase of Rent and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions) Act of 1920, which Act has been amended by the Increase of Rent and Mortgage Interest Restrictions (Continuance) Act, 1923, the Rent Restrictions (Notices of Increase) Act, 1923, the Rent and Mortgage Interest Restrictions Act, 1923, and the Prevention of Eviction Act, 1924, which may be cited together as "The Rent and Mortgage Interest Restrictions Acts, 1920 to 1925."

The whole of the Courts (Emergency Powers) Acts are now repealed, except as to orders made before August 31st, 1922. They cease, therefore, to be of any practical value and are not retained in this edition.

THE INCREASE OF RENT AND MORTGAGE INTEREST (RESTRICTIONS) ACTS, 1920 TO 1925, PP. 2503-2556.

The Increase of Rent and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions) Act, 1920 (10 & 11 Geo. 5, c. 17), repealed all the former statutes, in so far as they were in existence at the time of the Act of 1920 coming into force (July 2nd, 1920), and all proceedings pending at such time are to be deemed to have been commenced under this Act (sect. 19, sub-s. (3)). It was to continue in force till June 24th, 1923, but by 13 & 14 Geo. 5, c. 7, was continued until July 31st, 1923, then by the Rent and Mortgage Interest Restrictions Act, 1923, till June 24th, 1925, and by the Rent and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions Continuation) Act, 1925, till December 25th, 1927, for England, and May 28th, 1928, for Scotland. These dates have now, by the Expiring Laws Continuance Acts, 1927 and 1928, been extended for two years. In the Act of 1920 business premises were for the first time included, but subject to certain modifications (sect. 13; but this section has now expired by time). Business premises are not now within the Acts. The general purpose of the legislation is to prevent the raising of rents, or the increase of mortgage interest in respect of certain small classes of dwelling-houses and properties, except in so far as is permitted by the Act, and as a necessary corollary to these restrictions, to prevent the landlord or mortgagee recovering the houses or properties except under the exceptional circumstances mentioned in the Act.

Owing to the shortage of housing accommodation it was found impossible to allow the 1920 Act to expire at the time originally fixed, and various Acts have been passed from time to time prolonging its duration, and amending and extending it.

The first of these Acts was the Rent and Mortgage Interest Restrictions Act, 1923 (13 & 14 Geo. 5, c. 32), which, together with the 1920 Act (the Principal Act) and the Rent Restrictions (Notices of Increase) Act, 1923 (13 & 14 Geo. 5, c. 13), and the Prevention of Eviction Act, 1924 (14 & 15 Geo. 5, c. 5), and the Rent and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions Continuation) Act, 1925 (15 & 16 Geo. 5, c. 32), at present contain the law on this subject.

The statutes are now to continue in force in England till December 25th, 1929, in Scotland till May 28th, 1930, but the Act of 1923 (Part II.) set out certain restrictions which were to remain in force after the principal Act expired, and until June 24th, 1930, unless Parliament by resolution otherwise determines, and now these restrictions are to continue in force until five years after the expiration of the Increase of Rent and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions) Act, 1920, as amended, i.e., in England until five years after the 25th of December, 1929.

It having been found that in practice a large number of landlords demanded and obtained the extra rent permitted by the earlier statutes without giving the tenants any notice or any proper notice to quit, and all such payments having been declared illegal and recoverable by the tenants, the Rent Restrictions (Notices of Increase) Act, 1923, was passed to deal with the position which had thus been created.

Its effect is that a valid notice to quit is to be implied in all cases where it was not given, and thus to render the extra payments of rent legal from the time when the notice, if given, would have been effective; but the operation of the Act is only to be retrospective as from December 1st, 1922.

Provision is also made for rent validated by the Act, or sums recovered or deducted by the tenant from December 1st, 1922, being paid or repaid by the tenant by instalments, except where the tenant quits the premises.

A landlord wishing to recover rent validated by this Act must give the tenant notice in the form prescribed in the Act.

The Act also provides that where the tenant obtains a certificate from the sanitary authority that the house is not in reasonable repair, the County Court may stop the payment of the instalments, and whilst the house remains in an improper condition, the instalments under the Act are to be deemed to have been paid. See where the house comes into the possession of the landlord on or after July 31st, 1923, heading "Decontrolment," post, p. 2501.

General Effects of the Acts of 1920 and 1923, as amended.—Subject to the provisions in the Acts no increase of rent or mortgage interest beyond the "standard rent" and "standard rate of interest" is recoverable in respect of premises within the Act.

"Standard rent" is the rent at which the dwelling-house or business premises were let on August 3rd, 1914, or where they were not let on that date the rent at which they were last let before that date, or if let after August 3rd, 1914, the rent at which they were first let (sect. 12, sub-s. (1) (a), Act of 1920).

NOTE.—Where let under a lease or agreement at a progressive rent, the standard rent for such premises is for the time being the maximum rent payable thereunder, and where at the time the standard rent is to be calculated the rent was less than the rateable value, the rateable value is the standard rent.

Duty of Landlord as to Statement of what is "Standard Rent."—It is the duty of the landlord of premises to which the Act applies, on being so requested by the tenant in writing, to supply him with a statement in writing as to what is the standard rent. If he fails without reasonable excuse to do so for fourteen days, or supplies a statement false in any material particular, he is liable to a fine not exceeding 10*l.* (sect. 11 of principal Act).

It is also his duty when giving notice of any increase of rent prescribed by sect. 3 (2) of the Act to use the form given in Sched. I. to the Act or a form giving substantially the same particulars. See Form, post, p. 2533, though now by sect. 6 (1) of the 1923 Act the County Court may amend the notice if satisfied that its invalidity was due to a bonâ fide mistake, on such terms as respects arrears of rent or otherwise as the Court may think right.

"Standard rate of interest" is the interest which was payable on the mortgage on August 3rd, 1914. If created since that date, then the original rate of interest (sect. 12, Act of 1920).

Application of Act to Premises.]—The Act applies to premises or part thereof let as separate premises (a) where the standard rent or rateable value does not exceed:—

- (a) In the Metropolitan Police District or the City of London, 105*l.* a year;
- (b) In Scotland, 90*l.* a year;
- (c) Elsewhere 78*l.* a year;

Every such house or part thereof is, if separately let, to be deemed to be separate premises (sect. 12, sub-s. (2), Act of 1920).

NOTE.—The Act does not apply to a dwelling-house bonâ fide let at a rent which includes payment in respect of board, attendance, or use of furniture; but as to use of furniture only see sect. 12, sub-s. (2), and sect. 10 of Act of 1923, which now require that the amount properly charged for attendance or use of furniture must be a substantial part of the whole rent.

The Act is not excluded if the premises, being a dwelling-house, part of the same is used as a shop or office, or for business, trade or professional purposes.

The Act does not apply if the premises are let together with land, other than the site of the house, except where the rateable value of the land alone would be less than a quarter of the rateable value of the dwelling-house. The county court may decide this latter question, and its decision thereon is final and conclusive (sec. 12, Act of 1920).

Any rooms in a dwelling-house separately let wholly or partly as a dwelling are to be treated as part of a dwelling-house let as a separate dwelling (sect. 12, sub-s. (8), Act of 1920, though now by sect. 7 of the Act of 1923 certain increases in the rents of sub-tenancies are authorised. See post, p. 2547.

The Act does not apply to a dwelling-house erected after, or in course of erection on, April 2nd, 1919, or to any dwelling-house which has been since that date or was at that date being bonâ fide reconstructed by way of conversion into two or more separate and self-contained flats or tenements (sect. 12, sub-s. (9) Act of 1920). See post, p. 2525. See also "Decontrolment," post, p. 2501.

Application of Act to Mortgages.]—The Act applies to mortgages where the mortgaged property consists of or comprises one or more of the premises to which the Act applies, or any interest therein.

The Act does not apply to an equitable charge by deposit of title deeds or otherwise, or to a mortgage created after the passing of the Act, or to a mortgage of such premises together with land, if the rateable value of the premises is less than one-tenth of the rateable value of the land; but where the rateable value of the premises is more than one-tenth of the rateable value of the land, the Act contains provisions by which the mortgagee may apportion the mortgage money between the premises and the land, and thus create in effect two mortgages. When this is done the Act will no longer apply to the mortgage of the land (sect. 12, sub-s. (4), Act of 1920).

The county court has no jurisdiction in the case of such an apportionment. Any disagreement thereon is to be settled by an arbitrator appointed by the President of the Surveyors' Institution (sect. 12).

For definition of "rateable value," see sect. 12, sub-s. (1) (e).

Section 1 of the Act of 1920.]—Section 1 of the principal Act declares that, where rent or mortgage interest to which the Act applies has been since March 25th, 1920, or is hereafter increased, then if the increased rent or mortgage interest exceeds by more than the amount permitted by the Act the standard rent or rate of interest, the amount of such excess is irrecoverable.

It results from the fixing of this date that the Act had a retrospective operation of about three months.

It must be borne in mind that at this date the Increase of Rent and Mortgage Interest Acts of 1915 and 1919 were in force, but applied only to dwelling-houses let at lower rents, and did not apply to business premises at all. Probably March 25th was decided on as it was common knowledge that the former Acts were about to expire and that the new legislation which was imminent would apply to houses at higher rents, and that the power to raise rents would be to some extent increased. Many persons, in anticipation of this legislation, had given notices to determine tenancies, and in some cases had raised rents.

The Act declares that where a landlord or mortgagee has raised the rent or mortgage interest between March 25th, 1920, and the time the Act came into operation—July 2nd, 1920—he may cancel the increase and repay the money, in which case the rent or interest shall not be deemed to have been increased (sect. 1, proviso).

The object of this clause is not very clear. If the increase between these dates related to dwelling-houses and mortgaged properties already within the protection of the Acts of 1915 and 1919, and the effect of the increase was to raise the rent or interest beyond that permitted by those Acts, it was illegal, and the increased rent and interest could be recovered under those Acts by any one who paid it. If the increase between the dates related to houses or business premises (a) coming for the first time within the protection of the new Act, and the effect of the increase was to raise the rent or interest over the amount permitted by the Act of 1920, such excess is recoverable under sect. 14 of the Act. If the increase did not have the effect of raising the rent or mortgage interest beyond the maximum now permitted by the Act, there would seem to be no necessity to return it.

No penalty is attached to raising rents or interest beyond the amounts allowed by the Act, except that the excess is irrecoverable in law and, if it has been paid, may be recovered, now to a limited extent.

Again, it must be remembered that there was no prohibition as to raising rents or interest before March 25th, 1920, in respect of premises not within the now repealed Acts, or in respect of business premises. A contract to raise the rent or mortgage interest of such premises made before March 25th, 1920, was legal. The result of such a contract might well be, in the case of rent, to secure a rent higher than would have been permitted by the present Act. To take a concrete case: if premises in the country were let at (a) "Premises" is the word used in the rules made under that Act, and includes a house or part of a house used as a separate dwelling, and formerly premises used for business, trade or professional purposes, or for the public service (sects. 12 and 13), but sect. 13 has now expired, and the Act no longer applies to purely business premises.

60*l.* a year in 1914 and before March 25th, 1920, the rent was by agreement raised to 90*l.* a year, this contract would appear to be good and enforceable, though the "standard rent" of such premises in 1914 plus the additions permitted by the statute of 1920 may not together amount to 90*l.* a year. It seems clear, however, that in such a case no further increase could now be made, unless it should happen that the "standard rent" in 1914 of the house to which the Act now applies plus the permitted statutory additions should together amount to over 90*l.* a year, in which case the rent can still be increased to the sum to which they amount. Should the "standard rent" with the permitted statutory additions amount to less than 90*l.* a year, the rent remains as fixed by the contract, and it is believed the excess cannot be reclaimed by the tenant.

It is only where the increase has been made between March 25th, 1920, and July 2nd, 1920, and this increase has raised the rent beyond the standard rent plus the statutory permitted additions, that the excess is irrecoverable, or if paid may be recovered.

Permitted Increases in Rent.—Very considerable increases of rents are permitted by the Act of 1920. These increases may be gathered from the Act itself (Sect. 2 (1)), but the following points are worthy of notice :—

- (a) The interest at six or eight per cent. which may be added for improvements or structural alterations—not decorations or repairs—is subject to the power of the county court, on the application of the tenant, to suspend or reduce such increase on the ground that the improvements or structural alterations were unnecessary.
- (b) The 15 per cent. (5 per cent. only for the first year in cases to which the repealed Acts apply) which is permitted to be added to the standard rent must be calculated on the net rent. This means that where the landlord either by agreement pays the rates, or the rates are by statute (i.e., the Acts relating to apportionment) payable by him instead of by the occupier, the 15 per cent. is calculated not on the standard rent, but on the standard rent less the rates.

He arrives at the net rent, the 5 or 15 per cent. of which he may add to the standard rent, in the following way. He has to discover first what part of the standard rent at the time the standard rent has to be calculated, generally August 3rd, 1914, was payable by him for rates. He then deducts this from the standard rent, and so arrives at the net rent. He must then take 5 or 15 per cent. of this net rent so arrived at, which he may then add to the standard rent.

This sounds involved. Take the simplest illustration. Assume the standard rent payable in August, 1914, was 7*s.* 8*d.* a week, and the landlord out of that sum was at the time paying 1*s.* a week for the rates. Then 6*s.* 8*d.* a week is the net rent on which the addition must be calculated; 15 per cent. of 6*s.* 8*d.* is 1*s.* This, added to the standard rent, makes the rent 8*s.* 8*d.*

In any other case, e.g., where the tenant pays the rates, the permitted increase is added to the standard rent. See sect. 12, sub-s. (1) (c).

- (c) Any rates payable by the landlord in respect of the dwelling-house over and above those payable by him on August 3rd, 1914, may also be added to the rent.

Where no rates were payable at this date then any increase since the time when the rates first became payable may be added. "Rates" includes water rents and charges.

If rates which have been legally added to the rent are reduced, the rent must be reduced pro rata. See post, p. 2505.

- (d) Where the landlord is responsible for all repairs, then, in addition to the other permitted increases, an amount not exceeding 25 per cent. of the net rent (see supra) may be added to the standard rent. If only responsible for part of the repairs, then such lesser amount than 25 per cent. may be added as may be agreed, or, in the absence of agreement determined by the county court, on application of the landlord or tenant, to be fair and reasonable.

It is important to remember that the word "repairs" in this section of the Act means not only such repairs as may be necessary that the premises may be reasonably fit for human habitation, but includes any repairs required for the purpose of keeping premises in "good and tenantable repair," and the landlord is deemed to be responsible for any repairs for which the tenant is under no express liability. See sect. 2, sub-s. (5), and sect. 18 (5) of the Act of 1923.

The meaning of this last clause is not clear. It is believed that it cannot mean to impose on the landlord a liability to keep all premises within the Act in good and tenantable repair except where the tenant is under an express liability to do so. The words are contained only in a defining section, and only apply to sect. 2 of the Act. This section only speaks of repairs which the landlord is responsible for in whole or in part. It would seem that if he is content to abandon the 25 per cent. of the net rent, or such portion as he might demand, there is no power under the Act to compel him to do repairs. Even where he adds the 25 per cent. or such part as he is entitled to, and does not do the repairs, the only penalty he suffers is that after three months such increase, and also the increase under sub-s. (2) (c), may be suspended by the county court until the repairs are executed.

What it is believed to mean is that where the landlord claims the additional rent for repairs he must do all the repairs, and carry them out in such a way that the premises are kept in good and tenantable repair, and cannot claim any aid from the tenant, except in a case where the tenant is under an express liability to repair.

Where any authorised addition to the rent, dependent on the liability of the landlord to do repairs, has been made, the tenant or sanitary authority may apply, after three months, to the county court for a suspension of that increase, and also the increase of 15 per cent. permitted by the Act, on the ground that the house is not in a reasonable state of repair. If the court is satisfied that this is so, and that the state of disrepair is not due to the tenant's neglect or breach of agreement, it shall suspend these increases until satisfied that the house is in a proper state of repair (sect. 2), and see now additional rights given to the tenant in cases of disrepair by sects. 5 and 10 of the Act of 1923.

The tenant is given increased rights under sects. 5 and 18 of the Act of 1923. See post, pp. 2546, 2552.

NOTE.—Any transfer to a tenant of any burden or liability previously borne by the landlord is to be deemed an alteration of the rent, and where the result is that the terms are less favourable to the tenant than the previous terms, the rent is deemed to be increased (sect. 2, sub-s. (3)).

By sect. 7, sub-s. (1), of the Act of 1923, in addition to the increases set out above, the rent of sub-tenancies of part of a dwelling house may apparently be increased by 10 per cent. of the net rent of the dwelling house comprised in the sub-tenancy and the rent of the house increased by 5 per cent. where a sub-tenancy exists. The notice required by sect. 3, sub-s. (2), of the principal Act need not be given. The landlord can demand of his tenant particulars of the sub-tenancies. The meaning of sect. 7 is far from clear.

Time when increased Rent may be Demanded.—It must be remembered that increased rent could formerly only be demanded where the landlord, but for the Act, would be entitled to possession of the premises. See Kerr v. Bryde, (1923) L. R. A. C. 16. Whatever the agreement under which the tenant holds, it must have expired, or been forfeited, or determined by due notice to quit, before the increases permitted by the Act were recoverable, though now by the Rent Restrictions (Notices of Increase) Act, 1923, such a notice to determine the tenancy, where notice to increase the rent has been given, is to be implied. Four clear weeks' notice (one in the case of increase for rates) of intention to raise the rent is required by sect. 3, sub-s. (2) of the Act of 1920.

The notice is not a good notice if given before the passing of the Act (sect. 3, sub-s. (3)), but it may be given before the termination of the tenancy, though it could not take effect until the tenancy had terminated. Where, however, a valid notice of increase has once been given no fresh notice need be served on any subsequent tenant (sect. 3, sub-s. (2)).

Permitted Increase in Mortgage Interest.—The rate of interest on a mortgage to which the Act applies may be increased from the standard rate of interest (see ante, p. 2493) to an amount not exceeding 1 per cent. per annum, with a maximum interest of $6\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. per annum.

During the first year, except for mortgages within the present Act, but to which the repealed statutes did not apply, the increase is not to exceed $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. per annum (sect. 4, Act of 1920).

Mortgage interest increased between March 25th, 1920, and July 2nd, 1920, may be repaid and then the rate shall not be deemed to have been increased. See note, ante, p. 2493, as to repayment of rent increased between these dates.

Restrictions on Landlord's Right to Possession.—The landlord's right to recover possession of a dwelling-house was restricted by sect. 5 of the Act of 1920 (now sect. 4 of the Act of 1923), which amends and to some extent extends the former section, which is now repealed. Generally it may be said on the question of the landlord's right to possession, that he cannot recover the premises or eject the tenant from his dwelling-house, unless (Act of 1923, s. 4):—

- (a) The tenant fails to pay the rent, or breaks or does not perform some obligation of tenancy imposed by the contract of tenancy or the Act;
- b) The tenant or his sub-tenant or any person residing or lodging with him is guilty of conduct which is a nuisance or annoyance to neighbours or has been convicted of using or allowing the premises to be used for an immoral or illegal purpose, or he or the person residing with him has been guilty of waste, or neglect or default by which the condition of the dwelling-house has deteriorated, and the court thinks the tenant has not taken the steps he should have taken to get rid of such person or such under-tenant.
- (c) The tenant has given notice to quit, and in consequence the landlord has contracted to sell or let the dwelling-house, or taken other steps as a result of which he would be seriously prejudiced if he could not obtain possession; or
- (d) The landlord reasonably requires the premises for occupation as a residence for himself or for any son or daughter of his over eighteen years of age or some person bonâ fide residing with him, or in his whole time employment or in the whole time employment of some tenant from him, or with whom conditional on housing accommodation being provided a contract for employment has been entered into, and the court is satisfied (except where otherwise provided) that alternative accommodation is available reasonably suitable to the means and needs of the tenant and his family as regards extent, character and proximity to place of work, and which is either a dwelling-house to which the Act applies, or premises to be let as a separate dwelling on terms which give the tenant security of tenure reasonably equivalent to the security he enjoys under the Act. See post, p. 2497, where alternative accommodation is not a condition of the order.
- (e) The landlord is a local authority or statutory undertaking, and reasonably requires the premises for the purpose of carrying out statutory duties or powers, or for any purpose the court thinks sufficient in the public interest, and alternative accommodation as aforesaid exists; or
- (f) The landlord became so after service in any of His Majesty's forces during the war and requires the house for his personal occupation and offers the tenant accommodation on reasonable terms in the same dwelling-house, such accommodation being considered by the court as reasonably sufficient; or

- (g) A former tenant who gave up occupation in consequence of service in any of His Majesty's forces during the war requires it again as a residence;
- (h) The tenant has without consent at any time after July 31st, 1923, assigned or sub-let the whole of the house, or part of same, the remainder being already sub-let;
- (i) The dwelling-house consists of, or includes licensed premises and the tenant, a licence holder, has committed an offence, or not conducted the business to the satisfaction of the justices, or police authority, or carried it on in a way detrimental to the public interest, or if for any reason the licence has been refused.

NOTE.—Clauses (h) and (i) are new (Act of 1923).

Even though any of the above circumstances are proved, it is still in the discretion of the court to make or refuse such an order or judgment (sect. 4, sub-s. (1)).

The expressions "landlord" and "tenant" include any person from time to time deriving title under the original landlord or tenant (sect. 12, sub-s. (1)(f)).

Several points relative to the above exceptions are worthy of consideration. Under exception (a), ante, p. 2496—"the tenant fails to pay the rent." Rent is legally due on the very day it becomes due. Often perfectly responsible and eligible tenants take a little latitude in payment, and this is acquiesced in by the landlord. It is thought that when the court can imply an agreement to this effect from the conduct of the parties, or even a custom acquiesced in by the landlord, it will not be bound to deprive the tenant of the benefit of the Act. Still it must be understood that tenants who do not pay their rent on the day on which it is due, run considerable risk of losing the benefits of the Act. Under the same exception (a) where "an obligation of the tenancy or under this Act has not been performed." The obligations of tenancy imposed on a tenant by the Act seem to be the following—that when retaining possession under the Act he observes the conditions of the original contract of tenancy though it may not have been made with himself (sect. 15, sub-s. (1), of Act of 1920) and that he allows the landlord reasonable access to the premises for executing repairs, he, the landlord, is entitled to execute (sect. 16, sub-s. (2), of Act of 1920).

Under exception (b), ante, p. 2496, it must be noticed that it is only a "conviction" for using or allowing the premises to be used for an immoral or illegal purpose which the court may treat as a justification for making the order for possession, though using the premises for such purposes may be a ground of giving possession if the effect is that the conduct of the house is a nuisance or annoyance to neighbours under the same clause.

Under exception (c) the provision which allows possession to be given where the landlord is seriously prejudiced by the act of the tenant in himself giving notice to quit is a useful one. Somewhat contradictory decisions were given under the old Act of 1915 as to whether this could be deemed a satisfactory reason for making the order. See Hunt v. Bliss, (1920) 89 L. J. K. B. 174, and Green-Price v. Webb, (1920) 89 L. J. K. B. 216.

Under exception (d) the words "or to reside with him," which appeared in the 1920 Act are omitted, and the words "or for any son or daughter of his over eighteen years of age" appear in their stead.

See now where the house is required by the landlord as a residence for himself, or his son or daughter (post, pp. 2511, 2543).

Under the same exception (d) the words "alternative accommodation reasonably suitable to the means and needs of the tenant and his family as regards extent, character and proximity to place of work and which must be either a dwelling-house to which the Act applies, or separate premises securing to the tenant as satisfactory security of tenure as he had under the Act" are new, and to some extent an extension of the words used in the 1920 Act.

Apparently a part of a house cannot now be considered satisfactory alternative accommodation.

Alternative Accommodation.]—Alternative accommodation is not to be a condition of the order or judgment for possession under sect. 4 (1) —(1) When the tenant was in the employment of the landlord, or a former landlord, and the dwelling-house was let to him in consequence of that employment and he has ceased to be in that employment. This is a new and useful provision. (2) Where a county agricultural committee (or Minister of Agriculture pending formation of such committee) gives certificate that the landlord requires the house for occupation of a person engaged on work necessary for proper working of an agricultural holding, or with whom conditional on housing accommodation being provided a contract for employment on such work has been entered into. If such a certificate is obtained it is apparently not in the power of the county court to refuse possession. (3) Where the landlord gave up the house in consequence of service in any of His Majesty's forces during the war. (4) Where the dwelling-house is required by the landlord as a residence for himself, or for any son or daughter of his over eighteen years of age, the application is now generally governed by the Prevention of Eviction Act, 1924 (post, p. 2554), which repeals paragraphs iv. and v. of sub-s. 1 of sect. 4 of the Act of 1923, and lays down what has been called the "greater hardship test." It is immaterial when the landlord bought the dwelling-house, so long as he did not buy after 5th May, 1924. The question on any such application to be considered by the court is: Would greater hardship be caused by refusing than by granting the application?

Alternative accommodation is not the test, though it must be taken into consideration in deciding the question of greater hardship.

Powers of the Court.]—Very extensive powers are given to the court to adjourn, suspend or postpone any order or judgment for the recovery or possession of premises either at the time the order or judgment is given or made or at any subsequent time before it is executed, and to impose terms when granting such a concession (sect. 4, sub-s. (2)). Even where the order or judgment was made or given before the passing of the Act of 1920, the court may rescind or vary the same on the tenant's application if it should be of opinion that the order or judgment would not have been made or given if the Act had been in force (sect. 4, sub-s. (3), Act of 1923).

Sub-tenants.]—An order or judgment for recovery of possession under the Act against the tenant or ejectment therefrom does not affect the right of any sub-tenant to whom the premises or part thereof have been lawfully let before the commencement of the proceedings against the tenant (sect. 4, sub-s. (5)). The sub-tenant becomes tenant to the landlord.

NOTE.—A tenant may lawfully sub-let the premises, or part thereof, unless he is by agreement restrained from so doing. If he is so restrained he cannot give any title to possession to a sub-tenant. After various decisions as to the right of a statutory tenant to sub-let it has at length been decided that a statutory tenant, i.e., a tenant who has received proper notice to quit, and holds over under the statute, may create a valid sub-tenancy of part of the premises but not of the whole. Roe v. Russell, (1928) 2 K. B. 117; 97 L. J. K. B. 290.

In this connection it is important to note that the definition of tenant (sect. 12, sub-s. (1) (g), of the 1920 Act) includes not only a sub-tenant but also includes the widow of a tenant dying intestate, who was residing with him at the time of his death, or, where the tenant dies intestate leaving no widow, or is a woman, then it includes such member of the tenant's family so residing as aforesaid as may in default of agreement be decided by the county court.

Penalties.]—If an order or judgment for possession or ejectment is obtained by the landlord by misrepresentation, the court may order him to pay the former tenant such sum as is sufficient to compensate him for the damage or loss he has sustained (sect. 4, sub-s. (6)).

Where the landlord has obtained possession since July 31st, 1923, under para. (d) of sub-s. 1 of sect. 4 by misrepresentation, the court may direct that the dwelling-house is not to be excluded from the operation of the Act by reason of the landlord having come into possession thereof, and in such case the Act continues to apply to the dwelling-house (sect. 4, sub-s. (7)). (This clause first appears in the Act of 1923.)

Any person who, with intent to deceive, makes a false entry in a rent-book showing, or purporting to show, any tenant as being in arrears for any sum which is irrecoverable under any of the rent restriction Acts, or where, the entry having been made by or on behalf of the landlord, he refuses or neglects to delete such entry within seven days of request made by or on behalf of the tenant, is liable to a fine not exceeding 10*l*. The onus is on such person to prove that he acted innocently and without intent to deceive (sect. 14, sub-s. (2), of Act of 1920).

Distress.—No distress for rent of premises within the Act can be levied without the consent of the county court, and on such an application the court has the same extensive powers to adjourn, postpone, etc., as under sect. 5, sub-s. (2), of the Act (sect. 6 of Act of 1920). This jurisdiction is generally exercised by the registrar, but there is a right of appeal to the judge.

Exception.—Under sect. 160 of the County Courts Act, 1888, i.e., where, an execution being already in, the landlord requires the bailiff to distrain for rent due to him to the limited extent to which this is permitted by the section, no leave is required (sect. 6 of Act of 1920).

This provision as to distress was in addition to the powers given by the Courts Emergency Acts now repealed.

Restriction on calling in Mortgages.—A mortgage to which the Act applies (see ante, p. 2492) cannot be called in, nor can steps be taken for foreclosure or sale, or otherwise enforcing the security or recovering the mortgage money, when:—

- (a) The interest permitted by the Act is paid, and is not more than twenty-one days in arrear; and
- (b) The covenants are kept; and
- (c) The mortgagor keeps the property in proper repair and pays the interest and instalments of principal recoverable under any prior encumbrance (sect. 7 of Act of 1920).

Exceptions.—(1) The above does not apply to a mortgage where the principal money is repayable by periodical instalments extending over a term not less than ten years from the creation of the mortgage, nor affect any power of sale exercisable by a mortgagee in possession on March 25th, 1920, nor apply when the mortgagor consents to the powers conferred by the mortgage being exercised (sect. 7).

(2) Where the mortgage is of leaseholds, and the mortgagee satisfies the county court that his security is wearing out or otherwise in jeopardy, and that it is reasonable the mortgage should be called in, the court may authorise him to do so, but may attach a condition that, if the mortgagor pays the mortgagee within a fixed time such part of the principal mortgage money as appears to correspond to the diminution of the security, the order shall not take effect (sect. 7, proviso).

A mortgage includes a land charge under the Land Transfer Acts, 1875 and 1897 (sect. 12 (h)).

The expressions "mortgagee" and "mortgagor" include any person from time to time deriving title under the original mortgagee or mortgagor (sect. 12, sub-s. (f)).

Premiums.—No fine, premium or other pecuniary consideration, other than the rent, may be required for granting, renewing or continuing a tenancy or sub-tenancy of premises within the Act. Where such a fine, etc., has been given since March 25th, 1920, it is recoverable.

Exceptions.—(1) An agreement for premises where such an illegal consideration has been given made between March 25th, 1920, and July 2nd, 1920, to which premises the present Act applies but the repealed Acts of 1915 and 1919 did not apply, is to be, without prejudice to the operation of this section, voidable at the option of either party (sect. 8).

(2) The section does not apply to the grant, renewal or continuance of a lease for fourteen years or more.

The taking of a fine, premium, etc., is made an offence punishable by a fine not exceeding 100*l.*, and the illegal fine, premium, etc., may be ordered to be repaid (sect. 8, sub-s. (2)).

This clause seems to apply even where the fine, premium, etc., was taken innocently between March 25th, 1920, and July 2nd, 1920, but it is confidently believed in such a case no penalty could or would be imposed.

Again, it was not unusual under the Act of 1920 for a landlord to require articles of furniture, etc., belonging to him to be purchased at an exorbitant price as a condition of the grant, renewal or continuance of a tenancy or sub-tenancy, or for the tenant to make a like demand as a condition of giving up possession. The Act of 1923 deals with this, and in either case requires that the vendor shall, if called on by the purchaser to do so, state in writing the price demanded for such furniture, etc., and if such price is unreasonable it is to be treated as a fine, premium, etc., and is made illegal and recoverable as under sect. 8 of the principal Act, and sect. 15, sub-s. (2), of the principal Act. The penal provisions of these sections are also to apply. See sect. 9, sub-ss. (1) and (2), of Act of 1923.

On the other hand a tenant retaining possession under the Act may neither ask for, nor receive, except from the landlord, any money or other consideration as a condition of giving up possession. If he does ask or take any such valuable consideration he makes himself liable to a fine not exceeding 100*l.*, and to an order for the return of such consideration (sect. 15, sub-s. (2)).

Letting of Furnished Houses.—Limitations are, by sects. 9 and 10 of the Act of 1920, imposed on the letting of furnished dwelling-houses, or parts of such houses. Section 9 is retrospective as well as prospective. Section 10 only applies to lettings after July 2nd, 1920.

By sect. 9 where a furnished dwelling-house or part of a furnished dwelling-house is let at a profit of more than 25 per cent. in excess of the normal profit, i.e., the profit which might reasonably have been expected on August 3rd, 1914, the amount of such excess is irrecoverable, or if paid may be recovered by the tenant. This section applies to houses let under the repealed Acts, as well as to those let under the present Act.

Section 10 makes it an offence, punishable by fine not exceeding 100*l.*, to let, after the passing of the Act, any furnished dwelling-house or part thereof which is within the Act, at a rent which yields to the lessor an extortionate profit. In considering whether the profit is extortionate, regard must be had to all the circumstances, and in particular to the margin of profit (25 per cent.) allowed under sect. 9.

The jurisdiction under sect. 9 is given to the county court. The jurisdiction under sect. 10 where proceedings for a fine are taken is apparently given to a court of summary jurisdiction, but proceedings may be taken in the county court to recover the excess of profit even under sect. 10 where an order has not been made by the court imposing the fine.

By sect. 10, sub-s. (2), of the Act of 1923, the words "landlord and tenant" are substituted for the expressions "lessor and lessee" as in those sections used.

Business Premises.—(Now expired.)

Notice to Quit.—A tenant who under the Act retains possession of premises must, if he wishes to quit, give the notice required by his agreement, or if no notice is required he must give not less than three months' notice. On the other hand, a landlord who obtains an order or judgment for possession or ejectment need give no second notice to quit to the tenant (sect. 15, sub-s. (1), of Act of 1920).

General.—Where the Act has once become applicable to any premises or mortgage thereon, it continues to apply, whether or not the premises continue to be premises to which the Act applies (sect. 12, sub-s. (6)), but see sect. 2 (1) of the Act of 1923.

Where the rent payable in respect of premises is less than two-thirds of the rateable value, the Act does not apply to that rent or tenancy (nor to any mortgage by the landlord from whom the premises are held of his interest therein), but the Act applies to such premises as if no such tenancy existed or had ever existed (sect. 12, sub-s. (7)).

NOTE.—A house let, say, in 1914, at so much under value, would not give a fair standard for the “standard rent.” Consequently the Act does not apply to the rent or tenancy, but in considering what would be the maximum rent legally demandable the rateable value in 1914 has to be considered instead of the rent actually paid. See definition “standard rent” (sect. 12, sub-s. (1) (a)). It is not so easy to see why the Act should not apply to a mortgage by the landlord of his interest in the premises.

It may be the Legislature was of opinion that, if a landlord chose to let the house or houses at considerably less than rateable value, the security was depreciated and there was no good reason why the mortgagee should not foreclose if he so desired.

Any sums paid before or after the passing of the Act for rent or mortgage interest which either by the Act or by the repealed Acts is made irrecoverable may be recovered from the landlord, or mortgagee, or his personal representative, and any such sum, or any other sum, recoverable from the landlord or repayable by him under the provisions of the Act may be deducted from rent or mortgage interest (sect. 14, sub-s. (1), of Act of 1920), but a landlord, in respect of rent becoming payable to him in consequence of an amendment of his notice of increase by a county court, can only recover such arrears for six months from the date of the order (sect. 8, sub-s. (1)), and a tenant can only recover sums made irrecoverable by sect. 14, sub-s. (1), of the principal Act within six months from the time of payment or in respect of payments made before the passing of the Act of 1923 within six months of the passing of that Act (sect. 8, sub-s. (2), of the Act of 1923).

If the interest of a tenant is in any way determined, any lawful sub-tenant becomes (subject to the provisions of the Act) the tenant of the landlord on the same terms as he held from the tenant (sect. 15, sub-s. (3)).

Acceptance of Rent.—Acceptance of rent after the expiration of notice to quit, for a period not exceeding three months, is not to prejudice any right to possession, but if an order for possession is made the rent so paid is to be treated as mesne profits.

NOTE.—This is a very useful provision. A landlord after his notice expired who accepted rent from the tenant, at all events under the name of “rent,” created a new tenancy and the notice to quit was consequently bad.

Jurisdiction of County Court.—Section 17, sub-s. (2), of the Act gives a general jurisdiction to the county court to deal with any claim or other proceedings arising out of the Act or any of its provisions, notwithstanding that the claim, on account of the amount or otherwise, would not be within the jurisdiction of the court. The jurisdiction of the High Court, except in so far as the Act expressly declares that the proceedings are not to be taken therein, is not in words excluded, but the same section declares that if a person takes any proceedings in the High Court which he could have taken in a county court he shall recover no costs.

New Provisions contained in Act of 1923.—Of what may be called entirely new provisions as opposed to amendments contained in the Act of 1923, the following may be mentioned:—

Decontrolment.—Where the landlord of a house to which the Acts apply was in possession of the whole house at the date of the passing of the Act of 1923 (July 31st, 1923) or comes into possession of it after this date, then from such time that he comes into possession, the principal Act is to cease to apply to such house (sect. 2, sub-s. (1)).

This clause is not to apply to a part of a house lawfully sub-let, though the tenant comes into possession of such part, and if the landlord is in or gets possession of part of the house the Act ceases to apply to such part, though a sub-tenant may be in lawful possession of another part (sect. 2, sub-s. (1)).

The section does not apply where the landlord recovers possession of the house for non-payment of rent (sect. 2, sub-s. (1)), nor in some cases where the order for possession is rescinded. See post, pp. 2539–41.

Where the house is by lease or agreement demised or let for a period ending not earlier than one year after the date fixed at the time at which the lease is granted for the expiration of the principal Act, and the term is not less than two years, the principal Act ceases to apply to the house, and a premium or fine may be stipulated for, but, even in such a case the right of any sub-tenant is preserved (sect. 1, sub-s. (2) (3)).

NOTE.—The words in italics are new. See Rent and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions Continuation) Act, 1925, post, p. 2555.

Possession means actual possession ; and a landlord is not to be deemed in possession by reason only of a change of tenancy made with his consent (sect. 2, sub-s. (3)).

Again, where such a lease or agreement as is described in sec. 2, sub-s. (2), supra, has been entered into before the passing of the 1923 Act which expires at some date after June 24th, 1923, at a rent which after, but not before, this date exceeds the statutory rent, the landlord may by three months' notice in writing, expiring not earlier than December 21st, 1923, or later than March 31st, 1924, determine the lease or tenancy, but the lessee or tenant may within a month from such notice give the landlord notice in writing that he elects to abide by the lease or agreement and its terms, and then the lease or agreement is to remain in full force including the rent reserved, unaffected by the principal Act (sect. 3 of Act of 1923).

The county court has now power, on application of landlord or tenant, to determine summarily any question as to amount of rent, standard rent, or net rent of any house within the Act, or as to the increase of rent permitted by the Act of 1920 and the Act of 1923 (sect. 11, sub-s. (1), of Act of 1923), even though no action is pending in the court.

Restrictions after expiry of Principal Act.—Even after the principal Act has expired, if proceedings to recover or eject are taken against the tenant (called the sitting tenant) the court may refuse to make the order if it appears harsh or oppressive that it should be made or may stay or suspend the order on terms, and if the terms are complied with subsequently discharge or rescind it (sect. 12, sub-s. (1)), or may direct that the tenancy of the sitting tenant be treated as a subsisting tenancy and may set aside any notice to quit and determine the fair increase of rent (if any) to be paid (sect. 12, sub-s. (2)). This must not be done if greater hardship would be caused to the landlord by the exercise of such powers than would be caused to the tenant by the refusal (sect. 12, sub-s. (3)).

Even in such cases the rights of sub-tenants are provided for and protected (sect. 12, sub-s. (4)).

Sect. 12 does not apply to proceedings for the recovery of small houses within the Small Tenements Recovery Act, 1838, and on application of the sitting tenant any such proceedings are to be discontinued (subject to rules which may be made for transfer to the county court) (sect. 12, sub-s. (6)).

A sitting tenant of the house which is not in reasonable repair owing to the landlord's default may ask the court to reduce the rent until the repairs are done, and the court is given power to make such reduction (sect. 13).

The county court may, where the house is in occupation of a sitting tenant, on the application of the landlord, restrain the mortgagee from calling in his mortgage or enforcing his security on recovering the principal money if this would cause the landlord exceptional hardship, and rescind or vary any order made for this purpose (sect. 14, sub-s. (1)).

When such an order is made restrictions may be imposed on the mortgagee. These restrictions are set out in sect. 14, sub-s. (2).

Sect. 14 does not apply to a mortgage where money is repayable by instalments extending over a term of not less than ten years.

Reference committees may be appointed by the Minister of Health, to whom questions may be referred by the county court under this part of the Act (sect. 12, sub-s. (5)).

Rules are to be made as to these reference committees (sect. 15), and power is given also to the Lord Chancellor to make rules for giving effect to this part of the Act.

This part of the Act (i.e., the part relating to the restrictions after expiry of the principal Act) remains in force until five years after the expiration of the Increase of Rent and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions) Act, 1920, as amended unless Parliament otherwise determines.

Be it enacted, etc.

Restrictions on Increase of Rent and Mortgage Interest.

1. Subject to the provisions of this Act, where the rent of any dwelling-house to which this Act applies, or the rate of interest on a mortgage to which this Act applies, has been, since the twenty-fifth day of March nineteen hundred and twenty, or is hereafter, increased (a), then, if the increased rent or the increased rate of interest exceeds by more than the amount permitted under this Act the standard rent or standard rate of interest, the amount of such excess shall, notwithstanding any agreement to the contrary, be irrecoverable from the tenant or the mortgagor, as the case may be :

(a) King v. York, (1919) 88 L. J. K. B. 839. The rent cannot be raised to a new tenant except as permitted by the Act. The Act operates in rem and not in personam : Epsom Grand Stand Association v. Clarke, (1919) W. N. 170 ; Brakspear v. Barton, (1924) 93 L. J. K. B. 801 ; Ellen v. Goldstein, (1920) 89 L. J. Ch. 586. An hotel may be a dwelling-house, as may also a house or flat used partly for lodgers if there is a substantial user of it by the tenant for residential purposes (Colls v. Parnham, (1922) 1 K. B. 325 ; 91 L. J. K. B. 335). See, as to rent of cottage given as part of his wages to an agricultural labourer and the power to deduct an increased rent under the Corn Production Act, 1917 (7 & 8 Geo. 5, c. 46), and the orders made thereunder, Baker v. Wood, (1920) 89 L. J. K. B. 344. Where by agreement made on March 12th, 1920, increased rent was stipulated for to commence on March 26th, 1920, which rent exceeded by more than the permitted additions the standard rent in 1914, such increase is irrecoverable (Raikes v. Ogle, (1921) 1 K. B. 576 ; 90 L. J. K. B. 588. See also Glossop v. Ashley, (1921) 2 K. B. 451 ; 90 L. J. K. B. 1237). Poplar Assessment Committee v. Roberts, (1922) 2 A. C. 93 ; 91 L. J. (H. L.) 449, which case decided that the Act does not affect the rateable value of the hereditaments to which it applies.

If the premises are let at less than the standard rent the landlord cannot, after notice, raise the rent to the standard rent, and any permitted increases must be calculated upon the standard rent, and not the actual rent (Dufty v. Palmer, (1924) 2 K. B. 35 ; 93 L. J. K. B. 548).

If the tenant becomes a bankrupt and his trustee in bankruptcy disclaims the tenant's interest in the premises is at an end, and he cannot claim the benefit of the Act, Parkinson and Exors. v. Noel (1923) 1 K. B. 117 ; 92 L. J. K. B. 261.

Provided that, where a landlord or mortgagee has increased the rent of any such dwelling-house or the rate of interest on any such mortgage since the said date, but before the passing of this Act, he may cancel such increase and repay any amount paid by virtue thereof, and in that case the rent or rate shall not be deemed to have been increased since that date.

rent.

2.—(1) The amount by which the increased rent of a dwelling-house to which this Act applies may exceed the standard rent shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be as follows, that is to say :—

(a) Where the landlord has since the fourth day of August nineteen hundred and fourteen incurred, or hereafter incurs, expenditure on the improvement or structural alteration of the dwelling-house (not including expenditure on decoration or repairs), an amount calculated at a rate per annum not exceeding six, or, in the case of such expenditure incurred after the passing of this Act, eight per cent. of the amount so expended :

Provided that the tenant may apply to the county court for an order suspending or reducing such increase on the ground that such expenditure is or was unnecessary in whole or in part, and the court may make an order accordingly :

(b) An amount not exceeding any increase in the amount for the time being payable by the landlord in respect of rates over the corresponding amount paid in respect of the yearly, half-yearly or other period which included the third day of August nineteen hundred and fourteen, or in the case of a dwelling-house for which no rates were payable in respect of any period which included the said date, the period which included the date on which the rates first became payable thereafter :

Where the rates are increased by an increase in the rateable value and the landlord has to pay such increased rate, he may raise the rent to the extent he is so obliged to pay without transgressing this section of the Act, though the rate itself has not been increased (Steel and Another v. Mahoney, (1918) 34 T. L. R. 327).

Only the net and not the gross increase in rates may be added. The landlord cannot take into account the advantage he gets by compounding for them (Nicholson v. Jackson, House of Lords, (1921) 90 L. J. K. B. 1121; Conolly v. Whelan, (1920) Ir. L. T. 18). As to the period over which the rate extends and the period for which the increase can be demanded, see Cardiff Corporation v. Isaacs (1921), 90 L. J. K. B. 1108.

Where the increase, on account of increase of rates, has been properly made, but the rates are subsequently reduced, the rent must be henceforward reduced pro rata (Strickland v. Palmer, (1924) 2 K. B. 572; 93 L. J. K. B. 1033).

- (c) In addition to any such amounts as aforesaid, an amount not exceeding fifteen per centum of the net rent :

Provided that, except in the case of a dwelling-house to which this Act applies but the enactments repealed by this Act did not apply, the amount of such addition shall not, during a period of one year after the passing of this Act, exceed five per cent. :

- (d) In further addition to any such amounts as aforesaid—

(i.) where the landlord is responsible for the whole of the repairs, an amount not exceeding twenty-five per cent. of the net rent ; or

(ii.) where the landlord is responsible for part and not the whole of the repairs, such lesser amount as may be agreed, or as may, on the application of the landlord or the tenant, be determined by the county court to be fair and reasonable having regard to such liability :

NOTE.—Before the landlord, who is responsible for part repairs only, can give notice of increase under this clause (clause (d)) the amount for which the tenant is responsible must have been ascertained, either by agreement or determined by the county court (see Bourne v. Litton, (1924) 1 K. B. 231; 2 K. B. 10; 93 L. J. K. B. 553; Brakspear v. Barton, (1924) 93 L. J. K. B. 801; Jones v. Phillips and Geen, (1925) 1 K. B. 659; 94 L. J. K. B. 413).

- (e) In the case of dwelling-houses let by a railway company to persons in the employment of the company, such additional amount, if any, as is required in order to give effect to the agreement dated the first day of March nineteen hundred and twenty, relating to the rates of pay and conditions of employment of certain persons in the employment of railway companies, or any agreement, whether made before or after the passing of this Act, extending or modifying that agreement.

Apparently inserted to carry out an arrangement as to pay of railway servants; dated March 1st, 1920.

NOTE.—Further increases are now permitted in the case of sub-tenancies (see sect. 7 of Act of 1923, post, p. 2547).

(2) At any time or times, not being less than three months after the date of any increase permitted by paragraph (d) of the foregoing sub-section, the tenant or the sanitary authority may apply to the county court for an order suspending such increase, and also any increase under paragraph (c) of that sub-section, on the ground that the house is not in all respects reasonably fit for human habitation, or is otherwise not in a reasonable state of repair.

The court on being satisfied by the production of a certificate of the sanitary authority or otherwise that any such ground as aforesaid is established, and on being further satisfied that the condition of the house is not due to the tenant's neglect or default or breach of express agreement, shall order that the increase be suspended until the court is satisfied, on the report of the sanitary authority or otherwise, that the necessary repairs (other than the repairs, if any, for which the tenant is liable) have been executed, and on the making of such order the increase shall cease to have effect until the court is so satisfied.

This sub-section is not repealed, but increased rights are given to the tenant by sects. 5 and 18 of the 1923 Act. The obtaining a certificate from the sanitary authority that the house is not in a reasonable state of repair, and serving the landlord with a copy thereof, is made prima facie a defence to any claim by the landlord for increased rent under para. (c) or para. (d) of sub-sect. (1) of sect. 2 of the principal Act (i.e., the increases of 15 per cent. and 25 per cent.) unless the condition of the house is due to the tenant's neglect or default or breach of agreement (sect. 5 of Act of 1923).

Under the former section the tenant had to wait for three months after the increase before applying to the court, and the court then could only suspend the increases until the repairs had been done.

Sect. 18 prescribes what the certificate of the sanitary authority shall deal with, and makes such a certificate signed by the proper officer evidence, also the certificate of the county agricultural committee (under sect. 5, sub-s. (11) of the principal Act), and declares that the expression "repairs" shall be deemed to mean "good and tenable repair."

See Morgan v. Liverpool Corporation, (1927) 96 L. J. K. B. 234.

(3) Any transfer to a tenant of any burden or liability previously borne by the landlord shall, for the purposes of this Act, be treated as an alteration of rent, and where, as the result of such a transfer, the terms on which a dwelling-house is held are on the whole less favourable to the tenant than the previous terms, the rent shall be deemed to be increased, whether or not the sum periodically payable by way of rent is increased, and any increase of rent in respect of any transfer to a landlord of any burden or liability previously borne by the tenant where, as the result of such transfer, the terms on which any dwelling-house is held are on the whole not less favourable to the tenant than the previous terms, shall be deemed not to be an increase of rent for the purposes of this Act: Provided that, for the purposes of this section, the rent shall not be deemed to be increased where the liability for rates is transferred from the landlord to the tenant, if a corresponding reduction is made in the rent.

See Artizans Labourers Dwellings Co., Ltd. v. Whittaker, (1919) 88 L. J. K. B. 859; Hornsby v. Maynard, (1925) 1 K. B. 514; 94 L. J. K. B. 380; Ebner v. Lascelles, (1928) 97 L. J. K. B. 497.

(4) On any application to a sanitary authority for a certificate or report under this section a fee of one shilling shall be payable, but, if the authority as the result of such application issues such a certificate as aforesaid, the tenant shall be entitled to deduct the fee from any subsequent payment of rent.

See sect. 18 of Act of 1923.

(5) For the purposes of this section, the expression "repairs" means any repairs required for the purpose of keeping premises in good and tenantable repair, and any premises in such a state shall be deemed to be in a reasonable state of repair, and the landlord shall be deemed to be responsible for any repairs for which the tenant is under no express liability.

See sect. 18, sub-s. (5) of Act of 1923. See ante, p. 2495.

See Proudfoot v. Hart, (1890) 25 Q. B. D. 42.

(6) Any question arising under sub-section (1), (2) or (3) of this section shall be determined on the application either of the landlord (a) or the tenant by the county court, and the decision of the court shall be final and conclusive.

"Final and conclusive" in the above sub-section means that they are so in special applications under these sub-sections only, otherwise the general right of appeal, on a question of law raised under the Rent Acts, from the county court to the High Court remains (Strickland v. Palmer, (1924) 2 K. B. 572; 93 L. J. K. B. 1033).

(a) The word "landlord" in the above clause includes, in relation to a sub-tenancy, not only the person who is immediate landlord of the sub-tenant, but also the landlord of that person (sect. 7 (3) of Act of 1923).

A county court judge, however, had no jurisdiction to entertain an action to determine what is the proper standard rent as a purely abstract question. He could only deal with it when it arose in connection with some dispute (Broomhall v. Property Agents and Owners, Ltd., (1922) 1 K. B. 311; 91 L. J. K. B. 332), though he had jurisdiction under sect. 12, sub-s. (3), to make an apportionment of the rent of a house to which the Act applies, though no action is pending (Rex v. Marylebone County Court Judge, (1923) 1 K. B. 365; 92 L. J. K. B. 367).

This is altered by sect. 11 of the Act of 1923. See post, p. 2549.

3.—(1) Nothing in this Act shall be taken to authorise any increase of rent except in respect of a period during which, but for this Act, the landlord would be entitled to obtain possession, or any increase in the rate of interest on a mortgage except Limitation as to permitted increases in rent.

respect of a period during which, but for this Act, the security could be enforced.

It was finally decided by the House of Lords in the case of Kerr v. Bryde, (1923) 92 L. J. (H. L.) that no notice of increase was valid unless a valid notice to quit had been given, and the term had expired, but this has been virtually repealed by the Rent Restrictions (Notices of Increase) Act, 1923, which, where notice to increase the rent has been given, declares that a notice to quit shall be implied. See post, p. 2535.

Newell v. Crayford Cottage Society, (1922) 1 K. B. 656; 91 L. J. K. B. 626.

Although rent could not be raised until the determination of the tenancy by notice or otherwise (A. C. 16), yet notice to increase the rent may be given during the continuance of the tenancy, though it can only operate after. The notice to increase and the notice to quit may be given at the same time (Hill v. Hasler, (1921) 3 K. B. 643; (1922) 91 L. J. K. B. 134). See new Act.

The former Act applied even where the tenant himself has given notice to quit and then holds over; but see sect. 5, sub-s. (1) (c), of this Act, post, p. 2510.

Schmidt v. Christy, (1922) 2 K. B. 60; 91 L. J. K. B. 629. Under Act of 1920 even on granting new tenancy to under-tenant notice to quit was necessary before standard rent could be increased.

(2) Notwithstanding any agreement to the contrary, where the rent of any dwelling-house to which this Act applies is increased, no such increase shall be due or recoverable until or in respect of any period prior to the expiry of four clear weeks, or, where such increase is on account of an increase in rates, one clear week, after the landlord has served upon the tenant a valid notice in writing (a) of his intention to increase the rent, which notice shall be in the form contained in the First Schedule to this Act, or in a form substantially to the same effect. If a notice served as aforesaid contains any statement or representation which is false or misleading in any material respect, the landlord shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding ten pounds unless he proves that the statement was made innocently and without intent to deceive. Where a notice of an increase of rent which at the time was valid has been served on any tenant, the increase may be continued without service of any fresh notice on any subsequent tenant.

(a) NOTE.—The court may now amend a defective notice on terms (sect. 6 of Act of 1923, post, p. 2546).

See Bridges v. Chambers, (1919) 88 L. J. K. B. 500; Hill v. Hasler (supra). Where the landlord claimed a greater increase than he was entitled to under the Act the notice was held to be invalid, though it substantially conformed to the form required by the Act (Penfold and Thompson v. Newman, (1922) 1 K. B. 645; 91 L. J. K. B. 528).

The notice to increase is necessary, not only where a tenant is in occupation under the Act after the expiry of his tenancy, but also (subject to the exception at the end of the above sub-section) in the case of a new tenant (Schmidt v. Christy, (1922) 2 K. B. 60; 91 L. J. K. B. 629).

(3) A notice served before the passing of this Act of an intention to make any increase of rent which is permissible only by virtue of this Act shall not be deemed to be a valid notice for the purpose of this section.

4. The amount by which the increased rate of interest payable in respect of a mortgage to which this Act applies may exceed the standard rate, shall be an amount not exceeding one per cent. per annum :

Permitted increase in rate of mortgage interest.

Provided that—

- (a) the rate shall not be increased so as to exceed six and a half per cent. per annum ; and
- (b) except in the case of a dwelling-house to which this Act applies but the enactments repealed by this Act did not apply, the increase during a period of one year after the passing of this Act shall not exceed one-half per cent. per annum.

The mortgagee is only entitled to the above increases, and not to increases which might have been lawful under the repealed Act of 1915 (Hollings v. Cooper, (1922) 91 L. J. Ch. 297).

Further Restrictions and Obligations on Landlords and Mortgagees.

Restriction on right to possession

Section 4 of Act of 1923 substituted for sect. 5 of principal Act.

Sect. 4 for 5.—(1) No order or judgment for the recovery of possession of any dwelling-house to which this Act applies, or for the ejectment of a tenant therefrom, shall be made or given, unless—

NOTE.—A publichouse which contains dwelling-house accommodation is “a dwelling-house” within the Act (Waller & Son, Ltd. v. Thomas, (1921) 1 K. B. 541). Quære, if it may not also be business premises within sect. 13 of the Act, which section has, however, now expired.

Where the action to recover possession is brought in the High Court and the Act is relied upon as a defence, no order for summary judgment can be made under Order XIV. (Gill v. Luck, (1924) 93 L. J. K. B. 60).

An action against a trespasser for the recovery of premises prima facie within the protection of the Rent Restriction Act, is not an action arising out of the Act within the meaning of sect. 17, sub-s. (2) of the Act of 1920 (Gunter v. Davis, (1925) 1 K. B. 124 ; 94 L. J. K. B. 352).

- (a) any rent lawfully due from the tenant has not been paid, or any other obligation of the tenancy (whether under the contract of tenancy or under this Act) so far as the same is consistent with the provisions of this Act has been broken or not performed ; or

See ante, p. 2497.

A lessee of a term must continue to pay rent to his landlord though the premises were requisitioned by the War Office, who entered into possession of them (Whitehall Court, Ltd. v. Ettlinger, (1920) 89 L. J. K. B. 126).

If a statutory tenant commits breaches of covenant of the lease under which he held the premises he is not entitled to relief under the Conveyancing Act, 1881, for the provisions of this Act as to relief are not applicable to a statutory tenant (Brewer v. Jacobs, (1923) 92 L. J. K. B. 359).

- (b) the tenant or any person residing or lodging with him or being his sub-tenant has been guilty of conduct which is a nuisance or annoyance to adjoining occupiers, or has been convicted of using the premises or allowing the premises to be used for an immoral or illegal purpose, or the condition of the dwelling-house has, in the opinion of the court, deteriorated owing to acts of waste by or the neglect or default of the tenant or any such person, and, where such person is a lodger or sub-tenant, the court is satisfied that the tenant has not, before the making or giving of the order or judgment, taken such steps as he ought reasonably to have taken for the removal of the lodger or sub-tenant; or

"Convicted of using the premises or allowing them to be used for an immoral or illegal purpose." A tenant convicted of receiving at the premises goods knowing them to have been stolen is within this clause, and may be ejected (Schneiders and Sons v. Abrahams, (1925) 1 K. B. 301; 94 L. J. K. B. 408).

(c) the tenant has given notice to quit, and in consequence of that notice the landlord has contracted to sell or let the dwelling-house or has taken any other steps as a result of which he would, in the opinion of the court, be seriously prejudiced if he could not obtain possession; or

A departure of the tenant without giving any notice to quit does not satisfy the requirements of this clause (clause (c)) (Standingford v. Bruce, (1926) 95 L. J. K. B. 223).

Where the tenant gave notice to quit, and during the currency of such notice, with the landlord's consent, sub-let the premises for the remainder of the unexpired notice, it was held that the person so obtaining possession of the premises was not a sub-tenant within the meaning of the Act; and though he had not given notice to quit, the landlord was entitled to an order for recovery of the premises against him (Lord Hylton v. Heal, (1921) 2 K. B. 438; 90 L. J. K. B. 606).

The words of this clause (c) must be strictly complied with before an order for possession is made under it. Thus, where the tenant agreed with the landlord, who wished to sell the house with vacant possession, for a consideration to give notice to quit and deliver up the house on the termination of such notice, and afterwards refused to do so, no order for possession can be made, for no "notice to quit" had been given by the tenant (Barton v. Fincham, (1921) 2 K. B. 291 90 L. J. K. B. 451; De Vries v. Sparks, (1927) 137 L. T. 441).

NOTE.—As to liability to be sued for double rent under the Rent Act of 1737, see Crook v. Whitehead, (1919) 35 T. L. R. 522; and Green Price v. Webb, (1919) 36 T. L. R. 29. See also Hunt v. Bliss, (1920) 89 L. J. K. B. 174. If the tenant gives notice to quit and then remains in possession he is liable to pay double rent under the Act of 1737, notwithstanding the provisions of the Increase of Rent and Mortgage Interest (War Restrictions) Act, 1915, as amended by sect. 1 of the Increase of Rent, &c. (Amendment) Act, 1918 (Flannagan v. Shaw, (1920) 3 K. B. 96), even where after expiration of the notice the landlord assigns his reversion to another (Northcote v. Roche, (1921) 37 T. L. R. 364).

In the cases where the application is made under clause (a), (b) or (c) (supra), no question of alternative accommodation can arise (Waller & Son, Ltd. v. Thomas, (1921) 1 K. B. 541).

Where a closing order for the house has been made by a local authority and the tenant has not given up possession in the stipulated time, he cannot retake possession of the house after the house has been repaired. He is not protected by the Act (Blake v. Smith, (1921) 90 L. J. K. B. 1140).

(d) the dwelling-house is reasonably required by the landlord for occupation as a residence for himself, or for any son or daughter of his over eighteen years of age, or for any person bonâ fide residing with him, or for some person engaged in his whole time employment or in the whole time employment of some tenant from him or with whom, conditional on housing accommodation being provided, a contract for such employment has been entered into, and (except as otherwise provided by this sub-section) the court is satisfied that alternative accommodation is available which is reasonably suitable to the means of the tenant and to the needs of the tenant and his family as regards extent, character, and proximity to place of work and which consists either of a dwelling-house to which this Act applies, or of premises to be let as a separate dwelling on terms which will afford to the tenant security of tenure reasonably equivalent to the security afforded by this Act in the case of a dwelling-house to which this Act applies ;

See now, where the dwelling-house is required by the landlord as a residence for himself, or for any son or daughter over eighteen years of age, and no alternative accommodation is available, sect. 1 of the Prevention of Eviction Act, 1924 (post, p. 2554), substituted for paragraphs (iv.) and (v.) of sub-s. 1 of this section. The effect seems to be that if alternative accommodation is available, such an application ought to be made under clause (d), supra. If there is no alternative accommodation the application should be based on sect. 1 of the Prevention of Eviction Act, which lays down the test of greater hardship (Thompson v. Rolls, (1926) 2 K. B. 426 ; 95 L. J. K. B. 901).

See Crutchley v. White, (1920) 89 L. J. K. B. 815 ; Rex v. Rogers, (1918) W. N. 128 ; Smith v. Bridgen, (1920) W. N. 106. Where the house is so required, the onus is on the tenant to show the absence of "alternative accommodation." See Bazalgette v. Hampson, (1920) 89 L. J. K. B. 476. The alternative accommodation must be available at the time the action is before the court, and, generally speaking, the onus is upon the landlord seeking an order of possession to satisfy the court that this is so (Neville v. Hardy, (1921) 1 Ch. 404 ; 90 L. J. Ch. 158 ; also Kimpson v. Markham, (1921) 2 K. B. 157 ; 90 L. J. K. B. 393). The mere fact of a tenant having another dwelling-place does not necessarily absolve the landlord from showing that alternative accommodation for the house he desires to recover is available (Flint v. Ead, (1922) 91 L. J. K. B. 132). The Act applies to tenancies for fixed terms in the same way as to continuing tenancies which are determinable by a notice to quit ; see Cruise v. Terrell, (1922) 1 K. B. 664 ; 91 L. J. K. B. 499.

The person for whom the house is required (if a servant) must not only have been engaged for a whole-time employment but have been actually working for the landlord at the time of the application to the court. Spencer v. Fox, (1922), 91 L. J. K. B. 929. Now it is sufficient if a contract for such employment has been entered into. See supra, sub-s. (d).

(e) the dwelling-house is reasonably required for the purpose of the execution of the statutory duties or powers of a local authority, or statutory undertaking, or for any purpose which, in the opinion of the court, is in the public interest, and the court in either case is satisfied as aforesaid as respects alternative accommodation ; or

The Rent Restriction Acts impose no obligation on a local authority seeking to recover possession of a dwelling-house of showing that alternative accommodation is available where the premises are required for an improvement scheme under the Housing, Town Planning, etc., Acts. See sect. 128 of Housing Act, 1925 (15 Geo. 5, c. 14), and Parry v. Harding, (1925) 1 K. B. 111 ; 94 L. J. K. B. 37.

- (f) the landlord became the landlord after service in any of His Majesty's forces during the war and requires the house for his personal occupation and offers the tenant accommodation on reasonable terms in the same dwelling-house, such accommodation being considered by the court as reasonably sufficient in the circumstances ; or

The court is, in an application for possession under this clause, entitled to consider who are persons in actual occupation at the time, even though one of those persons may be a lodger in the house. The amount of furniture the tenant requires may also be one of the circumstances to be taken into account by the judge (Chiverton v. Ede, (1921) 2 K. B. 30 ; 90 L. J. K. B. 491).

- (g) the dwelling-house is required for occupation as a residence by a former tenant thereof who gave up occupation in consequence of his service in any of His Majesty's forces during the war ;

That the landlord reasonably requires the premises for a new tenant does not justify the court in making an order for possession, as a new tenant is not a person named in the Act (Price v. Pritchard, (1920) 89 L. J. K. B. 162).

Under clause (g), supra, it is not the returned soldier who acquires any right to eject the tenant in occupation of the house he gave up to serve in the forces. The court can make the order under this clause, as under the other clauses of sect. 5, only if the action is brought by the landlord of the premises and he alleges this as his reason for desiring an order of recovery (Goodwin v. Rhodes, (1921) 2 K. B. 182 ; 90 L. J. K. B. 533 ; Messenger v. Hutton, (1921) 37 T. L. R. 464).

- (h) the tenant without the consent of the landlord has at any time after the thirty-first day of July, nineteen hundred and twenty-three, assigned or sub-let the whole of the dwelling-house or sub-let part of the dwelling-house, the remainder being already sub-let ; or

- (i) the dwelling-house consists of or includes premises licensed for the sale of intoxicating liquor, and the tenant has committed an offence as holder of the licence or has not conducted the business to the satisfaction of the licensing justices or the police authority, or has carried it on in a manner detrimental to the public interest, or the renewal of the licence has for any reason been refused ;

and, in any such case as aforesaid, the court considers it reasonable to make such an order or give such judgment.

The county court judge is not deprived of the discretion conferred on him from extending the time for possession owing to the fact that the original order was one made by consent (Rossiter v. Langley, (1925) 1 K. B. 741; 44 L. J. K. B. 400).

In every case the judge, before making an order for possession, must take into consideration every circumstance that may affect the interest of the landlord or tenant, including the financial hardship, if any, which the tenant must suffer if the order was made (Williamson v. Pallant, (1924) K. B. 173; 93 L. J. K. B. 726).

The existence of alternative accommodation shall not be a condition of an order or judgment on any of the grounds specified in paragraph (d) of this sub-section—

- (i.) where the tenant was in the employment of the landlord or a former landlord, and the dwelling-house was let to him in consequence of that employment and he has ceased to be in that employment; or

It must be shown not only that the landlord let, but that the tenant, took the dwelling-house in consequence of the employment (Frederick Braby & Co. v. Bedwell, (1926) 1 K. B. 456; 95 L. J. K. B. 412).

This sub-section was held to apply though after the tenant left the employment he continued to occupy the house at a higher rent than before, but the facts were exceptional (Lever Bros. v. Caton, (1921) 37 T. L. R. 664).

- (ii.) where the court is satisfied by a certificate of the county agricultural committee, or of the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries pending the formation of such committee, that the dwelling-house is required by the landlord for the occupation of a person engaged on work necessary for the proper working of an agricultural holding, or with whom, conditional on housing accommodation being provided, a contract for employment on such work has been entered into;
- (iii.) where the landlord gave up the occupation of the dwelling-house in consequence of his service in any of His Majesty's forces during the war; or
- (iv.) where the landlord or the husband or wife of the landlord became the landlord before the thirtieth day of June, nineteen hundred and twenty-two, and the dwelling-house is reasonably required by him for occupation as a residence for himself or for any son or daughter of his over eighteen years of age; or
- (v.) where the landlord or the husband or wife of the landlord did not become the landlord before the thirtieth day of June, nineteen hundred and twenty-two, and the dwelling-house is reasonably required by him for occupation as a residence for himself or for any son or daughter of his over eighteen years of age, and the court is satisfied that greater hardship would be caused by refusing to grant an order or judgment for possession than by granting it.

The above paragraphs (iv.) and (v.) printed in italics are repealed by the Prevention of Eviction Act, 1924 (14 & 15 Geo. 5. c. 18, sect. 1), post, p. 2554, as respects pending as well as future proceedings, and the following paragraph is substituted therefor :—

Where the dwelling-house is reasonably required by the landlord (not being a landlord who has become landlord by purchasing the dwelling-house or any interest therein after the fifth day of May, nineteen hundred and twenty-four) for occupation as a residence for himself or for any son or daughter of his over eighteen years of age, and the court is satisfied, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, including any alternative accommodation available for the landlord or the tenant, that greater hardship would be caused by refusing to grant an order or judgment for possession than by granting it.

The test is now, where the house is required by a landlord for a residence for himself or for his son or daughter over eighteen years of age, would greater hardship be caused by refusing the application than by granting it. This is the test irrespective of the date at which the landlord purchased the house, or any interest therein, so long as he has not purchased since May 5th, 1924.

The question of alternative accommodation only enters into the matter as being one of the factors to be considered in deciding the question of greater hardship.

See Prevention of Eviction Act, 1924, post, p. 2554.

(2) At the time of the application for or the making or giving of any order or judgment for the recovery of possession of any such dwelling-house, or for the ejectment of a tenant therefrom, or in the case of any such order or judgment which has been made or given, whether before or after the passing of this Act, and not executed, at any subsequent time, the court may adjourn the application, or stay or suspend execution on any such order or judgment, or postpone the date of possession, for such period or periods as it thinks fit, and subject to such conditions (if any) in regard to payment by the tenant of arrears of rent, rent, or mesne profits and otherwise as the court thinks fit, and, if such conditions are complied with, the court may, if it thinks fit, discharge or rescind any such order or judgment.

(3) Where any order or judgment has been made or given before the passing of this Act, but not executed, and, in the opinion of the court, the order or judgment would not have been made or given if this Act had been in force at the time when such order or judgment was made or given, the court may, on application by the tenant, rescind or vary such order or judgment in such manner as the court may think fit for the purpose of giving effect to this Act.

NOTE.—The Prevention of Eviction Act, 1924, contains a clause similar to the above (clause 3), where the order or judgment would not, in the opinion of the court, have been made or given if the Prevention of Eviction Act had been in force at the time it was made. See sect. 2 of this Act, post, p. 2554.

The word "may" in the above sub-section means "may" and not "shall." It is entirely in the judge's discretion (Taylor v. Faires, (1921) 90 L. J. K. B. 391).

The above sub-section does not apply where the order sought to be rescinded or varied was made by consent (Wellesley v. White, (1921) 2 K. B. 204; 90 L. J. K. B. 926); but see as to general power of the county court judge to extend the time for giving possession even where the order was made by consent of the parties Rossiter v. Langley, (1925) 1 K. B. 741; 94 L. J. K. B. 400 (Wellesley v. White, supra, distinguished).

(4) Notwithstanding anything in section one hundred and fifty-four of the County Courts Act, 1888, or in section one of the Small Tenements Recovery Act, 1838, every warrant for delivery of possession of, or to enter and give possession of, any dwelling-house to which this Act applies, shall remain in force for three months from the day next after the last day named in the judgment or order for delivery of possession or ejectment, or, in the case of a warrant under the Small Tenements Recovery Act, 1838, from the date of the issue of the warrant, and in either case for such further period or periods, if any, as the court shall from time to time, whether before or after the expiration of such three months, direct. 51 & 52 Vict. c. 43.
1 & 2 Vict. c. 74.

(5) An order or judgment against a tenant for the recovery of possession of any dwelling-house or ejectment therefrom under this section shall not affect the right of any sub-tenant to whom the premises or any part thereof have been lawfully sublet before proceedings for recovery of possession or ejectment were commenced, to retain possession under this section, or be in any way operative against any such sub-tenant.

(6) Where a landlord has obtained an order or judgment for possession or ejectment under this section on the ground that he requires a dwelling-house for his own occupation, and it is subsequently made to appear to the court that the order or judgment was obtained by misrepresentation or the concealment of material facts, the court may order the landlord to pay to the former tenant such sum as appears sufficient as compensation for damage or loss sustained by that tenant as the result of the order or judgment.

(7) The provisions of the last preceding sub-section shall apply in any case where the landlord has, after the thirty-first day of July, nineteen hundred and twenty-three, obtained an order or judgment for possession or ejectment on any of the grounds specified in paragraph (d) of sub-section (1) of this section, and it is subsequently made to appear to the court that the order or judgment was obtained by misrepresentation or concealment of material facts, and in any such case the court may, if it thinks fit, in addition to making an order for payment of compensation by the landlord to the former tenant, direct that the dwelling-house shall not be excluded from this Act by reason of the landlord having come into possession thereof under the said order or judgment, and, if such a direction is given, this Act shall apply and be deemed to have applied to the dwelling-house as from the date mentioned in such direction.

No agreement between parties can give the judge jurisdiction which by sect. 5 of the Act he is forbidden to exercise except under the conditions laid down in the section (Barton v. Fincham, (1921) 37 T. L. R. 386).

Restriction on levy of distress for rent.

6. No distress for the rent of any dwelling-house to which this Act applies shall be levied except with the leave of the county court, and the court shall, with respect to any application for such leave, have the same or similar powers with respect to adjournment, stay, suspension, postponement and otherwise as are conferred by the last preceding section of this Act in relation to applications for the recovery of possession :

Provided that this section shall not apply to distress levied under section one hundred and sixty of the County Courts Act, 1888.

4 & 5 Geo. 5,
c. 78.

The provisions of this section shall be in addition to and not in derogation of any of the provisions of the Courts (Emergency Powers) Act, 1914 (a), or any Act amending or extending the same, except so far as those provisions are repealed by this Act.

(a) The Courts (Emergency Powers) Act, 1914, is now virtually repealed.

The court to which application is made for leave to distrain in exercising its discretion is not restricted to the consideration of whether inability to pay is due to the war, but must look at all other questions raised under this section, such for example as the question whether the rent is really due and payable by the tenant (Townsend v. Charlton, (1922) 1 K. B. 700; 91 L. J. K. B. 714).

Restriction on calling in of mortgages.

7. It shall not be lawful for any mortgagee under a mortgage to which this Act applies, so long as—

(a) interest at the rate permitted under this Act is paid and is not more than twenty-one days in arrear; and

(b) the covenants by the mortgagor (other than the covenant for the repayment of the principal money secured) are performed and observed; and

A mortgagor out of possession cannot rely on the fact that he cannot enter to do the repairs required by the covenant (Walters v. Smith, (1917) 33 T. L. R. 154). Interest is not paid merely from the fact that the mortgagee is in possession and in receipt of the rents (Walters v. Smith, supra).

(c) the mortgagor keeps the property in a proper state of repair and pays all interest and instalments of principal recoverable under any prior encumbrance, to call in his mortgage or to take any steps for exercising any right of foreclosure or sale, or for otherwise enforcing his security or for recovering the principal money thereby secured :

When any of the conditions of the mortgage set out in the above section are once broken, the mortgagor loses the protection of the Act and a subsequent compliance does not revive the protection (Evans v. Horner, (1925) 11 Ch. 177).

As to what is "a proper state of repair," see Woodfield v. Bond, (1922) 2 Ch. 40; 91 L. J. Ch. 561.

This section applies retrospectively where the writ for foreclosure or sale was issued before the prohibition came into operation (Welby v. Parker, (1916) 2 Ch. 1). "Mortgage." See London County and Westminster Bank v. Tomkins, (1918) 1 K. B. 515; 87 L. J. K. B. 662.

Provided that—

- (i.) this provision shall not apply to a mortgage where the principal money secured thereby is repayable by means of periodical instalments extending over a term of not less than ten years from the creation of the mortgage, nor shall this provision affect any power of sale exercisable by a mortgagee who was on the twenty-fifth day of March nineteen hundred and twenty a mortgagee in possession, or in cases where the mortgagor consents to the exercise by the mortgagee of the powers conferred by the mortgage; and
- (ii.) if, in the case of a mortgage of a leasehold interest the mortgagee satisfies the county court that his security is seriously diminishing in value or is otherwise in jeopardy, and that for that reason it is reasonable that the mortgage should be called in and enforced, the court may by order authorise him to call in and enforce the same, and thereupon this section shall not apply to such mortgage; but any such order may be made subject to a condition that it shall not take effect if the mortgagor within such time as the court directs pays to the mortgagee such portion of the principal sum secured as appears to the court to correspond to the diminution of the security.

See sect. 14 of Act of 1923, as to rights of mortgagee after the expiry of the principal Act.

8.—(1) A person shall not, as a condition of the grant, renewal, Restriction or continuance of a tenancy or sub-tenancy of any dwelling-house on premiums.
to which this Act applies, require the payment of any fine, premium, or other like sum, or the giving of any pecuniary consideration, in addition to the rent, and, where any such payment or consideration has been made or given in respect of any such dwelling-house under an agreement made after the twenty-fifth day of March nineteen hundred and twenty, the amount or value thereof shall be recoverable by the person by whom it was made or given:

See sect. 9 of Act of 1923, post, p. 2548.

See now sect. 2, sub-s. (2), of Act of 1923, allowing premium to be obtained in certain cases where a lease of his dwelling-house has been granted, post, p. 2541; also sect. 3 as to the rights of parties where a lease or agreement for a term was granted before the Act of 1923 came into force.

NOTE.—The assignment of a lease or residue of a term for valuable consideration is not within the prohibition contained in this sub-section (Mason, Herring and Brooks v. Harris, (1921) 1 K. B. 653; 90 L. J. K. B. 993). The word “grant” in the sub-section probably refers to the creation of a tenancy between the grantor and the grantee, and not an assignment of a tenancy (id.) even where the tenant who surrenders the remainder of his term for valuable consideration induces the landlord to grant a new tenancy to the person who pays him the consideration (Remington v. Larchin, (1921) 3 K. B. 404; 90 L. J. K. B. 1248).

Provided that, where any agreement has been made since the said date but before the passing of this Act for the tenancy of a house to which this Act applies, but the enactments repealed by this Act did not apply, and the agreement includes provision for the payment of any fine, premium, or other like sum, or the giving of any pecuniary consideration in addition to the rent, that agreement shall, without prejudice to the operation of this section, be voidable at the option of either party thereto.

(2) A person requiring any payment or the giving of any consideration in contravention of this section shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds, and the court by which he is convicted may order the amount paid or the value of the consideration to be repaid to the person by whom the same was made or given, but such order shall be in lieu of any other method of recovery prescribed by this Act.

(3) This section shall not apply to the grant, renewal or continuance for a term of fourteen years or upwards of any tenancy.

See Courts (Emergency Powers) Act, 1917, sect. 4 (1), now repealed.

NOTE.—Where after the passing of the Act of 1923 a valid lease or agreement for the letting of the dwelling-house for a term ending after June 24th, 1926, is entered into, being a term of not less than two years, the principal Act ceases to apply to the house and a premium or fine may be stipulated for, but the right of the sub-tenant is still preserved (sect. 2, sub-s. (2), of Act of 1923).

NOTE.—The words in italics are repealed. The words substituted are “not earlier than one year after the date fixed at the time at which the lease is granted, for the expiration of the principal Act.” See Rent and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions Continuation) Act, 1925, sect. 1, 3 (b).

The whole transaction must be looked at. If under the guise of lease and premium the agreement amounts to one to pay more than the standard rent, it is a bad agreement and unenforceable (Rush v. Matthews, (1926) 1 K. B. 492; 95 L. J. K. B. 409).

Limitation on rent of houses let furnished.

9.—(1) Where any person lets, or has, before the passing of this Act, let any dwelling-house to which this Act applies, or any part thereof, at a rent which includes payment in respect of the use of furniture, and it is proved to the satisfaction of the county court on the application of the lessee that the rent charged is yielding or will yield to the lessor a profit more than twenty-five per cent. in excess of the normal profit as hereinafter defined, the court may order that the rent, so far as it exceeds such sum as would yield such normal profit and twenty-five per cent. shall be irrecoverable, and that the amount of any payment of rent in excess of such sum which may have been made in respect of any period after the passing of this Act, shall be repaid to the lessee.

(2) For the purpose of this section, "normal profit" means the profit which might reasonably have been expected from a similar letting in the year ending on the third day of August nineteen hundred and fourteen.

See purchase of furniture at unreasonable price, sect. 9 of Act of 1923, post, p. 2548.

10. Where any person after the passing of this Act lets any dwelling-house to which this Act applies or any part thereof at a rent which includes payment in respect of the use of furniture, and the rent charged yields to the lessor a profit which, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, and in particular to the margin of profit allowed under the last preceding section of this Act, is extortionate, then, without prejudice to any other remedy under this Act, the lessor shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds, and the court by which he is convicted may order that the rent so far as it exceeds the amount permitted by the last preceding section of this Act shall be irrecoverable and that the amount of any such excess shall be repaid to the lessee, but any such order shall be in lieu of any other method of recovery prescribed by this Act.

11. A landlord of any dwelling-house to which this Act applies shall, on being so requested in writing by the tenant of the dwelling-house, supply him with a statement in writing as to what is the standard rent of the dwelling-house, and if, without reasonable excuse, he fails within fourteen days to do so, or supplies a statement which is false in any material particular, he shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding ten pounds

Application and Interpretation of Act.

12.—(1) For the purposes of this Act, except where the context otherwise requires:—

(a) The expression "standard rent" means the rent at which the dwelling-house was let on the third day of August nineteen hundred and fourteen, or, where the dwelling-house was not let on that date, the rent at which it was last let before that date, or, in the case of a dwelling-house which was first let after the said third day of August, the rent at which it was first let:

Provided that, in the case of any dwelling-house let at a progressive rent payable under a tenancy agreement or lease, the maximum rent payable under such tenancy agreement or lease shall be the standard rent; and, where at the date by reference to which the standard rent is calculated, the rent was less than the rateable value the rateable value at that date shall be the standard rent ;

See Marchbank v. Campbell, Woodhead v. Putnam, (1923) 1 K. B. 245 and 252 ; 92 L. J. K. B. 137, as to determining the standard rent of a dwelling-house created by the division of an existing dwelling-house into flats or tenements, also Lelyveld v. Peppercorn, (1924) 2 K. B. 638 ; 93 L. J. K. B. 1057.

Where premises were let in 1914 at a peppercorn or nominal rent on building lease, such rent being less than two-thirds of the rateable value, within sect. 12 (7) of the Rent Act of 1920, the county court judge has no power for the purpose of ascertaining the rent of part of the premises in 1924, to fix a hypothetical standard rent of the whole premises. The Rent Restriction Acts deal only with real and not with imaginary rents (Joy v. Eppner, (1925) 1 K. B. 362 ; 94 L. J. K. B. 157).

- (b) The expression "standard rate of interest" means, in the case of a mortgage in force on the third day of August nineteen hundred and fourteen, the rate of interest payable at that date, or, in the case of a mortgage created since that date, the original rate of interest ;
 - (c) The expression "net rent" means, where the landlord at the time by reference to which the standard rent is calculated paid the rates chargeable on, or which but for the provisions of any Act would be chargeable on the occupier, the standard rent less the amount of such rates, and in any other case the standard rent ;
- See Westcott v. Bowes, (1925) 94 L. J. K. B. 492.
- (d) The expression "rates" includes water rents and charges, and any increase in rates payable by a landlord shall be deemed to be payable by him until the rate is next demanded ;
 - (e) The expression "rateable value" means the rateable value on the third day of August nineteen hundred and fourteen, or, in the case of a dwelling-house or a part of dwelling-house first assessed after that date, the rateable value at which it was first assessed ;
 - (f) The expressions "landlord," "tenant," "mortgagee," and "mortgagor" include any person from time to time deriving title under the original landlord, tenant, mortgagee, or mortgagor ; (a)

A tenant who, having legally sublet part of the dwelling-house, gives notice to his landlord to quit the same, and at its termination gives up possession of such part as he had retained is not subsequently liable for use and occupation, because the under-tenant, by virtue of the Act, remains in possession of the part sublet to him (Reynolds v. Bannerman, (1922) 1 K. B. 719).

(a) A bankrupt tenant cannot claim the benefit of this Act, for he is no longer the tenant in law, whether his trustee does or does not disclaim the tenancy (Reeves v. Davies, (1921) 90 L. J. K. B. 675 ; Parkinson v. Noel, (1923) 92 L. J. K. B. 361).

An executor, though not in occupation of the house, is entitled to be considered the tenant and entitled to the protection of the Act (Collis v. Flower, (1921) 1 K. B. 409; 90 L. J. K. B. 282; Mellows v. Low, (1923) 92 L. J. K. B. 363).

A person who has taken premises after the tenant has given notice to quit for the unexpired term of such notice does not, after the expiration of the notice, become an under-tenant entitled to the protection of the Act (Lord Hylton v. Heal, ante, p. 2510).

- (g) The expression "landlord" also includes in relation to any dwelling-house any person, other than the tenant, who is or would but for this Act be entitled to possession of the dwelling-house, and the expressions "tenant and tenancy" include sub-tenant and sub-tenancy, and the expression "let" includes sub-let; and the expression "tenant" includes the widow of a tenant dying intestate who was residing with him at the time of his death, or, where a tenant dying intestate leaves no widow or is a woman, such member of the tenant's family so residing as aforesaid as may be decided in default of agreement by the county court;

As to the term "landlord," see cases under former Acts (Stovin v. Farebrass, (1919) 35 T. L. R. 273; Vernon Investment Association v. Welch, (1919) 35 T. L. R. 511; Artizans Labourers and General Dwellings Co., Ltd. v. Whittaker, (1919) 88 L. J. K. B. 859; Epsom Grand Stand Association, Ltd. v. Clarke, (1919) 35 T. L. R. 525). A husband, whose wife was a statutory tenant of a dwelling-house, and who was living with her at the time of her death is entitled to the benefit of the above clause (g), and is entitled as administrator to his wife, to maintain an action for possession commenced by the wife against a sub-tenant (Salter v. Lask; Lask v. Cohen, (1925) 1 K. B. 584; 94 L. J. K. B. 522). See also notes to sect. 2 (1) of Act of 1923, post, p. 2539.

- (h) The expression "mortgage" includes a land charge under the Land Transfer Acts, 1875 and 1897; 38 & 39 Vict. c. 87.
 (i) The expressions "statutory undertaking" and "statutory duties or powers" include any undertaking, duties or powers, established, imposed or exercised under any order having the force of an Act of Parliament. 60 & 61 Vict. c. 65.

(2) This Act shall apply to a house or a part of a house let as a separate dwelling, where either the annual amount of the standard rent or the rateable value does not exceed (a)—

(a) See Callaghan v. Bristowe, (1920) 89 L. J. K. B. 817, where rooms above a garage were held to be let as a separate dwelling.

- (a) in the metropolitan police district, including therein the City of London, one hundred and five pounds;

See Wood v. Wallace, (1921) 90 L. J. K. B. 319. The rent reserved of a flat was £100 a year in the metropolitan police district, but 10s. a week was also reserved for services in connection with the flat. Held that the rent did not exceed £100 a year and the Act accordingly applied.

- (b) in Scotland, ninety pounds; and
 (c) elsewhere, seventy-eight pounds;

and every such house or part of a house shall be deemed to be a dwelling-house to which this Act applies :

Provided that—

- (i.) this Act shall not, save as otherwise expressly provided, apply to a dwelling-house bona fide let at a rent which includes payments in respect of board, attendance, or use of furniture ; (a) and

(a) See now sect. 10 (1) of the Act of 1923, post, p. 2548, which excludes this section unless the payment for attendance or furniture is a substantial part of the whole rent.

See Remon v. City of London Real Property Co. Ltd., (1921) 89 L. J. K. B. 1105; 1 K. B. 49. At the time when the tenancy expired no Rent Restriction Act applied to it, but the tenant continued in possession until the Act of 1920 came into force, and it was held that the tenant was protected from eviction by the landlord. By the provisions of this Act the landlord cannot retain possession of premises to which the Act applies though he has succeeded in resuming peaceable possession of them, but against the will of the tenant (id.).

See Hocker v. Solomon, (1922) 91 L. J. Ch. 8, where the court held that the furniture left by the landlord was of trifling importance and, indeed, negligible, and consequently the dwelling-house was not excluded from the Act by the terms of the above proviso; also Nye v. Davis, (1922) 2 K. B. 56; 91 L. J. K. B. 545, where, the landlord having covenanted with the tenant of a flat to provide a person to carry up his coals daily and to take away the refuse, it was held that these duties constituted "attendance" within the meaning of the sub-section. See also as to attendance Michael v. Phillips, (1924) 1 K. B. 16; 93 L. J. K. B. 21. See now sect. 10 of Act of 1923.

See Carwardine v. Wood, (1923) 2 K. B. 185; 92 L. J. K. B. 593, and King v. Millen, (1922), 2 K. B. 647; (1923) 92 L. J. K. B. 123, where landlord gave tenant with others the use of hall and staircase and agreed to keep them properly cleaned, held this was not attendance within the meaning of the sub-section. See sect. 10 of Act of 1923.

Dick v. Duncan, (1923) 92 L. J. Ch. 320; see also Crane v. Cox, (1923) 92 L. J. K. B. 544, where the court held that "use of furniture" meant use of something substantial in the shape of furniture. See now Act of 1923, which overrules such cases as Wilkes v. Goodwin, (1923) 2 K. B. 86; 92 L. J. K. B. 580. The above cases are now of little value, as sect. 10 of the Act of 1923 enacts that payment for use of furniture or attendance is not to be taken into account unless it forms a substantial part of the whole rent.

In Prout v. Hunter, (1924) 2 K. B. 736; 93 L. J. K. B. 993, three flats were let unfurnished by the plaintiff to the defendant. They were within the protection of the Rent Acts. The tenant let two of the flats, having furnished them, to sub-tenants as furnished flats. Held on the authority of the case of Glossop v. Ashley, (1922) 1 K. B. 1, that as the status of the premises themselves could alone be regarded, and as they were as between the tenant and the under tenants, in fact furnished flats, they were no longer protected by the Rent Acts, but could be recovered by the original landlord from the tenant and under tenants, but consult Leslie & Co. v. Cumming, (1926) 2 K. B. 417; 95 L. J. K. B. 1007. See also Gidden v. Mills, (1926) 95 L. J. K. B. 1.

- (ii.) the application of this Act to any house or part of a house shall not be excluded by reason only that part of the premises is used as a shop or office or for business, trade, or professional purposes ; and See Phillips v. Hallahan, (1925) 1 K. B. 756; 94 L. J. K. B. 694, where shop and dwelling-house above were let separately, though to same person. Held that the shop being business premises was not within the Rent Acts, though the upper part of the building still remained so.

NOTE.—This case turned almost entirely on the fact that the county court judge found that the lettings were bona fide two separate and distinct lettings. See Hyman v. Stewart, (1925) 94 L. J. K. B. 715.

(iii.) for the purposes of this Act, any land or premises let together with a house shall, if the rateable value of the land or premises let separately would be less than one quarter of the rateable value of the house, be treated as part of the house, but, subject to this provision, this Act shall not apply to a house let together with land other than the site of the house.

“Land or premises let together with a house.”—This only includes unprotected land let with a dwelling-house which is protected by the Act: Where business premises and a dwelling-house are let together the clause (iii.) does not apply (Read v. Goater, (1921) 1 K. B. 611; 90 L. J. K. B. 580).

In Wellesley v. White, (1921) 2 K. B. 204, Lush, J., expressed an opinion that “the word ‘house’ contained in the clause is not necessarily confined to the dwelling-house itself, but may include the garden and buildings used with the house,” i.e., the appurtenances of the dwelling-house, and this no doubt is so.

(3) Where, for the purpose of determining the standard rent or rateable value of any dwelling-house to which this Act applies, it is necessary to apportion the rent at the date in relation to which the standard rent is to be fixed, or the rateable value of the property in which that dwelling-house is comprised, the county court may, on application by either party, make such apportionment as seems just, and the decision of the court as to the amount to be apportioned to the dwelling-house shall be final and conclusive.

The judge may apportion the rent though no action is pending in which a question arises as to the standard rent, see Rex v. Marylebone County Court Judge, (1923) 92 L. J. K. B. 367, and cp. Broomhall v. Property Agents and Owners, (1921) 91 L. J. K. B. 332.

In apportioning the standard rent the county court judge may not take into account the fact that the tenant enjoys exemption from rates and gas, water and other amenities at the landlord’s expense. Only the rent in 1914 can be regarded (Bainbridge v. Congdon, (1925) 2 K. B. 261; 94 L. J. K. B. 682).

Where, though the three upper floors of a house had been converted into two flats, the general character of the building as a dwelling-house was not altered, the tenant of the basement, who paid 11s. 9d. weekly rent, the rent of the whole house being 60l. per annum, was held entitled to obtain apportionment of the rent from the county court (Abrahart v. Webster, (1924) 93 L. J. K. B. 1119), reversing decision of Divisional Court. Where a flat was first let as a whole in 1922, though a part of it had been let to the same tenant before August, 1914, it was held that the standard rent was that at which it was let in 1922, and that no apportionment of the rent could be made (Lelyveld v. Peppercorn, (1924) 93 L. J. K. B. 1057), but this case was doubted by Banks, L.J., in Barrett and Evans v. Hardy Brothers, Ltd., (1925) 2 K. B. 220; 94 L. J. K. B. 665, which case decided that this section is applicable where an order for apportionment of the rateable value is necessary in order to ascertain whether a house or part thereof is one to which the Rent Restrictions Act applies; not only to cases where it is known by its rent or rateable value that the whole house is within the Act, but even where the house, if let as a whole, would exceed in rent the jurisdiction of the Act.

No order can be made under this sub-section where there has been a bona fide reconstruction of the premises within sub-s. 9 of this section (Darrall v. Whitaker, (1923) 92 L. J. K. B. 882. See also Sutton v. Begley, (1923) 2 K. B. 694; 92 L. J. K. B. 1086; Joy v. Eppner, (1925) 1 K. B. 362.

Where the tenant in consideration of a tenancy at less than the standard rent consented to give and gave the landlord the use of certain rooms in the house. Held the county court judge was right in not taking into account the value of these rooms and adding the same to the rent charged. Rent in the Rent Restriction Acts means rent payable in money (Hornsby v. Maynard, (1925) 1 K. B. 514; 94 L. J. K. B. 380).

In Phillips v. Potter, (1925) 94 L. J. K. B. 819, the county court was held entitled to apportion the rent of part of a house, which in 1914 as a whole was outside the limit of the Act, being situate in the country and let at a rental of 85l. a year.

(4) Subject to the provisions of this Act, this Act shall apply to every mortgage where the mortgaged property consists of or comprises one or more dwelling-houses to which this Act applies, or any interest therein, except that it shall not apply—

(a) to any mortgage comprising one or more dwelling-houses to which this Act applies and other land if the rateable value of such dwelling-houses is less than one-tenth of the rateable value of the whole of the land comprised in the mortgage; or

(b) to an equitable charge by deposit of title deeds or otherwise (a); or

(a) Even where the equitable charge contains a covenant to execute a legal mortgage (London County and Westminster Bank v. Tomkins, (1918) 1 K. B. 515; 87 L. J. K. B. 662).

(c) to any mortgage which is created after the passing of this Act.

(5) When a mortgage comprises one or more dwelling-houses to which this Act applies and other land, and the rateable value of such dwelling-houses is more than one-tenth of the rateable value of the whole of the land comprised in the mortgage, the mortgagee may apportion the principal money secured by the mortgage between such dwelling-houses and such other land by giving one calendar month's notice in writing to the mortgagor, such notice to state the particulars of such apportionment, and at the expiration of the said calendar month's notice this Act shall not apply to the mortgage so far as it relates to such other land, and for all purposes, including the mortgagor's right of redemption, the said mortgage shall operate as if it were a separate mortgage for the respective portions of the said principal money secured by the said dwelling-houses and such other land, respectively, to which such portions were apportioned:

Provided that the mortgagor shall, before the expiration of the said calendar month's notice, be entitled to dispute the amounts so apportioned as aforesaid, and in default of agreement the matter shall be determined by a single arbitrator appointed by the President of the Surveyors' Institution.

(6) Where this Act has become applicable to any dwelling-house or any mortgage thereon, it shall continue to apply thereto whether or not the dwelling-house continues to be one to which this Act applies.

See Phillips v. Barnett, (1921) 2 K. B. 799; Williams v. Perry, (1924) 1 K. B. 936; 93 L. J. K. B. 521. In Phillips v. Hallahan, (1925) 1 K. B. 756, premises which consisted of a shop with a dwelling house above when they became vacant in 1923 were let to a tenant, but under separate lettings. Held that the shop portion, being let separately, was not within the protection of the Act.

(7) Where the rent payable in respect of any tenancy of any dwelling-house is less than two-thirds of the rateable value thereof, this Act shall not apply to that rent or tenancy nor to any mortgage by the landlord from whom the tenancy is held of his interest in the dwelling-house, and this Act shall apply in respect of such dwelling-house as if no such tenancy existed or ever had existed.

See notes to sect. 2 (1) of Act of 1923. See Brooks v. Liffen, (1928) 2 K. B. 347; 97 L. J. K. B. 326. A dwelling-house which falls under this subsection does not become decontrolled by the operation of sect. 2 (1) of the Act of 1923.

"Rateable value."—These words mean the net and not the gross rateable value (Waller & Son, Ltd. v. Thomas, (1921) 1 K. B. 541; 90 L. J. K. B. 656). Where a house was let at 30l. a year, the landlord paying rates and taxes which amounted to 31l. 18s. a year, and the rateable value of house in 1914 was 40l. a year, it was held that the rent was not less than two-thirds of the rateable value (Mackworth v. Hellard, (1921) 90 L. J. K. B. 693; 2 K. B. 755). See, where the landlord had mortgaged the dwelling-house, and attorned tenant to the mortgagee at a nominal or pepper-corn rent, and where it was accordingly held that this subsection applied (Jenkinson v. Wright, (1925) 2 K. B. 645; 94 L. J. K. B. 17). Per Lord Darling: The owner of a long lease of which a substantial part remains unexpired may be the "landlord" within the meaning of the Rent Act, 1923, idem. See also Joy v. Eppner, (1925) 1 K. B. 362, ante, p. 2520.

A person who occupies premises as a dwelling-house rent free cannot claim the protection of the Rent Restriction Acts (Bracey v. Pales, (1927) 1 K. B. 818; 96 L. J. K. B. 305).

See as to the effect of this section where tenant agreed to buy the house, but the contract was rescinded by the former landlord for breach of the conditions of the contract of purchase. Held that after this the tenant was not protected by the Rent Acts. Turner v. Watts, (1928) 97 L. J. K. B. 92. In Court of Appeal, (1928) 97 L. J. K. B. 403.

(8) Any rooms in a dwelling-house subject to a separate letting wholly or partly as a dwelling shall, for the purposes of this Act, be treated as a part of a dwelling-house let as a separate dwelling.

(9) This Act shall not apply to a dwelling-house erected after or in course of erection on the second day of April, nineteen hundred and nineteen, or to any dwelling-house which has been since that date or was at that date being bona fide reconstructed by way of conversion into two or more separate and self-contained flats or tenements ; but, for the purpose of any enactment relating to rating, the gross estimated rental or gross value of any such house to which this Act would have applied if it had been erected or so reconstructed before the third day of August nineteen hundred and fourteen, and let at that date, shall not exceed—

Where a large house, the rateable value of which was in 1914 60*l.* gross, and 48*l.* net, was in 1921 let on lease for five years at 100*l.* a year, and the lessee let four rooms in the same to a sub-tenant at 80*l.* a year on lease, it was held that this apportionment or division of the house was not a reconstruction by way of conversion, and that the sub-tenant was entitled to ask the county court to apportion the rent (Sutton v. Begley, (1923) 92 L. J. K. B. 1086.

See Woodward v. Samuels, (1920) 89 L. J. K. B. 689.

Where three dwelling-houses, each within the Act, were converted by the owner into a large factory, it was decided that the factory was a new building and that it was not within the Act (Phillips v. Barnett, (1922) 1 K. B. 222 ; 91 L. J. K. B. 198. See also Sinclair v. Powell, (1922) 1 K. B. 393 ; 91 L. J. K. B. 220 ; Phillips v. Potter, (1925) 94 L. J. K. B. 819, and Marchbank v. Campbell, (1923) 1 K. B. 245 ; Lelyveld v. Peppercorn, (1924) 93 L. J. K. B. 1057 ; Darrall v. Whitaker, (1923) 92 L. J. K. B. 882 ; Stockham v. Easton, (1924) 1 K. B. 52 ; (1923) 92 L. J. K. B. 926 ; Abraham v. Webster, (1925) 1 K. B. 563 ; (1924) 93 L. J. K. B. 1119, reversing the Divisional Court. This last case decides that where the upper floors of a house were reconstructed, but the basement, which had been let to a tenant before the reconstruction as a separate dwelling-house, was not altered in the process of the reconstruction, the basement was still within the operation of the Act.

9 & 10 Geo. 5,
c. 35.

(a) if the house forms part of a housing scheme to which section seven of the Housing, Town Planning, etc., Act, 1919, applies, the rent (exclusive of rates) charged by the local authority in respect of that house ; and

(b) in any other case the rent (exclusive of rates) which would have been charged by the local authority in respect of a similar house forming part of such a scheme as aforesaid.

(10) Where possession has been taken of any dwelling-houses by a Government department during the war, under the Defence of the Realm Regulations, for the purpose of housing workmen, this Act shall apply to such houses as if the workmen in occupation thereof at the passing of this Act were in occupation as tenants of the landlords of such houses.

Application to business premises.

13.—This section, which related to business premises, has expired and is repealed by the Statute Law Revision Act, 1927. A dwelling-house may be used for business purposes if it is used by the tenant partly for her own residence, and partly for letting rooms as lodgings (Tompkins v. Rogers, (1921) 2 K. B. 94 ; 90 L. J. K. B. 591). If a dwelling-house and business premises were let together in one letting they were both protected by the Act (Read v. Goater, (1921) 90 L. J. K. B. 580).

General.

14.—(1) Where any sum has, whether before or after the passing of this Act, been paid on account of any rent or mortgage interest, being a sum which is by virtue of this Act, or any Act repealed by this Act, irrecoverable by the landlord or mortgagee, the sum so paid shall be recoverable from the landlord or mortgagee who received the payment or his legal personal representative by the tenant or mortgagor by whom it was paid, and any such sum, and any other sum which under this Act is recoverable by a tenant from a landlord or payable or repayable by a landlord to a tenant, may, without prejudice to any other method of recovery, be deducted by the tenant or mortgagor from any rent or interest payable by him to the landlord or mortgagee (a).

Recovery of sums made irrecoverable, etc.

(a) This section gave a general power to recover from the landlord rent which was irrecoverable by him (and not as under the Courts (Emergency Powers) Act, 1917, sect. 5, six months overpayment only). This question of the right of a tenant to recover is now regulated by sect. 8 of the Rent and Mortgage Interest Restrictions Act, 1923 (post, p. 2547), which gives a right to recover within six months of payment only, and not after, except in the case of rent paid before the passing of the Act of 1923, which must be sued for (not necessarily recovered, see Lewis v. McKay, (1924) 2 K. B. 136; 93 L. J. K. B. 840), within six months of the passing of the Act of 1923. See also, Williams v. Britannic Merthyr Steam Coal Co., (1924) 2 K. B. 334; 99 L. J. K. B. 983, and post, p. 2547; Bayley v. Walker, (1925) 1 K. B. 447; 94 L. J. K. B. 430.

(2) If—

- (a) any person in any rent book or similar document makes an entry showing or purporting to show any tenant as being in arrear in respect of any sum which by virtue of any such Act is irrecoverable; or
- (b) where any such entry has, before the passing of this Act, been made by or on behalf of any landlord, the landlord, on being requested by or on behalf of the tenant so to do, refuses or neglects to cause the entry to be deleted within seven days, that person or landlord shall, on summary conviction, be liable to a fine not exceeding ten pounds, unless he proves that he acted innocently and without intent to deceive.

15.—(1) A tenant who by virtue of the provisions of this Act retains possession of any dwelling-house to which this Act applies shall, so long as he retains possession, observe and be entitled to the benefit of all the terms and conditions of the original contract of tenancy, so far as the same are consistent with the provisions of this Act, and shall be entitled to give up possession of the dwelling-house only on giving such notice as would have been required under the original contract of tenancy, or, if no notice would have been so required, on giving not less than three months' notice :

Conditions of statutory tenancy.

It was held by a divisional court that a tenant who had received notice to quit, and continued in possession under the Act could (unless prevented by his agreement) assign the premises (Keeves v. Dean; Nunn v. Pelligrini, (1923) 2 K. B. 804; 92 L. J. K. B. 917), but these decisions were reversed in the Court of Appeal, see (1924) 1 K. B. 685; 93 L. J. K. B. 203, and accordingly it was taken to be the law that what has come to be known as a "statutory tenant" could not assign or part with his interest in his tenancy to another person, but it has now been held by the Court of Appeal that, if not forbidden to sublet in his contract of tenancy, he may sublet a part but not the whole of the premises of which he is in possession as statutory tenant. See Roe v. Russell, (1928) 2 K. B. 117; 97 L. J. K. B. 290. See sect. 4, sub-sect. 1 (h) of Act of 1923, post, p. 2544.

If the tenant becomes bankrupt and his trustee in bankruptcy disclaims, the tenant cannot claim to remain in possession under the Act (Reeves v. Davies, (1921) 2 K. B. 486). Though "standard rent" means the rent paid in 1914, the landlord may, notwithstanding the above sub-section, in fixing rent to be paid after notice, go back to the standard rent, though this was not the rent being paid by the tenant at the time of the expiration of the notice to quit (Glossop v. Ashley, (1921) 37 T. L. R. 827). This case was affirmed on appeal, though the above proposition declared by McCardie, J., was neither approved nor dissented from, being unnecessary for the decision of the case; see (1921) 90 L. J. K. B. 1237; (1922) 1 K. B. 1. Vernon Investment Association v. Welch, (1919) 35 T. L. R. 511.

Provided that, notwithstanding anything in the contract of tenancy, a landlord who obtains an order or judgment for the recovery of possession of the dwelling-house or for the ejectment of a tenant retaining possession as aforesaid shall not be required to give any notice to quit to the tenant.

(2) Any tenant retaining possession as aforesaid shall not as a condition of giving up possession ask or receive the payment of any sum, or the giving of any other consideration, by any person other than the landlord, and any person acting in contravention of this provision shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds, and the court by which he was convicted may order any such payment or the value of any such consideration to be paid to the person by whom the same was made or given, but any such order shall be in lieu of any other method of recovery prescribed by this Act.

(3) Where the interest of a tenant of a dwelling-house to which this Act applies is determined, either as the result of an order or judgment for possession or ejectment, or for any other reason, any sub-tenant to whom the premises or any part thereof have been lawfully sublet shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be deemed to become the tenant of the landlord on the same terms as he would have held from the tenant if the tenancy had continued.

See sect. 2 of Act of 1923, post, p. 2536.

See Lord Hyllon v. Heal, ante, p. 2510; Reynolds v. Bannerman, (1922) 91 L. J. K. B. 651.

Minor amendments of law.
32 & 33 Vict.
c. 41.

16.—(1) Section three of the Poor Rate Assessment and Collection Act, 1869, shall, except so far as it relates to the metropolis, have effect as though for the limits of value specified in that section there were substituted limits twenty-five per cent. in excess of the limits so specified, and that section and section four of the same Act shall have effect accordingly.

(2) It shall be deemed to be a condition of the tenancy of any dwelling-house to which this Act applies that the tenant shall afford to the landlord access thereto and all reasonable facilities for executing therein any repairs which the landlord is entitled to execute.

(3) Where the landlord of any dwelling-house to which this Act applies has served a notice to quit on a tenant, the acceptance of rent by the landlord for a period not exceeding three months from the expiration of the notice to quit shall not be deemed to prejudice any right to possession of such premises, and, if any order for possession is made, any payment of rent so accepted shall be treated as mesne profits.

See Hartell v. Blacker, (1920) 89 L. J. K. B. 838, where the general rule is laid down that acceptance of money tendered as rent is an acknowledgment of the tenancy and waiver of the notice to quit, even where the landlord accepts the money "for use and occupation, but not as rent"; but see Davies v. Bristow and Penrhos College, Ltd. v. Butler, (1921) 3 K. B. 428; 90 L. J. K. B. 164, where the decision in Hartell v. Blacker was disapproved of and not followed. Both of these decisions were decisions of divisional courts. The decision in Davies v. Bristow seems to rest on the view propounded in Hunt v. Bliss, (1919) 89 L. J. K. B. 174, that after notice is given and has expired the so-called tenant is not an ordinary tenant but what is called a "statutory tenant." It will be noticed that Davies v. Bristow was decided before the passing of the Increase of Rent and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions) Act of 1920; but see the judgments of Bankes, L.J., and Scrutton, L.J., in Shuter v. Hersch, (1922) 1 K. B. 433; 91 L. J. K. B. 263. The decision in Hartell v. Blacker cannot now be considered as good law, though Shuter v. Hersch was also decided by the two Lords Justices sitting as a divisional court.

It is not necessary to give a statutory tenant notice to quit before, or with each notice of increase of rent. Once there is a statutory tenancy and proper notice of increase of rent given, this notice becomes operative from the time fixed by the statute, notwithstanding that the statute (sub-sect. 3, supra) gives on y a right to take rent for three months without prejudice to his position (Shuter v. Hersch, supra).

17.—(1) The Lord Chancellor may make such rules and give Rules as to such directions as he thinks fit for the purpose of giving effect to this Act, and may, by those rules or directions, provide for any proceedings for the purposes of this Act being conducted so far as desirable in private and for the remission of any fees.

(2) A county court shall have jurisdiction to deal with any claim or other proceedings arising out of this Act or any of the provisions thereof, notwithstanding that by reason of the amount of claim or otherwise the case would not but for this provision be within the jurisdiction of a county court, and, if a person takes proceedings under this Act in the High Court which he could have taken in the county court, he shall not be entitled to recover any costs.

See Wolff v. Smith, (1923) 2 Ch. 393 ; 92 L. J. Ch. 635, where this section was applied.

The case must be tried by the judge alone. There is no power to require a jury. See Administration of Justice Act, 1920 (10 & 11 Geo. 5, c. 81), sect. 3 (2), which came into operation when the Juries Act, 1918, expired.

"Arising out of this Act," A successful action against a trespasser for possession of premises does not "arise out of this Act." Consequently the successful plaintiff who brings such an action in the High Court is prima facie entitled to his costs (Gunter v. Davis, (1925) 1 K. B. 125 ; 94 L. J. K. B. 352) ; but see Russoff v. Lipovitch, (1925) 1 K. B. 628 ; 94 L. J. K. B. 355, which decides that the county court has jurisdiction where the plaintiff sues to recover possession of a house let at over 100*l.* a year, and which the defendant claims to retain under the Rent Restriction Act. The judgments pronounced in this case throw some doubt on the decision in Gunter v. Davis (supra).

Application to Scotland and Ireland.

18.—(1) This Act shall apply to Scotland, subject to the following modifications :—

- (a) "Mortgage" and "encumbrance" mean a heritable security including a security constituted by absolute disposition qualified by back bond or letter ; "mortgagor" and "mortgagee" mean respectively the debtor and the creditor in a heritable security ; "covenant" means obligation ; "mortgaged property" means the heritable subject or subjects included in a heritable security ; "rateable value" means yearly value according to the valuation roll ; "rateable value on the third day of August nineteen hundred and fourteen" means yearly value according to the valuation roll for the year ending fifteenth day of May nineteen hundred and fifteen ; "assessed" means entered in the valuation roll ; "land" means lands and heritages ; "rates" means assessments as defined in the House Letting and Rating (Scotland) Act, 1911 ; "Lord Chancellor" and "High Court" mean the Court of Session ; "rules" means act of sederunt ; "county court" means the sheriff court ; "sanitary authority" means the local authority under the Public Health (Scotland) Act, 1897 ; "mesne profits" means profits ; the Board of Agriculture for Scotland shall be substituted for the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries ; the twenty-eighth day of May shall be substituted for the twenty-fourth day of June ; the reference to the county agricultural committee shall be construed as a reference to the body of persons constituted with respect to any area by the Board of Agriculture for Scotland under subsection (2) of section eleven of the Corn Production Act, 1917 ; references to levying distress shall be construed as

(d) Where any dwelling-house, to which the Acts repealed by this Act applied, is subject to a right of tenancy arising from a yearly contract or from tacit relocation, and ending at Whitsunday nineteen hundred and twenty-one, the year ending at the said term of Whitsunday shall be deemed to be a period during which, but for this Act, the landlord would be entitled to obtain possession of such dwelling-house.

- (e) The following paragraph shall be substituted for paragraph (ii.) of sub-section (1) of section five of this Act :

(ii.) Where the court is satisfied that the dwelling-house is required by the landlord for the occupation of a person engaged on work necessary for the proper working of an agricultural holding : or

- (g) The medical officer of health of a dispensary district shall be substituted for the sanitary authority in section two of this Act and in the First Schedule thereto, and the issue of certificates and the payment of fees in connection with applications by tenants under the said section shall be subject to regulations to be made by the Local Government Board for Ireland :

- (h) This Act shall not apply to any dwelling-house provided by a local authority under the Labourers (Ireland) Acts, 1883 to 1919, or under any of those Acts.

and repeal.

(2) Except as otherwise provided, this Act shall continue in force until the twenty-fourth day of June nineteen hundred and twenty-three :

Provided that the expiration of this Act or any part thereof shall not render recoverable by a landlord any rent, interest or other sum which during the continuance thereof was irrecoverable or affect the right of a tenant to recover any sum which during the continuance thereof was under this Act recoverable by him.

(3) The enactments mentioned in the Second Schedule to this Act are hereby repealed to the extent specified in the third column of that schedule :

Provided that without prejudice to the operation of section thirty-eight of the Interpretation Act, 1889, nothing in this repeal shall render recoverable any sums which at the time of the passing of this Act were irrecoverable, or affect the validity of any order of a court, or any rules or directions made or given under any enactment repealed by this Act, all of which orders, rules, and directions if in force at the date of the passing of this Act shall have effect as if they were made or given under this Act, and any proceedings pending in any court at the date of the passing of this Act, under any enactment repealed by this Act, shall be deemed to have been commenced under this Act. 52 & 53 Vict.

[13 & 14 GEO. 5, c. 13.]

AN ACT TO AMEND THE INCREASE OF RENT AND MORTGAGE INTEREST (RESTRICTIONS) ACT, 1920, WITH RESPECT TO THE EFFECT OF NOTICES TO INCREASE RENT GIVEN THEREUNDER; AND FOR PURPOSES CONSEQUENTIAL THEREON.

[7TH JUNE, 1923.]

Be it enacted, etc.

1.—(1) Where notice of intention to increase rent has, whether before or after the passing of this Act, been served on a tenant in conformity with sub-section (2) of section three of the Increase of Rent and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions) Act, 1920 (hereinafter referred to as the principal Act), and a notice to terminate the tenancy was necessary in order to make such increase effective, the notice of intention to increase the rent shall have effect and shall be deemed always to have had effect as if it were or had been also a notice to terminate the existing tenancy on the day immediately preceding the day as from which the increase is or was first to take effect, or on the earliest day thereafter on which if it had been a notice to terminate the tenancy, it would have been effective for that purpose, and in the latter case a notice of increase served before the passing of this Act shall be deemed to have had effect as if such earliest date had been specified in the notice as the date as from which the increase was to take effect :

Effect of notices to increase rent under principal Act.
10 & 11 Geo. 5, c. 17.

See Aston v. Smith, (1924) 2 K. B. 143 ; 93 L. J. K. B. 733.

Provided that—

(a) nothing in this Act shall entitle a landlord after the passing of this Act to recover from a tenant, in respect of any period before the first day of December, nineteen hundred and twenty-two, the increase of rent made valid by this Act, or any sums which have been recovered from the landlord before that date by means of deductions from rent or otherwise, or any rent due before that date which has not been paid by reason of such deductions having been made therefrom ; but section fourteen, sub-section (1), of the principal Act shall not apply to an increase of rent made valid by this Act which was paid by, or recovered from, a tenant prior to the first day of December, nineteen hundred and twenty-two ;

(a) This Act has been dealt with in the consideration of the Principal Act of 1920, ante, p. 2508.

- (b) nothing in this Act shall affect the right to enforce any judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction given before the fifteenth day of February, nineteen hundred and twenty-three, or render recoverable any sum paid under such a judgment.

(2) Any increase of rent made valid by this Act is hereinafter referred to as a validated increase of rent.

Payment of arrears by instalments.

2.—(1) The amount due under this Act on account of any arrears of rent, that is to say,—

- (a) any validated increase of rent in respect of the period from the first day of December, nineteen hundred and twenty-two, to the date of the passing of this Act, both inclusive ; and
- (b) any sum which during the said period has been recovered by the tenant from the landlord by deductions from rent or otherwise, and which would not have been so recoverable had this Act been then in force ;

shall be payable by instalments with and as part of the periodical payments of rent, each instalment being fifteen per cent. of the standard rent for the week, month, or other period for which the rent is payable, fractions of a penny being disregarded ; and such instalments shall continue payable until the whole of the amount of such arrears is paid off :

Provided that—

- (i.) the tenant may at any time pay to the landlord the full amount of such arrears subject to the deduction of the aggregate amount of the instalments (if any) already paid ; and
- (ii.) if a tenant by whom any such instalments are payable gives up possession of the premises either voluntarily or on any order or judgment of a court, the balance of the sum payable by instalments shall immediately become due and recoverable.

(2) A landlord claiming that a sum on account of arrears of rent is due to him under this Act shall serve on the tenant a notice to that effect, and the notice shall specify the amount so claimed and the amount of the instalments claimed to be payable, and the first instalment shall not be payable until after the expiration of one clear week from the date of the notice. If such notice contains any statement or representation which is false or misleading in any material respect, the landlord shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding ten pounds unless he proves that the statement was made innocently and without intent to deceive.

(3) The notice shall be in the form contained in the Schedule to this Act, or in a form substantially to the same effect, and the landlord shall furnish the tenant with details in writing showing how the amount claimed is arrived at, and how the amount of the instalments has been calculated.

(4) Any question as to the amount of arrears due from a tenant, or the amount of any instalment, shall be determined on the application either of the landlord or the tenant by the county court, and the decision of the court shall be final and conclusive.

See Strickland v. Palmer, (1924) 2 K. B. 572; 93 L. J. K. B. 1033.

3.—(1) A tenant who becomes by virtue of this Act liable to pay any sum by way of rent or on account of arrears, or the sanitary authority, may apply to the county court for an order suspending such liability on the ground that the house is not in all respects reasonably fit for human habitation or that it is otherwise not in a reasonable state of repair, and section two of the principal Act shall apply as if the application had been made under subsection (2) of that section.

Power to suspend liability if premises unfit for human habitation or in state of disrepair.

(2) Where the liability in respect of the payment of instalments is so suspended, the instalments which would have become payable during the period of suspension, shall, for the purpose of calculating the aggregate amount of instalments paid, be deemed to have been paid.

(3) Where a tenant has obtained from the sanitary authority a certificate that the house is not in a reasonable state of repair, and has served a copy of the certificate upon the landlord, it shall be a good defence to any claim against the tenant for the payment of any sum which the tenant is by virtue of this Act liable to pay by way of rent or on account of arrears in respect of any subsequent rental period that the house was not in a reasonable state of repair during that period, and in any proceedings against the tenant for the enforcement of such claim (including proceedings for recovery of possession or ejectment on the ground of non-payment of rent so far as the rent unpaid includes any such sum), the production of the said certificate shall be sufficient evidence that the house was and continues to be in the condition therein mentioned unless the contrary is proved :

Provided that the foregoing provision shall not apply in any case where and so far as the condition of the house is due to the tenant's neglect or default or breach of express agreement.

(4) For the purposes of this Act, a certificate of a sanitary authority shall specify what works (if any) require to be executed in order to put the house into a reasonable state of repair.

(5) An instrument purporting to be a certificate of a sanitary authority and to be signed by an officer of the authority shall, without further proof, be taken to be a certificate of the authority unless the contrary is proved.

(6) A sanitary authority may appoint a committee for the purposes of this Act and may delegate, with or without restrictions, to such committee or to an existing committee of the authority all or any of the powers of the authority under this Act.

4. This Act may be cited as the Rent Restrictions (Notices of Increase) Act, 1923, and shall be construed as one with the principal Act, except that this Act shall not extend to Ireland.

RENT AND MORTGAGE INTEREST RESTRICTIONS ACT, 1923 (a).

[13 & 14 GEO. 5, c. 32.]

AN ACT TO AMEND AND PROLONG THE DURATION OF THE INCREASE OF RENT AND MORTGAGE INTEREST (RESTRICTIONS) ACT, 1920, AND ANY ENACTMENT AMENDING THAT ACT, AND TO MAKE PROVISION AS TO THE RENT AND RECOVERY OF POSSESSION OF PREMISES IN CERTAIN CASES AFTER THE EXPIRY OF THAT ACT, AND FOR PURPOSES IN CONNECTION THEREWITH.

[31ST JULY, 1923.]

Be it enacted, etc.

PART I.

AMENDMENT AND PROLONGATION OF DURATION OF PRINCIPAL ACT.

1. Subject to the provisions of this Act, the Increase of Rent and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions) Act, 1920 (hereinafter referred to as the principal Act), shall continue in force until the twenty-fourth day of June, nineteen hundred and twenty-five.

Words in italics repealed. Now the Act is to continue in force till December 25th, 1929 (see ante, p. 2491). Prolongation of duration of principal Act. 10 & 11 Geo. 5, c. 17.

2.—(1) Where the landlord of a dwelling-house to which the principal Act applies is in possession of the whole of the dwelling-house at the passing of this Act, or comes into possession of the whole of the dwelling-house at any time after the passing of this Act, then from and after the passing of this Act, or from and after the date when the landlord subsequently comes into possession, as the case may be, the principal Act shall cease to apply to the dwelling-house :

This is what is called the decontrollment section. It has caused great trouble and given rise to many conflicting decisions, some of which are righted by the decision of the Court of Appeal, Lloyd v. Cook (infra), and the cases heard and decided together with this case.

The expression "landlord" in the above sub-section is not to be construed in its strict legal sense as requiring a tenant and contract of tenancy, but in the looser sense of owner, or in the still looser sense of a person who at a later stage is going to appear as a landlord contesting with a tenant the terms of his tenancy.

Nowhere in the Rent Acts is the word "landlord" used in its technical sense as meaning necessarily a person between whom and the tenant a contractual relationship of landlord and tenant exists. See Lloyd v. Cook (reported with other cases), (1928) 97 L. J. K. B. 657. The Divisional Court had in the case of Lloyd v. Cook held that, though the landlord was in possession of the whole house in 1923, as the two rooms in question had never been let before they were controlled by the Rent Acts, though let subsequently to the period at which the landlord had been in possession of the whole of the house.

(a) This Act has been largely dealt with in the consideration of the principal Act of 1920, pp. 2491 et seq.

Exclusion of dwelling-houses from application of principal Act in certain cases.

The Court of Appeal has reversed this decision, (1928) 97 L. J. K. B. 657, holding that where a person who is landlord can prove, either that he was in possession of the whole of the dwelling-house on the 31st of July, 1923, or at any time since that date, the Rent Acts cease to apply to the house, and to every part of it, and a subsequent letting of the house or any part of it cannot revive control.

The decision in Cohen v. Gold, (1927) 1 K. B. 865; 96 L. J. K. B. 419, upon which the Divisional Court in Lloyd v. Cook (supra) had largely based their decision, is now expressly overruled; and the decision in Ratinsky v. Jacobs, (1928) 97 L. J. K. B. 566, approved. (This was a case where a Divisional Court had refused to follow Cohen v. Gold and Lloyd v. Cook, supra.)

In Goudge v. Broughton (where a Divisional Court had given a similar decision to that first given in Lloyd v. Cook) the Court of Appeal reversed the decision on the same grounds as in Lloyd v. Cook. (See (1928) 97 L. J. K. B. 657.)

In Simpson v. Miatt (another of the cases heard by the Court of Appeal with the case of Lloyd v. Cook) a Divisional Court, relying on the erroneous decision in Lloyd v. Cook, had once again held that, as the landlord who was in possession of the whole premises had never before sub-let them, the Rent Acts applied to a subsequent letting. This decision was also reversed. (See Lloyd v. Cook, supra.)

In Bartram v. Brown (another of the cases heard by the Court of Appeal with the case of Lloyd v. Cook) the action was brought for putting in a distress without leave of the Court. Both the County Court judge and the Divisional Court had found that the landlord never was in actual possession of the whole house. The Court of Appeal agreed with this, and this appeal was consequently dismissed.

Although in this case the landlord never was in possession of the whole house he had granted two long leases of the premises, thus it was argued, decontrolling the house under sect. 2 (2) of the Act of 1925. The County Court judge had held that the house had not become decontrolled by the grant of these leases, as neither of them was made to a sitting tenant, and that sect. 2 (2) meant a lease granted to a tenant already in possession as tenant.

Both the Divisional Court and the Court of Appeal agreed with the County Court judge in this view of the meaning of sect. 2 (2) of the Act of 1923. (See Lloyd v. Cook, supra.)

In Barker v. Hutson (another of the cases heard by the Court of Appeal with the case of Lloyd v. Cook) the owners of the house were in actual possession of the whole house in 1926. They sub-let the whole house to "B," who sub-let two rooms to "H." He asked for apportionment of the rent against his landlord "B" and obtained it. This decision was once again upheld by a Divisional Court on the authority of the erroneous decision in Lloyd v. Cook. The Court of Appeal reversed the decision, holding that the house having once after July 31st, 1923, come into the possession of the owners was for ever after decontrolled. Control did not revive either on the letting of the whole house to "B" or on "B's" sub-letting of the two rooms.

See Dunbar v. Smith, (1926) 1 K. B. 360; 95 L. J. K. B. 242, but compare Catts v. Curry, (1926) 1 K. B. 460; 95 L. J. K. B. 414; Doulin v. Parcell (1927) 136 L. T. 633. See Brooks v. Liffen, (1928) 1 K. B. 441; 97 L. J. K. B. 326. See also Barton v. Keeble, (1928) 1 Ch. 517; 97 L. J. Ch. 215.

Provided that, where part of a dwelling-house to which the principal Act applies is lawfully sub-let and the part so sub-let is also a dwelling-house to which the principal Act applies, the principal Act shall not cease to apply to the part so sub-let by reason of the tenant being in or coming into possession of that part, and, if the landlord is in, or comes into possession of, any part not so sub-let, the principal Act shall cease to apply to that part, notwithstanding that a sub-tenant continues in, or retains, possession of any other part by virtue of the principal Act :

Provided also that, where a landlord comes into possession under an order or judgment made or given after the passing of this Act, on the ground of non-payment of rent, the principal Act shall, notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this sub-section, continue to apply to the dwelling-house.

(2) Where, at any time after the passing of this Act, the landlord of a dwelling-house to which the principal Act applies grants to the tenant a valid lease of the dwelling-house for a term ending at some date after the twenty-fourth day of June, nineteen hundred and twenty-six, being a term of not less than two years, or enters into a valid agreement with the tenant for a tenancy for such a term, the principal Act shall, as from the commencement of the term, cease to apply to the dwelling-house, and nothing in the principal Act shall be taken as preventing or invalidating the payment of any agreed sum as part of the consideration for such lease or agreement :

"The tenant" in the above sub-section means the tenant already in possession. See Bartram v. Brown, (1928) 97 L. J. K. B. 674.

Words in italics repealed. The words substituted therefor are "not earlier than one year after the date fixed at the time at which the lease is granted for the expiration of the principal Act." See Rent and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions Continuation) Act, 1925.

Provided that, where part of the dwelling-house is lawfully sub-let at the commencement of the term, and is a dwelling-house to which the principal Act applies, that part shall, notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this sub-section, continue to be a dwelling-house to which the principal Act applies.

(3) For the purposes of this section, the expression "possession" shall be construed as meaning "actual possession," and a landlord shall not be deemed to have come into possession by reason only of a change of tenancy made with his consent.

3. Where before the passing of this Act the landlord of a dwelling-house to which the principal Act applies has granted to the tenant a valid lease of the dwelling-house for a term ending at some date after the twenty-fourth day of June, nineteen hundred and twenty-three, or has entered into a valid agreement with the tenant for a tenancy for such a term, and the rent thereby reserved is reserved at a rate which after but not before such last mentioned date exceeds the standard rent and the increases permitted under the principal Act or this Act, the landlord may, by three months' notice in writing expiring not earlier than the twenty-first day of December, nineteen hundred and twenty-three, and not later than the thirty-first day of March, nineteen hundred and twenty-four, determine the said lease or tenancy, provided that, if within one month of the receipt of such notice the lessee or tenant shall give to the landlord notice in writing that he elects to abide by the said lease or agreement and the terms thereof, then the said lease or agreement shall remain in full force and effect in every respect including the amount of the rent thereby expressed to be reserved unaffected by the principal Act or this Act.

4. The following section shall be substituted for section five of the principal Act, namely (a) :—

“ 5.—(1) No order or judgment for the recovery of possession of any dwelling-house to which this Act applies, or for the ejectment of a tenant therefrom, shall be made or given unless—

“(a) any rent lawfully due from the tenant has not been paid, or any other obligation of the tenancy (whether under the contract of tenancy or under this Act) so far as the same is consistent with the provisions of this Act has been broken or not performed ; or

“(b) the tenant or any person residing or lodging with him or being his sub-tenant has been guilty of conduct which is a nuisance or annoyance to adjoining occupiers, or has been convicted of using the premises or allowing the premises to be used for an immoral or illegal purpose, or the condition of the dwelling-house has, in the opinion of the court, deteriorated owing to acts of waste by or the neglect or default of the tenant or any such person, and where such person is a lodger or sub-tenant, the court is satisfied that the tenant has not, before the making or giving of the order or judgment, taken such steps as he ought reasonably to have taken for the removal of the lodger or sub-tenant ; or

“ Using premises for an immoral or illegal purpose.” See Schneiders and Sons v. Abrahams, (1925) 1 K. B. 301 ; 94 L. J. K. B. 408.

“(c) the tenant has given notice to quit, and in consequence of that notice the landlord has contracted to sell or let the dwelling-house or has taken any other steps as a result of which he would, in the opinion of the court, be seriously prejudiced if he could not obtain possession ; or

(a Dealt with generally under the principal Act of 1920. See ante, p. 2509.

“Giving up possession without more is not the same thing as giving notice to quit.” See Standingford v. Bruce, (1926) 1 K. B. 466. An agreement to give up possession on or before a certain date is not a notice to quit within the meaning of this clause (De Vries v. Sparks, (1927) 137 L. T. 441).

- “(d) the dwelling-house is reasonably required by the landlord for occupation as a residence for himself, or for any son or daughter of his over eighteen years of age, or for any person bonâ fide residing with him, or for some person engaged in his whole time employment or in the whole time employment of some tenant from him or with whom, conditional on housing accommodation being provided, a contract for such employment has been entered into, and (except as otherwise provided by this sub-section) the court is satisfied that alternative accommodation is available which is reasonably suitable to the means of the tenant and to the needs of the tenant and his family as regards extent, character, and proximity to place of work and which consists either of a dwelling-house to which this Act applies, or of premises to be let as a separate dwelling on terms which will afford to the tenant security of tenure reasonably equivalent to the security afforded by this Act in the case of a dwelling-house to which this Act applies ; or

NOTE.—See as to the position of a landlord requiring the house for himself, or for his son or daughter over eighteen years of age, where alternative accommodation is not available, sect. 1 of the Prevention of Eviction Act, 1924, substituted for paragraphs (iv.) and (v.), post, of this section, p. 2554.

- “(e) the dwelling-house is reasonably required for the purpose of the execution of the statutory duties or powers of a local authority, or statutory undertaking, or for any purpose which, in the opinion of the court, is in the public interest, and the court in either case is satisfied as aforesaid as respects alternative accommodation ; or Notwithstanding the provisions of the Rent Restriction Acts as to alternative accommodation (and the wording of the above clause), a local authority may still by virtue of sect. 128 of the Housing Act, 1925, when the house is required for the purpose of exercising their powers under that Act, obtain possession of the house without the necessity of providing or showing alternative accommodation (Parry v. Harding, (1925) 1 K. B. 111; 94 L. J. K. B. 37).

- “(f) the landlord became the landlord after service in any of His Majesty’s forces during the war and requires the house for his personal occupation and offers the tenant accommodation on reasonable terms in the same dwelling-house, such accommodation being considered by the court as reasonably sufficient in the circumstances ; or

- “(g) the dwelling-house is required for occupation as a residence by a former tenant thereof who gave up occupation in consequence of his service in any of His Majesty’s forces during the war; or
- “(h) the tenant without the consent of the landlord has at any time after the thirty-first day of July, nineteen hundred and twenty-three, assigned or sub-let the whole of the dwelling-house or sub-let part of the dwelling-house, the remainder being already sub-let; or

(See ante, p. 2528.)

- “(i) the dwelling-house consists of or includes premises licensed for the sale of intoxicating liquor, and the tenant has committed an offence as holder of the licence or has not conducted the business to the satisfaction of the licensing justices or the police authority, or has carried it on in a manner detrimental to the public interest, or the renewal of the licence has for any reason been refused;

and, in any such case as aforesaid, the court considers it reasonable to make such an order or give such judgment.

“The existence of alternative accommodation shall not be a condition of an order or judgment on any of the grounds specified in paragraph (d) of this sub-section—

- “(i.) where the tenant was in the employment of the landlord or a former landlord, and the dwelling-house was let to him in consequence of that employment and he has ceased to be in that employment; or
- “(ii.) where the court is satisfied by a certificate of the county agricultural committee, or of the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries pending the formation of such committee, that the dwelling-house is required by the landlord for the occupation of a person engaged on work necessary for the proper working of an agricultural holding, or with whom, conditional on housing accommodation being provided, a contract for employment on such work has been entered into; or
- “(iii.) where the landlord gave up the occupation of the dwelling-house in consequence of his service in any of His Majesty’s forces during the war; or

NOTE.—Paragraphs (iv.) and (v.) are repealed, and sect. 1 of the Prevention of Eviction Act, 1924, substituted for them, see post, p. 2554.

“(2) At the time of the application for or the making or giving of any order or judgment for the recovery of possession of any such dwelling-house, or for the ejectment of a tenant therefrom, or in the case of any such order or judgment which has been made or given, whether before or after the passing of this Act, and not executed at any subsequent time, the court may adjourn the application, or stay or suspend execution on any such order or judgment, or postpone the date of possession for such period or periods as it thinks fit, and subject to such conditions (if any) in regard to payment by the tenant of arrears of rent, rent, or mesne profits and otherwise as the court thinks fit, and, if such conditions are complied with, the court may, if it thinks fit, discharge or rescind any such order or judgment.

“(3) Where any order or judgment has been made or given before the passing of this Act, but not executed, and, in the opinion of the court, the order or judgment would not have been made or given if this Act had been in force at the time when such order or judgment was made or given, the court may, on application by the tenant, rescind or vary such order or judgment in such manner as the court may think fit for the purpose of giving effect to this Act.

See like section in Prevention of Eviction Act, 1924, sect. 2, post, p. 2554.

“(4) Notwithstanding anything in section one hundred and forty-three of the County Courts Act, 1888, or in section one of the Small Tenements Recovery Act, 1838, every warrant for delivery of possession of, or to enter and give possession of, any dwelling-house to which this Act applies, shall remain in force for three months from the day next after the last day named in the judgment or order for delivery of possession or ejectment, or, in the case of a warrant under the Small Tenements Recovery Act, 1838, from the date of the issue of the warrant, and in either case for such further period or periods, if any, as the court shall from time to time, whether before or after the expiration of such three months, direct.

c. 43.
1 & 2 Vict.
c. 74.

“(5) An order or judgment against a tenant for the recovery of possession of any dwelling-house or ejectment therefrom under this section shall not affect the right of any sub-tenant to whom the premises or any part thereof have been lawfully sub-let before proceedings for recovery of possession or ejectment were commenced, to retain possession under this section, or be in any way operative against any such sub-tenants.

“(6) Where a landlord has obtained an order or judgment for possession or ejectment under this section on the ground that he requires a dwelling-house for his own occupation, and it is subsequently made to appear to the court that the order or judgment was obtained by misrepresentation or the concealment of material facts, the court may order the landlord to pay to the former tenant such sum as appears sufficient as compensation for damage or loss sustained by that tenant as the result of the order or judgment.

“(7) The provisions of the last preceding sub-section shall apply in any case where the landlord has, after the thirty-first day of July, nineteen hundred and twenty-three, obtained an order or judgment for possession or ejectment on any of the grounds specified in paragraph (d) of sub-section (1) of this section, and it is subsequently made to appear to the court that the order or judgment was obtained by misrepresentation or concealment of material facts, and in any such case the court may, if it thinks fit, in addition to making an order for payment of compensation by the landlord to the former tenant, direct that the dwelling-house shall not be excluded from this Act by reason of the landlord having come into possession thereof under the said order or judgment, and, if such a direction is given, this Act shall apply and be deemed to have applied to the dwelling-house as from the date mentioned in such direction.”

Suspension of increase of rent on ground of disrepair.

5.—(1) Where the tenant of a dwelling-house to which the principal Act applies has obtained from the sanitary authority a certificate that the house is not in a reasonable state of repair, and has served a copy of the certificate upon the landlord, it shall be a good defence to any claim against the tenant for the payment of any increase of rent permitted under paragraph (c) or paragraph (d) of sub-section (1) of section two of the principal Act in respect of any subsequent rental period that the house was not in a reasonable state of repair during that period, and in any proceedings against the tenant for the enforcement of such claim (including proceedings for recovery of possession or ejectment on the ground of non-payment of rent so far as the rent unpaid includes such increase), the production of the said certificate shall be sufficient evidence that the house was and continues to be in the condition therein mentioned unless the contrary is proved :

Provided that this section shall not apply in any case where and so far as the condition of the house is due to the tenant's neglect or default or breach of express agreement.

(2) When, after the issue of any such certificate, the landlord has executed to the satisfaction of the sanitary authority the repairs which require to be executed in order to put the dwelling-house into a reasonable state of repair, the authority shall, on the application of the landlord and upon payment of a fee of one shilling, issue a report to that effect.

Notice of increase of rent.

6.—(1) The county court, if satisfied that any error or omission in a notice of intention to increase rent, whether served before or

After the passing of this Act, is due to a bonâ fide mistake on the part of the landlord, shall have power to amend such notice, by correcting any errors and supplying any omissions therein, which, if not corrected or supplied, would render the notice invalid, on such terms and conditions as respects arrears of rent or otherwise as appear to the court to be just and reasonable, and, if the court so directs, the notice as so amended shall have effect and be deemed to have had effect as a valid notice.

(2) The form of notice in the First Schedule to the principal Act shall be amended by the substitution of the words "date of service of this notice" for the words "date of this notice."

See Williams v. Britannic Merthyr Steam Coal Co., (1924) 2 K. B. 334; 193 L. J. K. B. 983. See post, p. 2548. The county court judge has power to amend the notices of increase under this section although not accompanied by notices to quit.

7.—(1) Where part of a dwelling-house to which the principal Act applies is lawfully sub-let, and the part so sub-let is also a dwelling-house to which the principal Act applies, then, in addition to any increases permitted by paragraphs (a) to (e) of sub-section (1) of section two of the principal Act, an amount not exceeding ten per cent. of the net rent of the dwelling-house comprised in the sub-tenancy shall be deemed to be a permitted increase in the case of that dwelling-house, and an amount equivalent to five per cent. of the net rent of the dwelling-house comprised in the sub-tenancy shall be deemed to be a permitted increase in the case of the dwelling-house comprised in the tenancy. Sub-section (2) of section three of the principal Act shall not apply as respects any increase permitted under this sub-section.

Permitted increases of rent of sub-tenancies.

(2) Where part of any such dwelling-house is so sub-let, the tenant shall, on being so requested in writing by the landlord, supply him, within fourteen days thereafter, with a statement in writing of any sub-letting, giving particulars of occupancy, including the rent charged, and should the tenant without reasonable excuse fail to do so or supply a statement which is false in any material particulars he shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding two pounds.

(3) In sub-section (6) of section two of the principal Act the expression "landlord" shall, in relation to a sub-tenancy, be taken to include not only the person who is immediate landlord of the sub-tenant but also the landlord of that person.

8.—(1) No increase of rent which becomes payable by reason of an amendment of a notice of increase made by order of the county court under this Act shall be recoverable in respect of any rental period which ended more than six months before the date of the order.

Limitation on recovery of over-payments or arrears.

(2) Any sum paid by a tenant or mortgagor which, under sub-section (1) of section fourteen of the principal Act, is recoverable by the tenant or mortgagor shall be recoverable at any time within six months from the date of payment but not afterwards, or in the case of a payment made before the passing of this Act, at any time within six months from the passing of this Act but not afterwards (a).

The effect of this section, read with sect. 6, is that the landlord, where his notice is amended under sect. 6, can only recover or retain rent paid during six months before the notice was validated. Rent paid before this time and before the passing of the Act of 1923 can still be recovered by the tenant within six months of the passing of the Act of 1923 by virtue of sect. 14, sub-s. 1 of the Act of 1920 (Williams v. Britannic Merthyr Steam Coal Co., (1924) 2 K. B. 334; 93 L. J. K. B. 983; Bayley v. Walker, (1925) 1 K. B. 447; 94 L. J. K. B. 430).

(a) It is sufficient if proceedings for recovery are commenced within the six months, though judgment may not be recovered till after six months have expired (Lewis v. McKay; Algate v. Vugler; Clark v. Potter (reported together), (1924) 2 K. B. 136; Diment v. Roberts, (1925) 1 K. B. 9; 93 L. J. K. B. 1038).

13 & 14 Geo.
5, c. 13.

(3) Nothing in this section shall affect the operation of the Rent Restriction (Notices of Increase) Act, 1923.

Excessive charges for furniture, &c., taken over in connection with tenancies.

9.—(1) Where the purchase of any furniture or other articles is required as a condition of the grant, renewal, or continuance of a tenancy or sub-tenancy of a dwelling-house to which the principal Act applies, the price demanded shall, at the request of the person on whom the demand is made, be stated in writing, and, if the price exceeds the reasonable price of the articles, the excess shall be treated as if it were a fine or premium required to be paid as a condition of the grant, renewal, or continuance, and the provisions of section eight of the principal Act, including penal provisions, shall apply accordingly.

(2) Where a tenant who by virtue of the principal Act retains possession of a dwelling-house to which that Act applies requires that furniture or other articles shall be purchased as a condition of giving up possession, the price demanded shall, at the request of the person on whom the demand is made, be stated in writing, and, if the price exceeds the reasonable price of the articles, the excess shall be treated as a sum asked to be paid as a condition of giving up possession, and the provisions of sub-section (2) of section fifteen of the principal Act (including penal provisions) shall apply accordingly.

Amendment of provisions of the

 which includes payments in respect of attendance or the use of houses let the value of the same to the tenant, forms a substantial portion of the whole rent.

(2) In sections nine and ten of the principal Act (which relate to limitation of rent of houses let with furniture and penalties for excessive charges for such lettings) the expressions "landlord" and "tenant" shall respectively be substituted for the expressions "lessor" and "lessee."

11.—(1) The county court shall have power on the application Power of of a landlord or a tenant to determine summarily any questions county court as to the amount of the rent, standard rent or net rent of any to determine dwelling-house to which the principal Act applies, or as to the questions as increase of rent permitted under that Act or this Part of this Act. to standard rent, &c.

(2) The Lord Chancellor may, by rules and directions made and given under section seventeen of the principal Act, provide for any questions arising under or in connection with the principal Act or this Part of this Act being referred by consent of the parties interested for final determination by the judge or registrar of a county court sitting as an arbitrator or by an arbitrator appointed by such judge.

PART II.

RESTRICTIONS AFTER EXPIRY OF PRINCIPAL ACT.

12.—(1) If proceedings are taken against the person who on the Restriction is tenant of a dwelling-house to which the principal Act then possession in applies (hereinafter referred to as "the sitting tenant") for the certain cases of the tenant therefrom at any time after that day, should it expiry of the appear to the court that the proceedings are harsh or oppressive principal or that exceptional hardship would be caused to the sitting tenant Act.

 by the making or giving of an order or judgment for possession or ejectment, the court may refuse to make or give such an order or judgment or may adjourn the application for or stay or suspend execution of any such order or judgment or postpone the date of possession for such period or periods, and subject to such conditions as it thinks proper, and, if such conditions are complied with, the court may, if it thinks fit, discharge or rescind any such order or judgment.

(2) For the purpose of the exercise of its jurisdiction under this section, the court may direct that the tenancy of the sitting tenant shall be treated as a subsisting tenancy notwithstanding the determination of the same by any notice to quit or similar notice or otherwise, and may set aside and annul any such notice accordingly, and shall have power to determine what increase of rent (if any) is fair and reasonable, regard being had to the character and condition of the dwelling-house and the rents of similar dwelling-houses in the locality.

(3) The court shall not exercise any of the powers given to it under the foregoing provisions of this section in any case where it is satisfied that greater hardship would be caused to the landlord by the exercise of the power than would be caused to the tenant by the refusal to exercise it.

(4) In any such proceedings an order or judgment for possession or ejectment against the sitting tenant of the dwelling-house shall not, unless the court otherwise directs, be operative against a sitting tenant of a part of the dwelling-house which, on the twenty-fourth day of June, nineteen hundred and twenty-five, is lawfully sub-let to him and is a separate dwelling-house to which the principal Act applies, and the court shall, in relation to that part of the dwelling-house and the sitting tenant thereof, have all the like powers and jurisdiction as it has in relation to the whole dwelling-house and the sitting tenant thereof.

The words, supra, in italics repealed. The words substituted therefor are "the day at the end of which the principal Act expires," i.e., December 25th, 1929 (for England). See Preliminary Notes, ante, p. 2490.

1 & 2 Vict.
c. 74.

Reduction of rent pending the execution
of repairs.

13.—(1) If the county court on the application of a sitting tenant is satisfied by the production of a certificate of the sanitary authority and such further evidence (if any) as may be adduced that the dwelling-house is not in a reasonable state of repair and that the condition of the dwelling-house is not due to the tenant's neglect or default or breach of express agreement, the court may order that the rent shall be reduced until the court is satisfied on the report of the sanitary authority or otherwise that the necessary repairs (other than any repairs for which the tenant is liable) have been executed, and subject to the terms of the order the rent shall be payable at such reduced rate as may be specified therein until the court is so satisfied.

(2) The powers of the county court under this section may be exercised by the court in any proceedings against a sitting tenant to which the last preceding section of this Act applies.

14.—(1) Where a dwelling-house in the occupation of a sitting tenant is subject to a mortgage to which the principal Act applied, the county court may, on the application of the landlord, make an order restraining the mortgagee from calling in his mortgage or taking steps for enforcing his security or for recovering the principal money thereby secured, if it is satisfied that such calling in, enforcement or recovery would cause exceptional hardship to the landlord. The county court may, on the application of the mortgagee or landlord, rescind or vary any order so made if satisfied that by reason of any material change in circumstances, rescission or variation is necessary or proper.

Restriction on calling in of mortgages.

(2) The restrictions imposed on a mortgagee by an order under this section may be imposed subject to such conditions as regards increase of interest or otherwise and for such time as appears to the court to be proper, but so nevertheless that the restrictions shall cease to be operative if at any time after the making of the order—

- (d) the sitting tenant ceases to be tenant of the dwelling-house.

(3) This section shall not apply to a mortgage where the principal money secured thereby is repayable by means of periodical instalments extending over a term of not less than ten years from the creation of the mortgage.

15.—(1) The constitution and procedure of reference committees established under this Part of this Act shall be such as may be prescribed by regulations made by the Minister of Health.

Regulations as to reference committees.

(2) In addition to any questions that may be referred to a reference committee by the county court under this Part of this Act, provision may be made by the regulations for the reference to and determination by a reference committee of any questions in relation to the rent payable or to be paid by a sitting tenant which may be submitted to them by the tenant and landlord.

(3) Before any regulation under this section is made it shall be laid in draft before both Houses of Parliament, and such regulation shall not be made unless both Houses by resolution approve the draft, either without modification or addition or with modifications or additions to which both Houses agree, but upon such approval being given the Minister of Health may make the regulation in the form in which it has been approved, and the regulation on being so made shall be of full force and effect.

Words in italics repealed. The words substituted therefor are "five years after the expiration of the principal Act." See Rent and Mortgage Interest (Restrictions Continuation) Act, 1925.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION AND INSURANCE REPORTS

[W.C. & I.R.]

This series of Reports, which commenced in 1914, has met with a most favourable reception—doubtless owing to its completeness and accuracy. Every case is reported, and the series includes all cases germane to Workmen's Compensation, not only those on the construction of the Statute; in addition, there is a selection of the Scottish and Irish Appeals. To ensure completeness the Judgments of all the Judges in the House of Lords and Courts of Appeal are given.

Included also are INSURANCE CASES relating to all risks other than Marine, and including Life, Fire, Accident, Guarantee, Burglary, Third Party Risks, and cases under The National Insurance Act.

The cases are reported by the staff of the LAW JOURNAL REPORTS (the oldest existing series of Reports) and edited by G. T. WHITFIELD HAYES, Barrister-at-Law, sub-editor of those Reports.

The Annual Subscription is £2, post free; the parts are issued promptly after each batch of Compensation Appeals is heard.

Price of volumes in cloth for 1915 to 1918, 21s. net each; 1919, 25s. net; 1920 to 1923, 30s. net each; 1924 to 1928, 35s. net each.

THE LAW RELATING TO COLLISIONS ON LAND

BY

His Honour JUDGE R. O. ROBERTS

AND

A. DEWAR GIBB,

Barrister-at-Law.

SOME OF THE CONTENTS.

Negligence—Who can be sued—Who can sue—Damages—Procedure—Collisions on the highway—Rule of the road—Running-down accidents on Railways—Criminal Liability.

"The learned authors are to be congratulated on having been first in the field with a work on the subject and on having dealt with it so systematically and exhaustively. The law in each chapter is laid down in propositions or rules which in each case are followed by pertinent illustrations with references to the decisions of the courts. The propositions or rules are also expounded by clear and adequate notes so that the whole law on the subject is easily gathered. . . . An extremely useful and timely production."—Justice of the Peace.

A Concise Handbook of the Law Affecting LANDLORD AND TENANT (1928).

By R. BORREGAARD, M.A. (Oxon), of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

CONTENTS: Part I.—The General Law.

Part II.—Modifications of the General Law Affecting Special Tenancies.

A reasonable time having elapsed since last a small and inexpensive work on the Law of Landlord and Tenant appeared, this book has been written to supply what the publisher believes to be a wide-felt want. It is hoped that it will meet the requirements of those who have occasion to consult handy works of reference, and will at the same time serve as a guide to the sources of more elaborate information for those who seek such. With these objects in view, numerous authorities have been cited and a copious index appended.

LAW JOURNAL REPORTS.

This is the oldest established series of Reports. They commenced in 1822—107 years ago—and have always been renowned for their accuracy and promptness in reporting. They are cited in Court and in all textbooks. The judges revise for them the reports of their judgments and they are of equal authority with the Law Reports. In 1887 the Master of the Rolls said, "There is no superiority in the Reports of the Council of Law Reporting."

At the low price at which they are offered they are therefore undoubtedly the best series of reports. Not only is there a big saving in the annual subscription, but there is an additional saving of 30s. a year in binding. For those who have little shelf room an edition on thin paper can be supplied at no extra cost. In this edition each year's cases can be bound into one volume instead of three.

The Publishers guarantee that every case reported in the Law Reports will also be reported, and as fully reported, in the Law Journal Reports.

A specimen monthly part of either edition will gladly be sent free on request.

The Law Journal Reports give the best service at the lowest possible price.

The Annual Subscription to the LAW JOURNAL REPORTS, with the Statutes (officially printed by the King's Printers), is only £4 10s. per annum, or, including Mews' Quarterly and Annual Digest, £5 per annum.

Thin paper edition, binding into one volume each year, £4 6s., without Statutes or Digest.

The LAW JOURNAL WEEKLY NEWSPAPER, including Notes of Cases, will be supplied for £1 16s. extra.
